Revenue Sharing Compromise Plan Hits Suburbs Hard

by KURT BAER

Northwest suburbs appear to be in for drastic reductions in federal revenue sharing if a compromise House-Senate program is adopted by both houses of Congress.

The compromise measure would result in cuts of 60 to 80 per cent for most suburbs compared with an earlier House-passed measure.

Arlington Heights would be particularly hard hit by the recommended compromise. Under the revenue-sharing bill passed by the House, Arlington Heights could expect to receive $1,007,988 this year. The compromise program would cut the allocation to $248,211, according to figures released yesterday by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

Other Chicago suburbs would experience similar percentage reductions. The state's largest cities, however, notably the City of Chicago, would receive more money under the compromise provision.

COMPARISONS between the House and compromise versions for other Northwest suburbs are: Buffalo Grove $186,568 (House) to $23,490 (compromise); Des Plaines $909,711 to $327,599; Elk Grove $417,241 to $137,385; Hoffman Esates $379,929 to $73,174; Mount Prospect $529,653 to $144,652; Palatine $416,556 to $89,835; Rolling Meadows $317,101 to $72,411; Schaumburg $314,684 to $61,630; and Wheeling $148,760 to $48,522.

The compromise measure was worked out after a Senate bill, strongly backed by rural interests, was approved, taking money away from affluent suburbs and distributing it to large cities and rural areas.

Chicago's allocation would go from $58,899,411 under the House version to $69,335,285 under the compromise version.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. John Woods called the compromise measure "disappointing indeed." He said if the compromise is ratified by the House and Senate it "would not be very meaningful to Arlington Heights or any of the other suburbs."

Arlington Heights trustees had discussed using revenue sharing money for a number of major capital improvements including flood control, landfill site acquisition and transportation improvements.

"While we fully recognize Chicago's needs for funds, this doesn't make our needs any less acute," Woods said.

Woods said he planned to send what he called "a salvo of telegrams" to area Senators and Representatives urging them to reject the compromise. He said he hoped and would urge other suburban mayors to take similar action.

SCHAUMBURG MAYOR Robert Atcher also criticized the compromise proposal saying it discriminated against the suburbs.

"I'm sorry the compromise discriminates against suburban municipalities," giving more for big cities and little rural towns. "If you compare the tax picture... the towns close in near Chicago have tremendous problems by comparison. To skip over communities with the problems is unfair," Atcher said.

A spokesman in Percy's office said the smaller compromise figures are the result of the formula used to distribute money within each state. This formula takes into account what the spokesman called each town's "taxing effort" and the relative income of its population.

Towns with higher per-capita incomes got less money than those with lower such figures. "This will hurt the suburbs," the spokesman said.

There is a provision in the compromise measure, however, that would allow state legislatures to alter the revenue sharing formula by eliminating the per-capita income factor.

If a state chooses to alter the formula, it must apply the revised program to all municipalities in the state for the full five year duration of the revenue-sharing program, the spokesman said.

THE PERCY spokesman outlined three ways in which the compromise formula could be altered by state legislative action.

One alternate formula is based on multiplying the community's general tax effort times its population. A second means is multiplying population times the per-

When other drivers in Hoffman Estates are bogged down in winter snow, Harold Newby of 138 Bradley Ln. puts right on past them with a cheery wave from inside his black sedan.

And while Newby is forced to stack grocery bags along his auto's running board, Robert Gerth of 177 Maricopa Ln. can reach into his trunk from the front seat, and find an apple for a mid-day snack.

Newby and Gerth are among that special class of men who understand cars and love them, and glean more pleasure from the old products life has to offer than the new.

No flashy red 1973 Ferrari could steal the places in their hearts that now belong to a 1929 Model A Ford, a 1947 Mercury "woody," a 1940 Plymouth business coupe and a 1949 Chrysler Saratoga.

Newby bought the Model A back in '57 for a mere $125. He couldn't touch it for that now. His joy in its presence led him to build a porch on the back of his home, with one end hinged to permit him to bring it in out of the cold. The Mercury station wagon is a more recent possession, the family's "new arrival" in 1967.

GERTH BOUGHT the Plymouth for $10 in 1958, from three unmarried sisters who drove it once a year — to the service station for a checkup. The Chrysler joined the family last July.

The sisters lived across the street from Gerth's mother in Tomah, Wis., and he had been asking them about the car for a couple years. They were reluctant to sell it — it had belonged to their mother — but chose Gerth to give it a new home because they knew he would treat it with the respect they felt for it.

While Gerth's cars have not required much in the way of restoration, Newby has spent around $800 in the 15 years he has been restoring the Ford. He and his family have personally removed every screw and bolt in the car and returned them in finer condition to their original places.

Newby was disappointed in the paint he was able to buy for the car. He wanted

Student Leader Raps Protest Acts

A member of the Schaumburg High School Student Council deplored what he called the "irrational tactics" some of his fellow students used recently during a student protest to gain support of an open campus.

"They did not even bother to get their facts straight before rushing into an action that brings unhappy consequences on the whole student body," said John Kalkwarf, chairman of the open lunch committee of the student council.

Kalkwarf, said a list of demands formulated by the protesting students showed they were not familiar with policy.

Kalkwarf said a student walkout last week set back the council's efforts to establish an open lunch period that would have allowed students to leave the building during the lunch hour.

UNDER THE OPEN lunch agreement students were to be provided with an outdoor eating area on the school's grounds. Following the walkout it was discovered by The Herald however, that any student whose parents send a note of permission must be allowed to go off campus during their lunch hour. Protesting students were demanding an open campus, meaning the right to leave the school grounds.

"I worked with school administrators since last summer on this issue and the open lunch was to start this week," said Kalkwarf. Since the walkout, action on open lunch has been postponed by school authorities.

The youth criticized the protestors for not attending council meetings. "If they had they would have known that members to student council are not selected because of their scholastic records," he said.

The only grade requirements for student council representatives are that they have passing grades in at least three subjects and sign a pledge of duty.

"I don't think that's too much to ask. If a student is mature enough to be in council and represent others he should be mature enough to achieve passing grades," said Kalkwarf.

"I think it's also important to note that the students themselves wrote in this stipulation, not the school authorities," he added.

The student protestors' demands were for an open campus, that representation to student council not be dependent on grades, lower priced lunches, soft drinks in the cafeteria, a more lax attendance policy, amnesty for protestors and a shorter school day.

"I hope those students that were involved will show up at committee meetings in the future to find out what's really going on in their school," he added.

THE CHAIRMAN said demands for a cheaper lunch were unrealistic since it is a break even program and the price pays for the food and service.

"As far as a shorter school day goes, we now have that privilege for students who work or take early classes," he said.

The majority of students in this school are willing to go through legitimate channels when we have a gripe and we resent being represented by a small group that has ruined some very hard work by members of student council," said Kalkwarf.

He urged any students who are interested to attend student council meetings and "find out the true story."

The Nation

Brimming with confidence that has him musing about the size of his potential mandate, President Nixon took his reelection campaign from New York to California. He spoke at 11,000-a-plate dinners in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

After weeks of hard campaigning on the road, Sen. George S. McGovern will take his case to the people through prime-time television, starting with nationwide broadcast of a half-hour biography Sunday night.

The government's index of leading economic indicators jumped sharply in August after two sluggish months, proving that the economic recovery is not about to run out of steam as some critics charged, the Commerce Department said.

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger flew back to the U.S. to report to President Nixon after completing two days of secret meetings with North Vietnamese delegates to the Vietnam peace talks.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, stumping in a cornfield near Galesburg, told farmers the Nixon administration has dramatically expanded farm markets but "won't be happy" until farmers' incomes match average nonfarm incomes.

The Senate Armed Services Committee has decided to investigate charges that Navy fliers — as well as Air Force pilots commanded by Lt. Gen. John D. LaVelle — bombed North Vietnam in violation of President Nixon's restrictions.

The State

Yellow tickets blossomed like dandelions on Chicago's streets as the men in blue turned motorists purple with uncommonly strict enforcement of traffic laws. The "ticket blitz" was a campaign by policemen to persuade Supt. James B. Conlisk to negotiate with police organizations on bargaining demands.

More than 130 motorists were jailed for traffic infractions.

Former Black Panther Verline Brewer testified that a black policeman threatened to "blow her head off" during a 1969 police raid in which two Panther leaders were killed.

The World

Three American war prisoners released by North Vietnam more than a week ago arrived in Moscow and said they were willing to meet privately with U.S. diplomats. They were in high spirits and apparently in good health.

The Philippine government announced

the closure of all casinos and enforcement of a broad anticrime code under prevailing martial law.

Bombers struck three times in Northern Ireland, but police foiled the fourth and most dangerous attack. One teenage gunman died in a hail of army bullets in Belfast.

The War

Communist rockets hit the Allied air base at Da Nang for the second time in five days, but the seven Soviet-built heavy missiles fell harmlessly in an open field, the U.S. command said. There were no casualties or damage.

Pollution Of State Waterways Is Diminishing

The director of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has released figures showing the pollution of Illinois Waterways has diminished in the past year. But while there was improvement, it was not widespread or universal.

In a speech in Springfield to the Illinois Wildlife Federation, William L. Blaser said every river basin in Illinois bettered EPA standards in supporting aquatic life.

He also said decreases in harmful fecal coliform, which usually appears in water as sewage treatment plant discharges, combined sewer overflows and feedlot runoff, has lessened the pollution problem.

Figures showed, however, a decrease at five recording stations in water's ability to support aquatic life and 10 improved conditions. Figures also showed 106 stations recorded a worsening in fecal coliform density as compared to 164 which recorded improvements.

RANKING OF THE Illinois river basin results were from laboratory tests on water taken at 618 sampling stations from July 1, 1971 to June 30, 1972.

The increase in sampling stations represents an increased concentration of efforts to upgrade water quality in Illinois and to better protect the health of Illinois citizens, Blaser said.

According to Daniel J. Goodwin, manager of the division of waterway pollution control's performance measurement section, the EPA has now reached the level of sampling stations necessary to insure effective monitoring of river basins in Illinois. Stations are located at accessible points on major rivers, on their tributaries and along Lake Michigan, he said.

In the testing results released by Blaser, rivers and streams in this area ranked relatively low in water pollution measurement, though elsewhere in Cook County — particularly within Chicago — the problems were very severe.

The stations recorded that Salt Creek in DuPage County at the Butterfield Road bridge southwest of Elmhurst, had the fourth worst density of fecal coliform in all the waterways tested.

Also, Wellers Ditch at the Des Plaines River had the seventh worst ranking in its ability to support aquatic life, according to the data.

Mobile Fraud Unit To Visit

A mobile unit from Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan's office is scheduled to visit three Northwest suburban communities next week to accept complaints from victims of non-violent crimes.

The mobile office, staffed by assistant state's attorneys, will be stationed in Wheeling, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect beginning Monday.

The unit, known as the Fraud and Consumer Complaint Mobile Office, operates county-wide and is open to all residents.

A spokesman for Hanrahan said, "If you feel you have been the victim of a fraud, please bring any proof, such as checks, contract papers, car titles or bills of sale for review by the assistant state's attorney."

The unit will be stationed Monday at the Wheeling Village Hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd., and Tuesday at the Jewel Tea parking lot, 122 S. Vall St., Arlington Heights.

Wednesday and Thursday the office will visit Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

Hours of operation at all locations are from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Call Building Ban Idea 'Impossible'

by NANCY CONGER

Impossible" and "illegal" were the reactions of the villages of Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates this week to a request from State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-3rd, for a ban on building.

Officials in both communities said they will write negative responses to Schlickman's Monday letter calling for a "ban on all construction within your corporate limits until a comprehensive, area-wide plan for flood control can be developed and implemented."

Mayor Robert O. Atcher of Schaumburg termed the request "impossible and irresponsible," and said implementation of such a plan "cannot be done in less than years."

In advising the Hoffman Estates Village Board, Village Atty. Edward Hofert went a step further and called the action Schlickman sought "illegal" as a violation of property rights.

"I advise the board such a ban would be promptly overturned by the Circuit Court," said Hofert.

Hofert predicted any village that enacted such a moratorium "could be sued for hundreds of thousands of dollars," with the basis for legal action being damage suits.

THE PROPERTY owner who was denied permission to build on his land would have the right to ask the village to purchase his land for a reasonable assessment of its worth, so he could buy property and build elsewhere, said Hofert.

Banning construction would be an abdication of governmental responsibility, suggested Hofert. "It's up to the government to solve problems. Government can't just say 'look, we can't solve problems so let's stop doing something,'" he explained.

"I can see a court giving you (a village) a small and certain amount of time within which you are to do certain things" that would correct the problem, said Hofert. But "just to have a blank moratorium on building, in essence is saying to me government is failing to do a job," he said.

Hofert feels there is another way to handle the problem, one that puts the cost and the responsibility where it belongs.

"May of these areas never should be built upon," Hofert said. But disallowing construction is for the benefit of the entire community, which could experience flooding if building were permitted. Since it benefits the community, the entire community should pay the cost, not just the property owner, suggested Hofert.

THE STATE should provide municipalities with the money to condemn such land and purchase it for fair market value, then dedicate it for some type of public use.

Hofert points out land that is prone to flooding is of less value than land which does not flood so that the governmental purchase price might be lower.

Atcher Gets Term On SBA Council

Mayor Robert Atcher of Schaumburg has been appointed to a two-year term on the Chicago District Advisory Council of the Small Business Administration (SBA).

The mayor will serve without pay on the council, which meets a minimum of two times per year. It is to assist the SBA in helping the eight million small businesses in this country, according to a letter Atcher received confirming his appointment.

Atcher announced the appointment at Tuesday's board meeting, when he also told of a forthcoming visit to Woodfield Mall by a group of prominent business and governmental officials from Germany. The delegation will visit the center Oct. 7, when Atcher will join them for lunch at the Regency Hyatt House, Rosemont. He will give a brief speech at the luncheon.

Among persons in the group will be executives of urban renewal agencies, educational institutions, technological organizations and banks.

Atcher also proclaimed Oct. 1-7 as Blind Activities Week, as requested by Schaumburg Lions Club. The Lions will sell candy to finance projects assisting blind persons during that week.

Cub Pack States Year's First Meet

The first meeting of the year of Cub Pack 296 will open at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 7 in St. Marcelline Church, 609 S. Spring-lough Rd., Schaumburg.

Future meetings will be the first Thursday of every month at the same time and place. Boys aged eight to 11 who wish to join may do so by attending the meetings or by contacting Preston Levy, a Webelos Scout leader, at 894-8261.

The pack has a new cubmaster this year, said Levy. Heading the scouts will be Maynard McGhay.

Among activities planned by the pack is a mini-golf outing, with tee-off time from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. Saturday at a miniature golf course on Rand Road near Elmhurst Road. Cost is 60 cents per person, with parents welcome.

"To fool around on a piecemeal approach and say we shouldn't issue building permits" is wrong, said Hofert. "Let's go further, and handle it across the board, and don't put villages in a position where they'll get hammered with damage suits," he added.

"I think the ideal of prohibiting building in flood areas is fine, but I don't think you can dodge the issue of who's going to pay for it. And I think the public's going to pay for it," he said.

ATCHER agreed that enactment of Schlickman's proposal would probably be ruled illegal, and he agreed Schlickman wrote his letter for political reasons, pointing out flooding is a highly emotional issue.

"I would hope that he (Schlickman) didn't mean what he said. He certainly should know that it is absolutely impossible to do what he requests. You cannot stop construction that way — it's like telling Commonwealth Edison or the four major auto makers to stop. We'd all starve within months," said Atcher.

The mayor then said Schlickman's proposal "is the same kind of irresponsible request."

A moratorium on construction in flood plains "would have been fine," said Atcher, but banning all construction in a village cannot be done.

Atcher also pointed out implementing a statewide plan would take many years. Just developing the Salt Creek plan required five years, and implementation has not yet started, he said.

State Eyes Opening Of Old Rte. 53

The state highway department is reviewing the possibility of opening old Rte. 53 to permit access to Alexian Brothers Medical Center, but in the meantime it suggests an alternate route to the hospital.

The review is in response to local requests the old route be reopened one-way, southbound, to shorten ambulance routes. George Longmeyer, Hoffman Estates village manager, told the village board Monday the state had closed the old route at the same time it opened new Rte. 53. Since the new route does not have access to Bleislerfield Road, on which the hospital is located, ambulances are going down to Thorndale Road and then cutting back, adding three to five minutes to their running time, said Longmeyer.

The manager said he had written the state asking for the reopening, and the Village of Schaumburg had agreed to make a similar request.

The suggestion already is under review, said Donald Totten, assistant regional director for the department.

TOTTEN SAID he did not know whether his department had received the letters yet, but he read an article on the village action in yesterday's Herald.

"Our first reaction is that it might be dangerous," said Totten, explaining some drivers could become confused and use the route both north and southbound, risking accidents.

However, the department will review the village' suggestion and other possible alternatives.

In the meantime, suggested Totten, it is not necessary to take the route Longmeyer described.

"I don't understand why they don't use Meacham or Roselle roads to Nerge, then to old Rte. 53 and then to Bleislerfield," said Totten. "It probably wouldn't take any longer to get that way than it would to go the old way," or via Higgins Road to old Rte. 53 to Bleislerfield, he said.

"I suggest this route as an alternate. I think it would be faster than going down to Thorndale," said Totten.

Recommend OK For Billboard

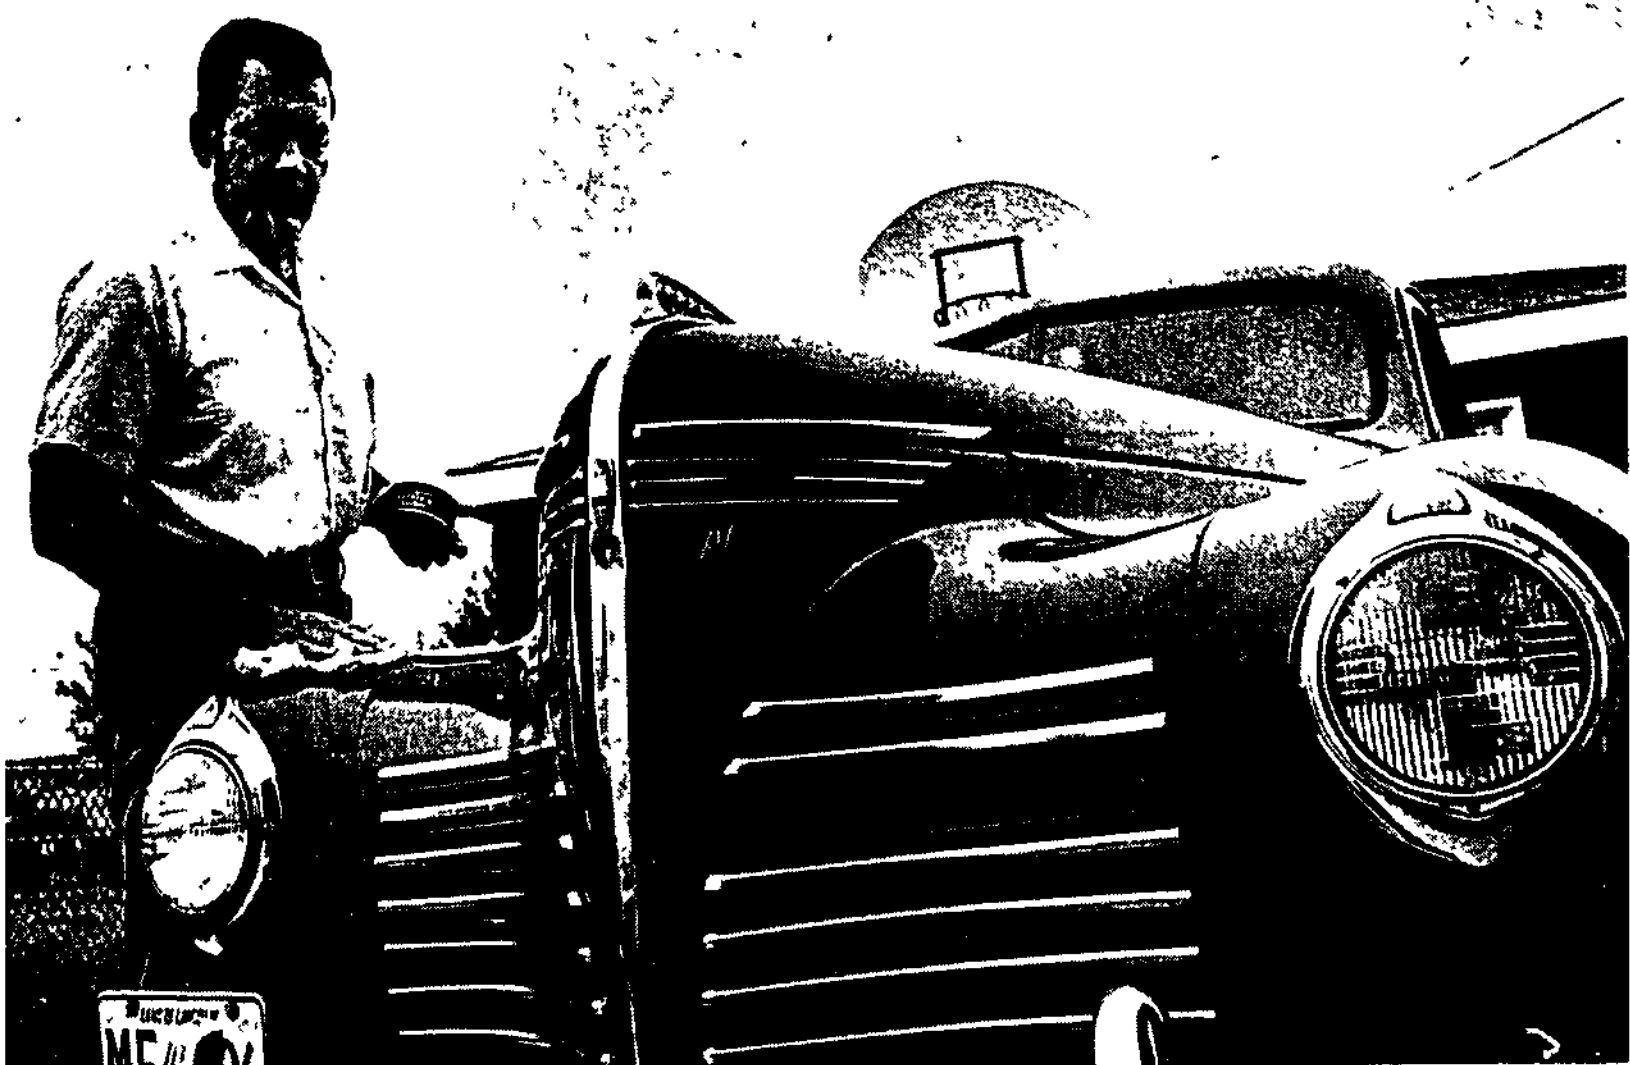

A temporary billboard sign advertising the proposed enclosed mall shopping center west of Barrington Square was recommended for approval Tuesday.

The Hoffman Estates Zoning Board of Appeals recommended approval for the sign which will be placed at the northwest corner of Governor's Lane and Higgins Road.

The single-faced sign will be 10 feet by 20 feet in size and will be 16 feet high.

As described by Jack Metzger, a representative of the Diamond Sign Co., the firm erecting the sign, the billboard will be green and black lettering on a white background. It will announce the Robert Hall Village to be located at the center, as well as the availability of additional stores for lease.

The proposed shopping center will use 25 acres of land and will be developed by Jack Jacobs and Co. The plan commission is presently reviewing the center's plans before recommending approval to the village board.

WAXING AN OLD coupe, with its swooping lines and high-shine paint, is pure joy for Robert Garth, 177 Maricopa Ln., Hoffman Estates. Gerth feels the greatest affection and affinity for 1932-41 vintage cars, the chariots of his youth, when a service station job was a ticket to heaven.

'They Just Don't Make 'Em Like They Used To'

ed to finish it in Washington Blue, the original color. But when he tried a sample on the car, it dried "about 15 shades lighter" than it should have.

Told by his dealer the variation was because of the primer coat he had first applied, he covered it with a different colored primer and tried again. When the color still didn't satisfy, he "chose Henry's favorite color," and painted the auto a spotless clear black, the color most associated with early Ford products.

While the number of Mercuries like Newby's still around is unknown, the auto connoisseur notes with pride "there are more than 300,000 Model A's still functioning and running in this country."

And Newby's car functions. As Mrs. Newby said, "We need it for transportation." It takes her to the grocery store, delivers the Newby teenagers to school and carries the whole family on a winter day when newer models have troubles just getting around.

THE MODEL A won a third place ribbon in July in an antique auto show in Green Bay, Wis. About 60 of the 367 entries won firsts. They were of the vintage and fragility that never are driven, he said. They are taken to meets across the country in trailers, protected, but never put to use.

"I want to enjoy using it," said Newby, who on occasion dresses to suit the auto's own era. Once his son dressed as a Keystone Cop to drive the car, and Newby donned a gorilla suit, ferociously attacking the "police" the length of a parade. Generally more conservative garb is his choice, and he now is eyeing a red striped blazer he thinks will complement the car.

Gerth's cars cover a lot of pavement too. He frequently drives the Plymouth to work, and over the past few weeks has been using the Chrysler, to become acquainted with its mechanical condition.

While he likes older cars also, and would like to own one someday, they are expensive. And Gerth has a special fondness for autos of the 1932-41 vintage.

"I like these cars because you can drive them. You get into the older ones, that would strictly be a show car. I really don't think I would enjoy it as much," said Gerth.

Perhaps Gerth's attachment for the 1940 variety auto stems from his youth, when he worked in a gas station. Cars from that approximate time taught him mechanics. The first car he owned was a 1941 Plymouth, only a year younger than his current car.

Both men also own modern cars, and use them as well. Gerth is amused to note the 1973 models have bumpers just like the oldsters did.

They also have strong ideas on how much time and how much money a man should devote to his old car interest. It is just a hobby, they emphasize. A family must be first, and the love of a car must not interfere with family activities, or family finances.

But in both men's homes, the hobby appears to contribute much to a mutual interest among family members, and to family pride and fun.

Newby would like to share his hobby with other antique auto buffs in the area, by forming a club. Persons interested in the sleek old beauties, whether they own any or not, are invited to contact him.

Mental Health Outpost To Be Relocated

The Schaumburg Township mental health counseling outpost will be relocated from its present office at The Buttery, 105 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg, to new quarters in the old Hoffman Estates Village Hall, 161 Illinois Blvd.

Schaumburg Township Mental Health Board members Tuesday approved relocation of the outpost and will recommend the action to the township board. They also accepted the transitional process agreed upon between the Northwest Mental Health Clinic (NMHC) and Elk Grove Village Community Services.

NMHC is no longer responsible for providing service to Schaumburg Township, since Elk Grove Community Services received a state grant and now accepts that responsibility.

Elk Grove services now staffs the outpost and the NMHA social worker who worked within the township has been reassigned to the Arlington Heights office of NMHA.

THE CURRENT NMHA case load of approximately 100 Schaumburg Township residents is still being served by NMHA through its Arlington Heights office, but future cases are being referred to Elk Grove.

The mental health board members are satisfied NMHA will continue to serve those patients that it presently is handling, while Elk Grove Services becomes established in the township.

Member Mark Knutson said the Hoffman Estates Woman's Club, which is handling leasing of the old village hall, was very receptive to the mental health board's request for space.

Elk Grove community services also approved the location. Although arrangements are tentative, present plans call for a private office and perhaps use of another room for group counseling.

REPRESENTATIVES of the mental health board report after attending an Elk Grove community counseling committee meeting that Elk Grove is working closely with NMHA for a smooth transition of services.

Mrs. Connie Schoeld, chairman of the mental health board, Knutson and Hoffman Estates resident Ed Gutman, a social worker, will serve as members of the Elk Grove committee. However, those appointments must come from the Elk Grove Village Board president.

Mrs. Carol Johnson will serve as an alternate member of the committee.

Member Les Arnold will represent the mental health board at Schaumburg Township meetings.

Members of the mental health board appeared satisfied channels of communication have been established between both agencies serving the township and their group.

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman (D-Arlington Heights) attended the meeting and said it is important for the various agencies that serve the area to work together.

She said she valued any input from the committee as a legislator, and commended its efforts as a mental health board.

Concret Form Falls; Men Hurt Slightly

Two Chicago men escaped serious injury when a concrete form fell on them while they were working Tuesday at the Metropolitan Sanitary District filtration plant under construction on Meacham Road, Schaumburg.

Sustaining contusions were Arne Bakkan, 45, of 2524 Lawndale, and Michael Reetz, 2018 N. Karlov. Bakkan also sustained a perforation of one thigh.

The men were taken to Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, by Schaumburg Fire Department ambulance. However, they left the hospital and went to Irving-Itasca Industrial Medical Clinic, Itasca, where they were treated and released.

Pilfering Can Drain Liquor Dealers

by DAVID MAISMANN

Perhaps the most costly item for liquor dealers is not rent or employee wages, but pilfering — shoplifting, theft by employees and merchandise taken by delivery and repair servicemen.

Pilferage was one topic discussed this week in workshops at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel sponsored by the Illinois Liquor Stores Association. The large turnout for the pilferage workshop indicates this is a major problem on the minds of liquor dealers.

George Berry, owner of four liquor stores in Quincy, told the workshop the amount of pilferage can mean the difference between profit and loss. He cited one liquor dealer who was forced out of business in two years because of customer and employee pilferage.

The actual amount of money lost is an elusive figure, however. Berry said weekly and monthly sales, specials and closeouts make it almost impossible to keep accurate inventory records. An elaborate inventory system could cost more than pilferage, he said.

Shoplifters are devious. Their techniques vary, keeping retailers on their toes. A group of people may come into a store and scatter, making it difficult for employees to watch all of them. Others will buy an item, then "browse" around the store, picking up other items as they go.

THEN THERE WAS the man and woman who came into one of Berry's stores and wandered into the seldom-watched food section. An employee detected sardines on their breath when they returned, and he later found three empty tins. The man was told to pay up, and he not only paid for the three empty tins, but for another half dozen in his pockets.

The dealers disagreed as to the best method of thwarting shoplifters. Some called monitoring devices "a joke, a fake." Others admitted many closed-circuit cameras are dummies, but insisted that the psychological effect is what counts.

Keeping the least tempting items near the door, small items behind the counter and employees on the floor were other suggestions. If shoplifters are caught, they should be prosecuted, not let go, others said.

All agreed that shoplifting cannot be eliminated. It can only be slowed by taking many careful measures, some of them costly.

Still, shoplifting is not the greatest pilferage threat in liquor stores. More liquor can be lost through the back door than the front, one dealer said.

"In general, store personnel and representatives are honest, but the fact still exists that pilferage has and will continue to exist within your store," Eddy Phillips, a suburban liquor dealer, told the workshop.

BERRY SAID it isn't unusual to find empty bottles in warehouses. He said an average of two employees are arrested annually for stealing, or for failure to ring up the proper amount on the cash register, then pocketing the difference. And delivery men have been known to take off liquor as well as deliver it, he said.

There may even be collusion between the warehouse man and the clerk checking in the delivery, Berry said. He said he discovered one example of this only because an employee was jealous because another employee had more liquor in his home than he did.

And there are honest mistakes as well as dishonest ones, Berry said. He estimated that .75 per cent of all sales are lost through mistakes at the cash register.

Phillips suggested a system of controls to stop employee pilferage. These included rotating employees who check in deliveries, keeping back doors locked, lighted and wired with an alarm and making it profitable for employees to be honest.

The consensus was that retailers must be tough. When even strict controls fail to stop all pilferage, don't hesitate to prosecute someone caught with the goods to the fullest extent of the law.

Hidden Civic Center Costs Irk Trustees

An unforeseen expense from civic center construction caused irritation among Schaumburg Village Board members this week to the point where they questioned the conduct of their architect, Al Eichsteadt of Eichsteadt Architects.

The board had just learned soil tests must be conducted on the excavated foundation area before footings can be erected at the building site. These tests were not included in Eichsteadt's estimated construction costs, or contracts with testing firms, said Trustee Herbert Aigner. And the village board was not previously informed the tests are necessary, he said.

The board authorized the firm that has conducted other soil tests at the site to do the additional testing, at an hourly charge rate, until Oct. 10, its next meeting date. Before then the village development committee, which is overseeing civic center construction, will discuss the matter with Eichsteadt. Aigner is committee chairman.

AIGNER AND Village Engineer Joe Zgonina explained the tests could not be delayed until after Oct. 10, since contractors will be ready to install footings by Monday.

In other action, the board granted final approval to annexation and zoning for a single-family home development planned by Campanelli Bros. and to zoning for Applegate Terrace, an apartment development with convenience shopping facilities.

Preliminary approval was given for sideyard variations for six homes built by Levitt and Sons Construction Co. which were misplaced on their lots and violated sideyard requirements. Levitt is to pay $101 per home to the village in the form of a voluntary contribution, or fine, for having violated the requirements.

Straw Vote By Organized Labor

Nixonites Not Dismayed

Supporters of President Nixon among organized labor in Illinois are undismayed by the straw vote at the AFL-CIO convention in Chicago yesterday, despite the fact that it went 864 to 90 in favor of Sen. George McGovern.

Members of the AFL-CIO who support President George Meany's earlier edict that the organization would maintain neutrality in the presidential election WERE irritated by the fact that McGovern backers were able to force the vote.

But they are satisfied that the large number of abstentions constitute a victory for Meany's position. There were some 2,250 delegates present at the convention, and more than half refused to cast ballots in the straw vote.

Nixonites are satisfied to interpret that as an indication that while the majority are not necessarily for their candidate, they are willing to abide by Meany's declaration that labor not support the Democratic challenger.

They also point to 115 ballots marked both for Nixon and McGovern. They counted only as spoiled ballots in the tally, but the Nixon people take them too as support for a neutral position.

"In view of the past history of overwhelming labor support for Democrats, this appears to me to be an overwhelming vote for neutrality," said Serrell Danfield of Des Plaines, Nixon's Illinois labor coordinator.

If the abstentions and Nixon votes mean what Nixon's labor backers hope it would mean they actually "won" that straw vote, 1,386 to 864.

ELK GROVE TOWNSHIP Republicans will hold their 12th annual dinner-dance on Friday Oct. 20, at the Camellor Restaurant of the Royal Coach Inn at South Elmhurst and Oakton roads, Mount Prospect.

STATE REP. Bradley M. Glass, R-Northfield, has been given an award by the Committee on Courts and Justice for his support of merit selection of judges.

Glass was chief sponsor of a constitutional amendment for appointment of judges to Illinois courts, which won in referendum in Cook County by 69,000 votes, but was defeated statewide.

Glass, candidate for the state Senate in the new 1st Legislative District, said he believed support for merit selection of judges is growing, however, and will eventually be passed.

President Nixon telegraphed greetings to the Northfield Township Republican Dinner Monday night, sending plugs for Governor Ogilvie, Sen. Charles Percy, Atty. Gen. William J. Scott and Sam Young, 10th Congressional District candidate for Congress.

Nixon added a special word for Young, declaring that he would "carry on the fine tradition of Republican representation in this area set by Don Rumsfeld and Phil Crane."

William B. Rose of Elk Grove Village, Democratic candidate for the state Senate in the new 3rd Legislative District, is promoting a program of cooperation between government agencies and private business to reduce welfare roles.

Rose cites a program he conducted at his Maltre d' restaurant eight years ago, which he said, took $1 million off Cook County welfare roles at a cost of $100,000.

Citing a certificate of commendation from the county Welfare Department, Rose says that 80 per cent of waiters, dishwashers, bus boys and cooks' helpers enrolled in four-week training courses in his restaurant were permanently removed from welfare.

Rose said his training program had 40 graduates each four weeks, and one entire class was hired by the Drake Hotel.

A TEA FOR Mrs. Virginia Macdonald, Republican candidate for the state legislature in the 3rd District, will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Ardell T. Everett, 754 S. Belmont Ln., Arlington Heights.

Also invited to attend are U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, Joan Anderson, candidate for trustee of the Cook County Metropolitan Sanitary District, and Lucy Reum, candidate for county recorder of deeds.

CLIFFORD E. LEVERENCE of Elgin, Democratic candidate for the state Senate in the new 2nd District, will concentrate on hand-shaking appearances at commuter stations during October. He has scheduled appearances from 7 to 8:30 a.m. at Palatine next Monday and Wednesday, Oct. 27; and at Barrington on Monday, Oct. 11. He will also appear at Palatine from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 3, and again at Barrington on the morning of election eve, Nov. 6.

Collecting Coins

by Oswald and Jacoby

An announcement from the office of Mrs. Mary Brooks, director of the Bureau of the Mint, makes the inclusion of an Eisenhower dollar in the 1973 Proof set official. The cupro-nickel proof dollars will be produced in addition to the 40 per cent silver proof, presently available on single orders, and the regular un-circulated Eisenhower dollar.

The clad proofs are being included in response to suggestions that all six current U.S. coins be represented in the proof coin sets.

Because of the time required to make assembly line adjustments and create new packaging, it was not possible to make the "silverless" like proof dollar available to the public before the start of the 1973 special coin program.

Proof coin production is almost entirely a hand operation. Each coin is struck twice and polished to a gem-like perfection. In many ways it will closely resemble a proof silver dollar. But because of its face value, its larger size and bulk, the clad proof will require additional handwork, necessitating a price increase of from $5.00 to $7.00 for each 1973 proof set.

MRS. BROOKS' announcement also expressed a desire to see both the Eisenhower dollar minted at Philadelphia and Denver, and the one-cent piece struck at the San Francisco Assay Office included in the regular 1973 un-circulated coin sets. Here again, certain problems in packaging must first be worked out.

Purchasers of the 1971 and 1972 proof dollars have complained about the size of the container making it difficult to store in safety deposit boxes. In response to this, mint experts are working on a smaller container for the 1973 coins while still maintaining its air-tight qualities.

The Mint circulates and accepts orders four times a year for special coins. These programs consist of the 40 per cent "like" silver dollars; the un-circulated dollar, plus each year's proof and un-circulated specimen sets. Not a bad public service record, especially as it is a self-sustaining service not operating on the taxpayer's dollar.

FAKES

Counterfeit coins can show up anytime.

So be careful.

The latest is the 1908 Gold Double-eagle cast in a gold alloy. This reduces its weight slightly, but any pieces suspect should be forwarded to the nearest United States Secret Service Office for verification.

The second miserable fake is actually an altered coin. Someone has created more than one of these freaks by using a genuine 1908 Gold Double-eagle and adding the mint lettering "S" lifted from a piece struck at the San Francisco Mint with a lower collector's value. Any expert numismatist will be able to identify this coin after a very few minutes examination.

Pages 276 thru 283 of the new "Encyclopedia of U.S. Coins," lists all of the known counterfeit and altered coins by date, composition and method of fabrication. This list will help the inexperienced money handlers distinguish between good and bad hard currency crossing their cash windows.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Here is a slam contract that looks almost impossible. It turns out to be makeable because West opens the deuce of clubs and South reads the lead as a singleton.

It still looks impossible, but watch what South can do after Analyzing the singleton lead and Reviewing the bidding with the opening three-heart call.

We rise with dummy's ace of clubs; play a trump to our ace and a second back to dummy's queen. Then we discard two clubs on the ace and king of hearts and ruff dummy's last heart.

We are back in our hand to cash our ace and king of diamonds and discard one of dummy's clubs.

Now we lead our deuce of diamonds. West has to play a higher diamond and we discard another club from dummy.

This isn't a sure-thing play because East might have another diamond left. In that case he would win and cash a club, but it turns out that East started with one spade, seven hearts, two diamonds and three clubs.

West is on lead and has to play another diamond. We discard dummy's last club; ruff in our hand and there are the rest of the tricks.

TIPS!

By Ann

READY TO PAINT?

First, think about what you don't want to paint! Cover floors and furniture with plastic drop cloths; use masking tape on window panes, baseboards and trim.

SURFACE PREPARATION

This is most important!
Make sure all walls are clean.
Fill all nail holes and cracks before you start. Your finished paint job will only be as good as the surface it covers!

A REAL "TROUBLE-SAVER"!

To avoid unnecessary cleanup problems, line your roller tray with aluminum foil before painting. When you've finished your work, just roll up the foil and throw away them!

DuBrow On TV

by Rick DuBrow

by RICK DuBROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Viewers gave strong ratings during the networks' recent premiere week to series using subject matter once considered taboo for the home screen.

For example, the No. 1 show in the national rankings for that week, ABC-TV's "Marcus Welby, M.D.," dealt with danger of multiple abortions.

"Goldfinger," ABC-TV's James Bond secret agent movie that was a clear winner in the ratings for the top 70 markets, actually got edged out by this "Welby" episode by a tenth of a point in the national statistics.

Third-ranked in these statistics for the week ending Sept. 17 was CBS-TV's "All In The Family," in which protagonist Archie Bunker went on television to reply to a station editorial favoring gun control.

SOME VIDEO figures think the late-night talk shows of Johnny Carson from Hollywood and Dick Cavett from New York are part of the reason for a new, national television awareness because of the behind-the-scenes wave lengths they generate to viewers from the major production center.

Oldtime favorites are still a solid draw, too, though, as even the contemporary Cavett knows. For example, he has Bob Hope lined up as his sole guest for an entire show. It was supposed to be on Friday, but has been postponed until next Wednesday.

In another direction, Cavett will be host Oct. 9 of the non-commercial video network's special called "VD Blues," which uses entertainment techniques to give information about venereal disease. The special includes a sketch by Jules Feiffer, and singer Arlo Guthrie will inroduce a previously unpublished song, "A Child of VD," written by his father, Woody Guthrie.

Television in general, however, is still a far cry from the frankness — and frequent excesses — of movies and the stage in handling intimate matters. And there is some goodness in that because video and its viewers, so often berated, may well be a sort of national ballast that reminds us most Americans will accept change, but at a moderate pace.

DESPITE UPCOMING shows that crack the taboo barrier even more, there has still been some sensitivity at the networks. As one case, when CBS-TV recently showed the five-part, Italian-made series "The Life of Leonardo Da Vinci," it changed a homosexuality trial to one concerning heresy — simply by altering the charges in the dubbing.

And delicate topics do indeed cause a variety of reactions from different television viewers. Take, as an instance, this passage from a McCall's magazine article about President Nixon:

"One night, while dalling his TV to find the baseball game, the President came upon 'All In The Family,' which he had never seen before. In the program Nixon watched, Archie's son-in-law, Mike, brought home a friend who seemed to be a homosexual and who repelled Archie. Mike responded by claiming that Archie's pal, a onetime football hero, was actually a homosexual. Archie found this ridiculous."

"But when he next saw him, the football player, to Archie's great horror, admits his homosexuality. Programs moral: Archie Bunker painfully learns tolerance. President Nixon's reaction: 'That was awful. It made a fool out of a good man.'" is grateful that he is playing more mature parts these days.

"I've been out of '77 Sunset Strip' for seven years. But no one seems to have forgotten that show or ..." Byrnes almost tripped up. The name of his character was on the tip of his tongue.

Jackie Gleason doesn't mind being confused with Ralph Cramden, Robert Stack takes pride in his association with Elliot Ness. But (blip) and Byrnes are mortal enemies.

"Most of my best work has been on the stage here in the United States," he said. "For instance I toured with 'Star Spangled Girl' for weeks. But that doesn't cut it for you. I'm looking for a movie like 'Champion' which made it for Kirk Douglas. Or the Robert Redford role in 'Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid.'"

"I haven't really done that one outstanding part with the right director to shift my career into high gear."

Must Television Be Meaningful?

BY DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — "Most TV is just an entertainment," Dick Crenna said, as though "entertainment" were a dirty word.

But what he meant was that that's all TV is, just an entertainment, nothing more meaningful. Maybe that's all it should be but Crenna obviously feels it should or could be more.

"All it really is, is soap opera in one form or another," he said. "The only thing that ever matters is the story and there never is any character development. And that's why this part is so unusual."

"This part" is his leading role in a TV-movie called "Footsteps," which will be shown on The New CBS Tuesday Night Movies Oct. 3. He plays an assistant football coach and a bad one — a rotten guy.

"I CONSIDER IT the best thing I've ever done, in any medium," Crenna says, and that covers a lot of ground. "For the first time on TV I'm playing a real, well-rounded character."

Crenna finds many faults in television the way it is now constituted. He thinks the fact that competition between networks is so fierce is absurd. He feels that certain network pels keep going despite bad shows — he singles out Dick Van Dyke as one of these — which is doing the medium no good.

Yet he'd do another series if the real thing came along.

"I've turned down countless shows," he says, "including the role of the father on The Waltons not long ago. But I'm getting tired of traveling. I'm leaving for Spain soon for another western so I'd do another series if the right thing showed up."

FOR HIS FINANCIAL sake, let's hope if he does it proves entertaining. I've been covering TV for 20 years or so. In that time I've probably seen 15 new pay-TV systems demonstrated. They were all going to be the saviors of the industry but they all pooped out after a while.

Now there's another one and maybe this will be it. We certainly could use a savior for TV (for lots of other things, too). And, theoretically, pay-TV is the answer. If you can get a few million people to pay for entertainment, you can afford to put on some pretty decent shows.

Anyhow, I went over to the offices of Optical Systems to watch its president, Geoffrey Nathanson, demonstrate the new system. It starts with a small black box on top of an ordinary TV set. Nathanson turned it on, switched to a certain channel and the screen showed a mess of garbage — all squiggly lines.

Then he inserted something that looked like a credit card in a slot in the box. That decoded the transmission and there was a championship fight.

THE SYSTEM is already starting in San Diego, where it's called Channel 100.

Installation is inexpensive — free, actually — because the company "piggy-backs" on existing cable-TV installations. Customers pay a $12 a year service fee and a $20 deposit for the box.

They order their credit card tickets in advance — for first-run movies, major sporting events, whatever — and they are also given a "Wild Card," in case they decide they want to watch something at the last minute. They can call up and are told how to punch holes in the Wild Card so it will decide the transmission.

In San Diego, they are starting with a program of movies — new ones and classic ones. A season ticket — the season is 13 weeks — costs $1.50 per week. Or you can buy admission to one particular film for $2. The Wild Card costs $3.

Edd (Blip) Byrnes Grows Up

by VERNON SCOTT

UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It was like talking to a man with an owl perched on his head, yet taking no notice nor making any mention of the bird.

One must assume this delicate balance when interviewing Edd Byrnes who once starred as (blip) on the "77 Sunset Strip" television series. The (blip) represents the character he played.

Not only does Edd avoid use of the name which made him famous, he frowns on persons who do.

It becomes a game, then, to converse with the man. He silently dares you to refer to him by the video moniker. You, in turn, wait for him to stumble over it.

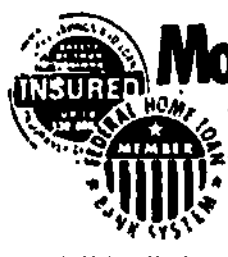

Byrnes is co-starring in "Wicked, Wicked" at MGM with such overpowering performers as Tiffany Bolling, David Bailey, Randolph Roberts, Madeleine Sherwood and Dinno McBain.

Byrnes still wears a youthful look but

The Doctor Says

Advice More Valuable From Professionals

by LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I hope you can help me regain my peace of mind and perhaps a 20-year friendship of an elderly person. A doctor prescribed glasses for her but she couldn't see through them. Rather than discussing it with her physician, she asked him for an appointment with an eye doctor. The eye doctor put drops in her eyes and ever since then she has "a gold screen" over everything she sees. A nurse told her that doctors never put drops in an elderly person's eyes as the muscles do not react and that the "gold screen" condition would be with her for the rest of her days.

My friend is 82 with poor circulation. I have tried to help her but now she's quite vocal in denouncing me for recommending that she see the eye doctor. I feel very hurt that this has happened to her and she is suddenly very disgruntled and has had almost a complete change in her personality. Any help you can give will be deeply appreciated.

Dear Reader — The biggest problem here is getting advice from people who don't know what they are talking about.

The proper place to get medical advice is from a doctor. In the attachment with your letter it is clear that the lady has cataracts and macular degeneration. Cataracts are the gradual change in the clear lens of the eye so that it no longer transmits light properly and thereby obstructs vision. This is a common change in later years.

Degeneration of the macula means degeneration of the small spot right in the center of the back of the eye where the light rays focus to form an image. The back part of the eye really acts like a photographic screen but the most sensitive area for receiving visual images is in this one spot at the back of the eye.

The drops the doctor used had nothing to do with either one of these conditions.

The report you attached states he used them to examine her eyes properly. The first doctor, according to the report, knew the lady's problem and only gave her glasses hoping to get the best possible benefit in the face of a difficult situation. The "gold screen" effect is undoubtedly related to the cataracts and the changes in the retinal screen and has nothing to do with the drops the doctor used to dilate her eyes so that he could examine them properly.

There is still another problem you will have to face. With evidence of circulatory changes and at her age, your friend probably has some personality changes related to poor circulation to the brain. When this occurs in older people, there is often a marked change in personality.

Wives are greatly distressed when their elderly husbands change from gentle, considerate individuals to crude, thoughtless individuals. Likewise, friendly, outgoing women can change to disgruntled, suspicious personalities.

These are manifestations of illness and should be so regarded. I'd like to repeat that the biggest problem here is failure to talk to the doctor and relying on uninformed individuals for an expert opinion. The lady you identified as a nurse used poor judgment if she made the remarks you report. Your friend will continue to need a good eye doctor.

McGovern Is Behind What's His Name

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A 16-state poll published this week gave George McGovern only 23 per cent of the vote, compared to 28 per cent a month ago.

Whereupon I called up Dr. Luigi V. Populi, the noted political analyst, and asked why the Democratic presidential candidate had been losing ground in the public opinion surveys.

"McGovern has an identity problem," Populi replied.

"Oh, come now," I protested. "Maybe

Dick West

McGovern wasn't too well known when the 1972 campaign began back in 1968. But surely even the average voter recognizes his name and face by this time."

"I didn't say McGovern's problem was his own identity. The problem is his opponent's identity."

"For campaign organization purposes, McGovern's opponent is being identified simply as 'the President' rather than by his surname, which as I recall is Dixon, or Nixon, or something like that."

I SAID, "What do the Democrats mean when they talk about 'smoking out Nixon'?"

"That's the name I was trying to think of — Nixon!" Populi cried. "He is the man McGovern would like to run against."

"Over the year, Nixon has picked up a lot of political enemies and could be a vulnerable target. But he refuses to come out and campaign."

"Nixon has been sticking close to the White House, emerging only for trips to Peking, Moscow and John Connally's ranch."

"With Nixon unavailable, McGovern has no choice but to run against the President. And every time he attacks his opponent, he loses a few more votes."

"Running against THE President, as compared to running against Nixon, or even President Nixon, is tantamount to running against Sara Lee cupcakes."

"If I may paraphrase the familiar radio-TV jingle, 'Everybody doesn't like some politician, but nobody doesn't like the presidency.'"

I said, "You sang that beautifully. Is there any way McGovern can cope with his identity crisis?"

Populi shook his head. "McGovern's only chance is for Nixon to come out of political retirement and make it a three-way race."

Stamp Will Honor Osteopaths

by BERNADINE M. RECHNER

An 8-cent U.S. stamp commemorating osteopathic medicine will be issued Oct. 9 in Miami, coinciding with the American Osteopathic Association's convention there.

The issue is another on the "partners in health" theme and will be followed, in November, by a stamp honoring pharmacy. Earlier stamps saluted doctors, dental health and nurses. A postcard honored American hospitals.

Dr. Andrew Still founded osteopathy during the Civil War when he became dissatisfied with medical methods of the day. In 1892, he organized the first college for the new treatment technique at Kirksville, Mo.

The new stamp was designed by V. Jack Rutherford of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing who is making his debut as a stamp designer. At 28, Rutherford is among the youngest artists whose work has appeared on U.S. postal issues.

Rutherford's two overlapping figures symbolize mankind. Their erect stance implies the quest for health.

Collector's desiring first day cancellations should address their requests to Osteopathic Medicine Stamp, Postmaster, Miami, Florida 33101.

A. L. LENZ of Alroy Stamps, Roselle, tells us the Woodfield Stamp Bourse will move in November to the Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn, 3405 Algonquin Rd., at the junction of I-90 and I-55 and I-55. Lenz, 62, due to a change in policy of the shopping center management. The bourse is open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m., admission free, the first Saturday of every month. Mark your calendar and remember to move with the Woodfield Bourse Nov. 4.

Lenz also tells us the Twinbrook Stamp Club meets at 7:30 p.m. the second and fourth Monday of every month at the Hoffman Estates Park District office, 650 W. Higgins Rd.

Now that the new television season has premiered, it looks like a good year to devote those long winter evenings to your stamp collection! Try a stamp club — their activities are informative and interesting as well.

WITH CHRISTMAS right around the corner, a suggestion for all those young cousins, nieces and nephews might be a stamp album, with a few stamps and hinges of course. (Chances are your own kids got their first album at age 2... from personal experience, that's a mite too young. A good age seems to be eight or nine.) Your stamp dealer can help you with an appropriate selection.

THE MAIL ORDER stamp, issued yesterday in Chicago, carries a 3/8 inch strip of phosphor rather than the standard full coating. The phosphor tag, visible only under ultraviolet light, is used to facilitate automatic cancelling of the stamp.

The new technique is expected to present a better cancelling surface for stamps produced on the Andreotti press, reduce dulling of the perforation pins and cut the cost, by reducing the amount, of the high-priced phosphorus.

New 8-Cent Stamp Marks 75th Year For PTAs

An 8-cent U.S. postage stamp honoring the 75th anniversary of the Parent-Teacher Association was issued this month and is now available in local post offices.

Mrs. Lloyd T. Millard, publicity chairman for the Schaumburg Area Council of PTAs, said the stamp "is a timely tribute to the PTA. It also is a heartening reminder to all Americans of the importance of the PTA's efforts in helping youth and improving our whole natural and cultural environment."

The stamp, a black slateboard on a bright yellow background, has PTA, the dates 1897-1972 and the 8-cent price chalk-printed on the blackboard.

HONORING PTA'S 75th anniversary, this stamp now is available in local post offices. Issued this month, it recognizes PTA work for schools and youth.

Britain Is An Economic Volcano

by TOM A. CULLEN

LONDON — "In London you can still walk your dog at night without fear of being mugged. There is still no teen-age drug problem here as compared to the States, and there is no Vietnam war."

"On the other hand, there is Northern Ireland. You get a sickening feeling every morning when you tune in the news and hear how many in Belfast have been killed or mutilated during the night in the latest IRA bomb outrages."

"There's no escaping Northern Ireland. It about evens the score as far as comparing urban violence in Britain and America is concerned."

These are the reactions of a Boston-born businessman who has been representing an American computer firm here for the past six years. They are typical of those held by other American expatriates I have talked to in summing up the pleasures and miseries of living in Britain in 1972.

STATISTICS CONCERNING the number of Americans now living in Britain are hard to come by, as the majority does not register with the U.S. embassy. There are more than 100,000, according to the best estimates available.

Most are here either to earn their livings or because they are married to British nationals, according to an embassy official I talked to. "There are very few lotuseaters among them," he says. The hippies touch down briefly in Piccadilly Circus, but move on to Amsterdam or Katmandu, where the pot flows freely."

Over half of the Americans here are service personnel (Army, Navy and Air Force) and their families, who are scattered in East Anglia, where the 3rd Air Force bases are located, or are stuck in the boondocks of Holy Loch, Scotland, where there is a Polaris submarine base.

AMERICAN SERVICE personnel tend to be clannish, although there are sporadic attempts to break out of their enclaves by joining local darts teams or bell-ringing societies, where they are on a limited basis with the natives.

The 40,000 American civilians who live in London, on the other hand, tend to avoid each other and to have more British friends than American.

Although she and her husband have been living in London for the past nine years, attractive, blonde Susan Blackburn only recently became aware of her fellow expatriates when she got active in the "Americans for McGovern" campaign. (She was one of two nonvoting delegates sent from London to the Democratic convention in Miami.)

Susan's husband is in market research and is an accomplished musician. They have two children — a boy aged 11 and a girl 8 — who attend an English school, which Susan finds disappointing by American standards.

What does Susan like best about British life? "Going to concerts," she says. "London has five symphony orchestras, and the tickets are ridiculously cheap."

IF ASKED TO name the single feature of British life which appeals to them most, most Americans would probably choose the National Health Service. Not many come here for free false teeth and spectacles. The majority who are permanently resident either pay health insurance contributions or pay for private medical care outside the socialized medicine setup.

Nevertheless, the National Health Service is freely available to any American who falls ill, even if he arrived in Britain only the night before, and no questions are asked.

The wife of an American university professor whom I know had her baby delivered free while she and her husband were spending a year of sabbatical leave here. Inasmuch as she was in her late 30s and this was a first pregnancy, she was sent to London's University College Hospital, where she received special care, and it didn't cost a cent. "I have nothing but praise for the doctors, nurses, and hospital standards, although I feel guilty about availing myself of the free service," she says.

BUT IN OTHER economic respects, American residents sometimes get the feeling that they are sitting on a volcano, for this country has the highest rate of inflation in Europe, an unenviable achievement.

"My food bills have gone up about a third during the past year," says Joyce Buck, a Chicago-born brunette, whose husband is film producer Jules Buck (his latest, "The Ruling Class" starring Peter O'Toole).

Nevertheless, most staples are still cheaper in Britain than in the States, according to Joyce, who cites such items as milk, butter, eggs, bread, rice and tea. "Steak costs about as much here as in the States. Fruit and vegetables are more expensive, mainly because they are imported."

London's parks and green spaces are what impress Lionel Weinraub, a Chicago rare book dealer, and his wife, who come here every other year for a combined buying trip and vacation. "I come to London because I can usually rent a place with a garden during my stay here," says Weinraub. "I come here to get restored."

"The march of the highrise buildings is well underway," says Lionel. "The Victorian gin mills with their marvelous cut-glass mirrors are being converted into American-style cocktail bars, and historic theaters are due to be demolished to make way for office blocks."

ALSO, WEST CENTRAL London now has a bad air pollution problem.

"British motorcar manufacturers" Weinraub says, "need a Ralph Nader to put them straight, for they are doing nothing to abate exhaust fumes by introducing the devices that are becoming standard for U.S. cars."

Grousing is not confined to American residents and visitors, but Londoners themselves are loud in their complaints about the environment, which is interpreted as a sign that they still care. Dr. Samuel Johnson summed it all up when he observed: "When a man is tired of London, he is tired of life."

MUSIC FOR YOUR CHILD?

LIKE A LOT OF GROWN-UPS IF CHILDREN ACHIEVE SOMETHING THEY'RE HAPPY

A child learns to walk all the doors around the house. He ties his shoelaces for the first time, or learns to tell time . . . completes his first successful ride around the block on a two wheel bike.

What has he done? He has advanced himself by learning to do something new, and everytime this occurs he is excited. He's happy because he has achieved something.

This is basically what motivates all of us as adults. Only we don't experience new opportunities for advancement and satisfaction of achievement with nearly the frequency of a child. Nor do we need quite as often the reward of recognition for our achievements to motivate us toward further gainful activity.

BUT THE CHILD'S WHOLE EMOTIONAL AND MENTAL DEVELOPMENT THRIVES ON RECOGNITION. THE RIGHT KIND OF RECOGNITION.

Providing the framework for the right kind of recognition is something every parent can do to nurture this sense of achievement so important to the child's confidence and happiness.

Self made music will give your child this sense of achievement and well-being, and it has these 3 other important built-in advantages as well:

1. Instrumental music is the single best subject available for training the mind to concentrate, according to UCLA studies, which in turn is the most critical variable in academic learning ability.
2. It is the best subject available to stimulate general academic development. An Oxford University study shows that the vast majority of student scholarships are won by student musicians.
3. Instrumental music is a most exacting science. It is the only academic subject which requires simultaneous use of the aural, visual and tactile senses. It teaches and requires deep concentration and maximum cooperation. It is at one and the same time the most demanding and the most loved of academic subjects.

Insure your child these scholastic advantages of music study by enrolling in an instrumental music program at Shuey's.

Shuey's also rents and sells the World's best known musical instruments and accessories including pianos, organs, band and orchestral instruments, guitars, sheet music, and accessories, thereby assuring you of the proper choice of instrument to facilitate learning. You are also secure with our traditional guarantee: Both you and we must be pleased with your choice of instrument.

TRAINED EDUCATORS COMMAND ATTENTION

A COMPREHENSIVE PROGRAM GUARANTEES SUCCESS

A comprehensive learning program is planned for your child which includes monthly progress reports to you. Methods use your child's natural interest in music as a basic resource tool to expand the child's total natural ability. Beside creating a fine learning environment our programs make it possible to offer a curriculum which includes the needed theory and structure of music which is often lacking in music "lessons," and because we do not enroll students on the haphazard "lesson" basis we are able to guarantee success in music for your child, for when you follow our directions, and after the first month of study is completed you are not completely satisfied every penny of tuition paid will be returned.

HAPPINESS IS DIPLOMA TIME

"MUSIC RIGHTLY TAUGHT IS THE BEST MIND TRAINER ON THE LIST."

according to former Harvard President Dr. Charles Eliot. Insure that your child is rightly taught in music by enrolling in one of the programs here. If you are making about putting off music training, consider that soon it will be too late, forever. And consider also that instrumental music is the only academic subject which is a necessity for mind training and also socially rewarding. . . . there are no bench warmers in music. You may enroll now by telephone, a convenient weekly time will be reserved for your child's exclusive use. Call 253-6303.

Shuey's Exclusive And Guaranteed Six Month Private Music Course Will Be Included Free With Purchases Made Before September 30th.

CHILDREN ARE ALWAYS LEARNING

At Shuey's our teacher's function is to bring into your child's life the music which is already in the child's heart. With their musical achievements our students are motivated to learn more both in music and outside of music, for they learn how to utilize a multitude of abilities simultaneously to produce maximum creative potential.

Israel Has A Special Attraction

by ED DeFONTAINE

HAIFA, Israel — 'Aliya' is the Hebrew word for the return of Jews to their homeland in Israel and some of that emigration from the United States has come in the form of a miniature brain drain.

Where Israelis used to worry about losing some of their best scientists to the high bidding of U.S. industry, there's pride in the fact that Israel is now attracting Jewish Americans to responsible positions.

One of the places where this limited scientific and educational emigration from the United States can be sampled is Israel's Technion, the technical university high on the Carmel Hills of Haifa.

Mathematician Prof. Alfred Inselberg came to Israel last year from the University of Southern California and described his decision as positive not negative.

"I don't think of it in terms of having left the United States, but rather in terms of having come to Israel. In fact, one of the most difficult parts of being in Israel is the thought that I've left the United States which I was very fond of. And it was not a leaving because I was discontent, but perhaps unconsciously it was a search for something different."

A YOUNGER mathematician, Dr. Frederick Bloom, an alumnus of Cornell at Ithaca, N.Y., said his reason was simple:

"I decided to leave after sending out three hundred odd letters for positions in the States, and not being able to find anything — not only at universities where I would be able to continue my work (I was just finishing my doctorate) but even at junior colleges and, surprisingly enough, at high schools."

The decision of American Jews to leave the United States is only part of the story behind the emigration to Israel. Why they stay and what they hope to accomplish is part of a more far reaching insight into the western 'Aliya.' Religion is not always prominent in that decision. The small sampling at Technion did not claim great religious observance, although the very surroundings in Israel increase their feeling of Jewishness.

Inselberg said he's a younger man because of his move to Israel where the adventure of a new country is invigorating.

"I think from the social point of view it's an incredible experiment. You throw people from over a hundred different cultures together — not that you hope to form a homogeneous society (there's not the slightest hope of that in Israel — and perhaps it's just as well) but the fact remains that the people do find a way of living together. And the amazing thing is that the fact that they are all Jews doesn't really mean that much, in their every day existence point of view."

DR. CAROLE RUBIN, 26, and her husband came to Israel on the wave of unemployment in the U.S. aerospace industry. Once here, she said, it's the people of Israel who make you stay.

"The people in Israel are sensitive, they're very anxious to help, they're kind, they're just wonderful people. We see this every day, and it gives us great pleasure to live here and great pride."

Jews from anywhere who emigrate to Israel usually find themselves in the same boat, studying the nation's language if they want to make their way in Israel. Hebrew has only about a third of the vocabulary of English and the grammar is simpler. But the language has a different base and that makes it difficult.

However, the language problem is not the only obstacle which new immigrants face. Americans sometimes become infuriated at the bureaucracy which seems to be ingrained in Israeli officialdom. Cashing even a traveler's check takes more time than behind the Iron Curtain. Israeli driving habits make it hard to believe that everyone has to go to driving school to get a license.

Housing prices have doubled within a year and prices in the chic restaurants, which really are not so chic, surpass European capitals and compare with New York. Chopped liver, some cold tongue, kosher pickles, a beer and a cup of coffee in the most modest family run establishment is $3.

TAXES ARE horrendous, money scandals in state industries pop up with embarrassing frequency. Only now is big time tax evasion under attack. One educator said high schools here are atrocious and you'd think that ecology did not have a Hebrew name until a short time ago. Nevertheless, there's a desire on the part of the American Jews to stay in Israel if only to make it better.

But, it's one thing to decide to stay and another to encourage others to join you. "We have questions from our family," says Carol Rubin. "My husband is one of five brothers, and they write to ask about housing, and various aspects of immigration. But it's a very big responsibility to tell somebody that we think it's wonderful, and you'll think it's wonderful. We tell them the things we like about it, and we tell them the problems, and we hope they'll make a trip here and decide on their own."

The way to make a small fortune in Israel, as a joke goes, is to bring a big fortune with you. It's really no joke because the low wages, high taxes, galloping property inflation, crippling cost of defense and prices in general make some western immigrants wonder if they can afford the luxury of living in the Jewish state. Dr. Allen Reiter, 35, came to Israel from Lockheed Aircraft Corp. in 1969.

HE CAME with eyes open under no impression that he'd improve his professional position. He's satisfied with the work he's doing in the Department of Computer Sciences at Technion University, but even so his decision to stay is qualified.

"This means going back to the United States periodically, primarily to renew the professional contacts, partially to earn some money. No one in Israel can really afford to live on Israeli salaries. I expect I'll have to be in the United States approximately one year out of every four or every five to survive, both economically and professionally. Within that framework we're living in Israel permanently."

There are always the kibbutzim for the people who want to stay in Israel and don't have any other means, but the communal life won't attract some of the people Israel needs most. Being a Jew has often meant hardship, but it has seldom been more expensive than in Israel today.

From lands less fortunate than America, emigration will continue to supply the immigrants which Israel needs and whose simpler requirements it can meet. As strong as the attraction of Israel might be, American Jews are not undating the Jewish state.

Many Say Living Is More 'Civilized' In France

by HAROLD SHEEHAN

LOUVECIENNES, France — One Sunday a couple of months ago we heard a shattering crash in the stairwell of our apartment building. I thought the wind had slammed a door shut; we found out later that burglars had smashed into the apartment of the widow downstairs and had taken a clock and a few small items.

"Like being back in New York," I thought. A few years ago my wife, Yvonne, had lost some jewelry in a similar break-in on the East Side of Manhattan. At that time a detective dropped by for 10 minutes and told her she was lucky she wasn't hurt. Case filed.

However, the French handled matters differently. Several gendarmes turned out for the event, including a photographer. An Inquest was held on the scene which lasted most of the day, conducted by an officer dressed like an admiral.

I don't think they ever arrested anybody, but that's not the point. The difference between our experience in New York and in France is that the victim here gets his money's worth.

WHEN AMERICAN expatriates get together the complaints and consolations of life in France usually break down as follows:

—Television programming (two channels only) is the worst in Europe if not the entire world. Plus you're taxed $30 per year per set.

—Public transportation can actually be a pleasure. In Paris the 3,700 buses, 3,600 subway cars and 550 trains operate with extraordinary precision and a fair degree of comfort. (The entire system is coordinated by an American computer).

—Health care is among the most complete in Europe, with the government reimbursing you for practically everything from surgery to cough syrup.

—The telephone system is on a par with Honduras. It has been demonstrated that it is actually faster to drive 13 miles for a face-to-face conversation rather than trying to complete a phone call to certain Paris exchanges during work hours.

—The schools, in the lower grades at least, are excellent. Our son, Andre, actually started nursery school at age 2½, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. with a government-guaranteed five-course lunch.

—For retired or working Americans whose income is pegged to dollars the past year has been an ordeal. A combination of more than 5 per cent French inflation plus just under 20 per cent dollar devaluation has acted like a nutcracker, squeezing out an incredible 25 per cent of their income since last year at this time.

—Some aspects of life cannot be measured. Every American I have talked to here believes that the living is more civilized, the pace more agreeable and the cities and countryside of France richer, cleaner and less polluted by noise, billboards and industrial waste than back home.

THE 30,000 AMERICAN residents of France tend to cluster. The American Chamber of Commerce in Paris was founded 80 years ago. You can be born in the American Hospital, watch football films at the American Club and even be buried in an exclusively American cemetery.

Virtually all working Americans have one thing in common: They depend one way or another on the U.S. government, U.S. corporations or their French subsidiaries for their income.

Vaughn Roberts, 34, typifies the new international career executive. He is European manager of Welco and Autotrol divisions of Electronic Assistance Corp. of Cincinnati and Denver.

Roberts, son of an American mother and English father, opted 15 years ago for American citizenship and life, but turned around two years ago to live permanently in Paris.

"I served with the Army on the West Coast, and then worked at General Dynamics in California on the missile programs," explained Roberts.

"I INTENDED to stay, because California is great for a young man."

"I found, however, that in the long run there was a lack of direction, and its unstable values are unattractive to live by. I felt battered. My points of reference and my values simply did not match up to life back there."

"I think Europeans get three times as much living out of life as Americans. The pace that Americans impose on themselves is a replacement for real living. In the United States one builds one's life on nothing at all. Look at the great importance of gaining credit."

Rains Produced Something Good

When the flood waters have receded this summer from the Northwest suburbs, there's been something positive found in the water-soaked ruins.

Indeed, that positive force has been the willingness of persons to work together to ease the flooding threat which has become a plague in the summer of '72.

There are, of course, the many, many persons who worked together when the ruin was falling, the waters rising and the basements flooding.

Many, many persons went out of their way to help their neighbors in times of crisis. To the neighbors that were aided, that assistance is not quickly forgotten.

We single out, however, an individual, Tom Hamilton, for his efforts since the late 1960s to organize the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Plan, which now appears close to reality. And another salute goes out to the cooperation shown recently between the villages of Wheeling and Buffalo Grove in doing something about the flooding problem on Buffalo Creek.

Hamilton has been the moving force between the Salt Creek project, which is going to result in a giant retention basin in the Ned Busse Woods in Elk Grove Village. That basin has been suggested as one cure to flooding along Salt Creek.

To develop such a project, Hamilton has been active in the Upper Salt Creek steering committee. To obtain this summer from the Northwest suburbs, there's been something positive found in the water-soaked ruins.

We admire his dedication to a single goal — a goal which we are much closer to reaching, perhaps partially as the result of this summer's flooding and the pressures of a political year.

Another hopeful sign was a recent meeting between officials of Wheeling and Buffalo Grove — a meeting which led to agreement to explore further the possibility of creating a special subdistrict to fight flooding.

The problem's Buffalo Creek, which meanders from Lake Zurich through the two communities. A special subdistrict under the soil conservation district could be created by referendum — and it could lead to the construction of a retention basin to slow flooding.

There's a belief today that, when the flood waters recede, so will interest in solving flooding problems. However, the severity of this summer's flood, we hope, will spark action on a permanent basis to contain torrential rains when they occur.

The actions of Tom Hamilton and of the officials of Buffalo Grove and Wheeling give us cause for optimism that flooding won't be one problem to be forgotten

Fence Post Letters-To The Editor

'Is FHA 235 A Solution?'

In the headlines of your Sept. 15 paper, you had an article on the fight between the Arlington Heights residents and Jem Enterprises concerning a low-income housing project (apartment, I presume). In this matter, I can side against both of them. I've worked for an apartment complex of low and middle income class in the Elgin area. There were whites, Puerto Ricans, Negroes, and what have you. Most of these citizens were families and lived like normal people. But, you also had your troublemakers, and no matter how hard you screened them for the apartment, there was a handful to ruin it for the rest. Fires were being started, break-ins, and stolen cars reported, and just plain trouble all around. Due to this fact, this complex received a bad reputation, not matter how hard they tried to distinguish the problem.

No way am I a racist, but this cannot be solved by grouping people, a large quantity, of mixed races together, unless they do want to live together, and this you will find almost only in the mature adult class.

But these people also need a place to live. The rent in this area is quite out of hand and it is about time that we started doing something about it, and this complex is one way of doing it.

What if Jem Enterprises decided on a low-income housing on an FHA 235 basis? Granted, there will be mixed races, but if these people who really wanted a place to live bought a house under this plan, and the construction is we built, not too many problems would arise, and it would be like any other neighborhood.

I wish people would begin to understand the need for this type of housing. As long as they are sitting in their $50,000 house and their bills are being paid, why in the hell worry about a family who can't even afford to pay their monthly rent? People should have it as good as us, but isn't that Utopia?

Roland Meyer Criticized

Several articles which have appeared in your paper in recent weeks have really intrigued me. One or more of these articles have made references to Rolling Meadows officials who were formerly employed in Oak Park (the police chief, the new public works director). And don't I recall that the new police cars were purchased from Oak Park Ford? What's the connection? Who's the Oak Parker who carries so much weight with our city fathers?

I am also reading with interest your articles on Saint Roland Meyer, and one of his statements seems terribly out-of-place for a man who assumes himself to be a great and fair leader. He said that if public works employees who are forced to become part-time firemen don't like the situation, they can get a job somewhere else. It would seem that if these men wanted to be firemen, they would have applied for work with the Fire Department, not Public Works. As I understand it, firefighting carries with it a decided risk; it hardly seems just that men who did not choose to take that risk should be forced to do so. I am relatively certain that their salaries will not be doubled in accordance with the "double jobs" they are going to be expected to perform.

Even though Roland Meyer feels he is The Beloved Great White Father of Rolling Meadows, I know more than just a few people who wouldn't mind seeing him take a long walk off a short pier.

Schmitz Coverage Is Criticized

President Nixon, because of his more "conservative" appeal, is more popularly supported in the 1972 Presidential election than the "liberal" Senator McGovern. I question whether those who vote for Nixon realize where he stands on issues vital to the security of the United States. The following is a list of policies and programs supported by the incumbent candidate Nixon in the past four years:

Creation of a guaranteed annual income; federal minimum-wage legislation; federal food-stamp program; abolition of the death penalty; peaceful coexistence; socialized medicine; disarmament; repeal of the Internal Security legislation aimed against Communism; the 18-year old vote; federal civil rights legislation; reapportionment of electoral districts on the basis of population only; federal aid to education; federal child-care centers; ratification of the 1963 nuclear test-ban treaty; termination of American sovereignty in the Panama Canal Zone; increased agricultural and commercial trade with Communist nations; ratification of the Genocide Convention; and admission of Communist China into the United Nations.

So much for Nixon's first four glorious years and, hopefully, his last four years. It is not coincidental that the Democratic hopeful, McGovern, also supports the above policies and programs. It is a sad commentary that when the voters go to the polls in November, the majority will unknowingly vote for the Communist platform stated above.

Although the American (Independent) Party received approximately a third of the popular votes in the primary, little or no coverage of their platform will be made available through the news media. Before his overwhelming approval and first ballot nomination by the Independent Party, U.S. Congressman John G. Schmitz, wrote the introduction to the book "None Dare Call It Conspiracy" by Gary Allen. Schmitz states that your future and the future of the United States may well depend on your understanding the facts presented therein. I contend that a man who will not read the book is no more intelligent than a man who cannot read the book.

It is imperative that voters question the political motives and aspirations of all three candidates. McGovern stands to the left of Nixon, the man who calls himself a socialist, which is indicative as to what type of government they both advocate. The fact that the news media refuses to give the American Party anything but token coverage convinces me that Americans are victims of communist gradualism. Gradualism can be likened to a sleeping sunbather who wakes up too late to find out he's quite sunburned. The only difference here is that communism won't blister, peel and fade away. A favorite motto of the John Birch Society is that the truth will prevail if pains are taken to bring it to light. My favorite motto is, I may die under communism, but so help me God, I will never live under it.

'Election Code Needs Reform'

You are to be congratulated for bringing to the public's attention that "legislation is needed to give Illinois voters a voice in picking their own candidates in cases where office-seekers are eliminated from the ballot between the primary and general elections." ("Public Deserves Candidate Pick," editorial of September 20.) State Senator Robert Cherry is the latest of four State Senators to withdraw from the race after nomination in the Primary. Cherry barely defeated Independent Democrat, Ron Smith, for the Democratic nomination. I predict that the ward committeeman will not select Smith, but will choose a man who is congenial to, if not a part of, the established city Democratic organization.

Your editorial alertly draws attention to another example of how our State Election Code favors entrenched party leadership and obstructs "grass roots" influence on the nomination and election of public officials. The recent session of the Legislature saw the (unlawful) attempt to favor incumbent legislators by giving them first place on the primary ballot; the defeat of a campaign fund disclosure bill; the failure to implement the Constitutional mandate for a bi-partisan State Electoral Board; and the requirement for voting machines in our larger counties.

As a candidate for State Representative for the Second District, I am pledged to sponsor and support broad revisions of our Election Code designed to open up the nomination processes, equalize the opportunities of independent candidates, reduce the opportunities for vote fraud, and to require disclosure of campaign contributors.

These reforms will be hastened if other newspapers join you in spotlighting the many deficiencies in the existing laws.

Emphasis On 'Kil'

"We just set a new world's speed record, Houston," the Apollo 16 astronauts radioed to earth after a ride in their extraterrestrial dune buggy, "17 kilometers an hour on the moon."

If you pronounced that word KIL-OM-eter, you're in good company but in bad form. It should be KIL-o-meter with the accent on the first syl-LAB-ic. But for some reason, most Americans, including scientists, use the first pronunciation, apparently because of a false analogy with the word barometer.

Europeans, who have been using the metric system a good many years, accent the first syllable. We ought to do the same, chemist Harold C. Urey admonishes his fellow scientists in a letter to Science magazine. He points out that we don't stress the second syllable in millimeter or centimeter or kilowatt, etc.

Since the metric system will, one of these days, be adopted in this country and radar will be clocking us on the highway in kilometers an hour instead of miles an hour, maybe all of us ought to begin practicing the internationally accepted pronunciation.

Revealed! The 'Lahey Papers'!

by BOB LAHEY

Political Editor

I'm getting a little tired of being shown up by Art Buchwald, with all his behind-the-scenes reports of what really happened at Watergate and Hyannisport and the Fontainebleau Hotel.

All us guys have our high-level secrets that we agree to sit on in the national interest. I have never told the real story of what happened in the locker room following the mysterious victory of Waseka over Deland, 6-0, back in 1959 — And I never will.

But there comes a time when the right of the people to know overshadows any promises of confidentiality between members of the press and those who govern.

I have therefore decided to report here for the first time some of the things that really go on when members of the press gain audiences with the great and the near great.

It was a winter night in 1963 when Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, then seeking the presidency, and this correspondent met in a deserted hallway of a newspaper office in Rochester, N.Y. Our conversation, never fully reported, went like this:

Reporter: "How do you do, governor?"

Rockefeller: "Hi ya, fella!"

That of course was years after I had held a clandestine meeting at the Springfield airport with President John F. Kennedy, who wisely suggested that we meet just outside Air Force One, where the milling crowds would make us less conspicuous.

Reporter: "Mr. President, at this point how do you assess voter sentiment in Illinois?"

JFK (aside to Secret Service agent): "Be careful you don't break his arm."

Shortly after that I was summoned to a meeting in a dimly lit room at the Champaign Elks Club to confer with Illinois Secretary of State Paul Powell, then concerned with the state of horse racing in the state.

Reporter: "Can I buy you a drink, Mr. Secretary?"

Powell: "Scotch and water." (He added almost immediately after, in a tone intended only for me and the bartender: "Easy on the water.")

Despite the partisan differences between Powell and President Nixon, I found myself some years later in a small group of specially selected people meeting with presidential Press Secretary Herbert G. Klein in a third-floor room of Rockefeller's Faust Hotel, where some say Calvin Coolidge once stayed.

Reporter: "Mr. Secretary, since we're now an hour behind schedule, could we begin by..."

Klein: "Would you mind waiting, buddy, until the TV crews get set up?"

The President himself came later to Illinois, and I met him, coincidentally, at almost the same spot where I had earlier conferred with JFK.

Reporter: "Mr. President, at this point how do you assess voter sentiment in Illinois?"

RMN (aside to Secret Service agent): "Be careful you don't break his arm."

Armed with that advice from the White House, I later commuted to Chicago to talk with Secretary of Housing and Urban Development George Romney in a hurried conference as he rushed from the Sherman House to a waiting limousine.

Reporter: "Governor (I have always called him governor), in view of recent court rulings concerning the placement of low and moderate income housing in Cook County and accusations that your department is holding up 235 and 236 funds for political reasons, not to mention what some consider to be your real hopes for another bid for the presidency if you can hold your strength with Michigan labor, what..."

Romney: "Ouch! You kicked me on the ankle!"

My relations with Romney were never quite the same after that, which should explain, to those of you who have wondered about it, how I came to meet with Sen. George McGovern on the eve of his nomination for president at the Democratic National convention.

McGovern cut short an appearance with the National Organization of Women in order to meet me in an out-of-the-way corner of the Fontainebleau. I expressed the same concerns to him which I had earlier broached to JFK and RMN.

Reporter: "Senator, assuming you win the nomination here, how do you assess voter sentiment toward you in Illinois?"

I feel it would be repetitious to record his response verbatim, but I can tell you that the similarity of his feeling and that of two men before him who succeeded in winning the White House — one a Democrat and one a Republican — was almost uncanny.

Business Today

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — American firms taking advantage of new trade opportunities with Russia encounter some pitfalls.

"You can't create a market for your goods or services in the Communist world as you would in the free enterprise world," says Dr. Curtis B. Hayworth, president of World Patent Development Corp., which has bought and sold technology and goods in the Soviet Union.

"The market has to be there already, that is you must have something that fits in with the over-all economic plan of the country where you want to do business," Hayworth said.

Even if you have such a product or service, you cannot hope to sell it by methods used in western Europe or Africa.

"The first essential is to have a competent representative in the country where you want to do business," Hayworth said.

"SINCE YOU ARE not allowed to hire citizens of the Communist countries except for routine jobs, your representative must be an American or a neutral who is fluent in the language and understands the customs and needs of the Communist country. An American is preferable, and he would represent your home office, not an intermediary firm. The Communists like to deal at the top.

"Your representative will set up the deal but when it comes time to close, you will have to go to the Communist country yourself and they may then decide they want to visit your plant before the final signature."

There are other problems, Hayworth said.

"For one thing, an American can't play the big shot in a Communist country. You're always a guest and a regimented guest at that. You can't even invite anybody to lunch or choose your own hotel or your own entertainment. The working day in a Communist office or factory starts at 7 a.m. and if you have an appointment at 7:15 be there. If you arrive at 7:30 it's too bad."

HAYWORTH SAID that while Communist nations still are primarily interested in American technology and machinery, they have a burgeoning interest in American consumer products that afford trading opportunities.

Finally, he said, patience and more patience is necessary in dealing with the Communists.

"That's because no individual in their organizations has the power to close a deal alone. You never meet with less than two officials and often with a large team. The approval of a number of committees is necessary to complete the deal. The Communists are hard bargainers, but once they have signed they live up to their word scrupulously."

Innovation At Park Ridge Bank

by LEA TONKIN

Your face could be your fortune and a forger's misfortune, thanks to a checking account innovation being introduced by the Citizens Bank & Trust Co. of Park Ridge.

Scott said he believes Citizens is the first Chicago area bank to offer the photo-checks to its customers. Cashability will be easier for the legitimate user and more difficult for the forger with the addition of Social Security number, drivers license number and other information.

"Nobody can forge a face," said Scott, commenting on the dilemma to be faced by would-be users of stolen photo-checks. This identification measure could also allow the police to track down the photographed check user, if his checks bounce.

Citizens Bank studied the concept of personal photos on checks for almost two years before implementing the plan. Other proposals included design-your-own-checks, scenic checks and other multi-purpose checks. The photo-checks are used by some 50 banks in this country, mostly in the South. Scott sees the new checks as an increasing trend across the U.S. now that prohibitive cost problems have been solved.

CHECK FRAUD and proper identification is an increasingly difficult problem for many bankers, reported Citizens vice president and cashier Russell Morris. He cites the national survey by Positive Identification Systems, Inc., of Fort Worth, Texas, revealing $2 billion in losses from check fraud last year.

"It's a problem that has increased over the years," Morris said. "We live in an age when people move more frequently, making it harder to track down the forgers."

Check fraud problems come and go in the Northwest suburbs along with the movements of professional forgers, according to Morris. "Someone's supply of checks is stolen and sold to a ring," he said. "Then they go to establishments in the area to pass the checks. Department stores, appliance and auto accessory stores are often targets of the forger, especially during holiday periods.

"It's a case of needing to take preventive measures," he continued. "People shouldn't leave their checkbooks out in the office, supposedly among friends, or in a mailbox that can be easily rifled. Once they have the checks and a copy of your signature they can pass checks almost anywhere," Morris said of the forgery rings. "We've seen instances where forgers practice other people's signature until they can do an A-1 job. By the time their operation comes to light they may have left town."

FASTER, MORE positive identification will be a benefit to the legitimate users of photo-checks, according to Morris. "The vast majority of people are scrutinized closely because of the actions of a minority in bad check losses," he said. The frustration of fumbling for several forms of identification to cash a check may be eliminated in many cases.

The cost of photo-checks is $3.95 for an initial supply of 200 checks. "This compares favorably to scenic checks and is less expensive than design-your-own-check programs," said Scott. Although slightly more expensive than personalized checks, research shows people wanting photo-checks are willing to pay a few pennies more for the protection, he said.

Photos are taken free of charge at the Citizens Bank, at 1 Northwest Hwy. The pictures are ready in seconds for printing.

An incentive kickoff program will feature Miss Photo Check, to be on hand at the bank the evening of Friday, Oct. 6, and Saturday morning, Oct. 7.

Third-quarter earnings of A. O. Smith Corp. will fall well below levels of a year ago.

The company blamed labor and cost problems in its elevator business, a lack of work at an affiliated line pipe manufacturing firm and major model changes in the automotive division for the decline.

It estimated profits at 5 cents a share, compared with 31 cents in the third quarter last year. Nine-month sales are expected to amount to $362 million, compared with $344 million in the same period in 1971.

NI-Gas

Northern Illinois Gas Co. reported operating revenues for the 12 months ending Aug. 31 higher than the $400 million mark for the first time in its history.

Earnings per share for the 12 months ending Aug. 31 were $2.86 on revenues of $400,009,379. This compares with $2.85 a share on revenues of $367.9 million for the same period last year.

Parker-Hannifin

Parker-Hannifin Corp. expects a record year for sales and income in fiscal 1973.

The company, a major manufacturer of hydraulic, pneumatic, fluid handling and control components, began its fiscal year July 1 with the highest backlog of orders in its history. They totaled $62.4 million, compared to $50.1 million a year earlier.

The Volunteer Bureau

Training Program Set For Oct. 11

Coordinator training programs have been on the schedule of the Volunteer Service Bureau, Northwest Cook County, this fall and a third workshop has been scheduled at Mark Hopkins School, Elk Grove Village, on Wednesday, Oct. 11 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Two previous workshops have been capita income. And thirdly, a combination of alternatives one and two could be used, according to the spokesman.

"The bill as it is now set up favors cities and hurts areas with high per-capita incomes. This section gives state legislatures the option of reviewing the formula," the spokesman said.

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert said yesterday that he was disappointed that "the cake wasn't as large as described." But, he added, "at least it is a cake."

Woods too said he was pleased that at least the concept of revenue sharing appeared about to become a reality.

If approved, the compromise figure of $144,632 for Mount Prospect would "have virtually little effect on the municipality," Teichert said.

GEORGE CONEY, finance director for Elk Grove Village, said that municipality has not made plans on how it would use the revenue-sharing money. "If we had made plans for $417,000 (the House proposal) we would have been much more disappointed," he said.

Percy's office also released figures yesterday on the amount of revenue the Northwest suburbs could expect next year under the compromise formula.

They are: Arlington Heights $279,792; Buffalo Grove $26,490; Des Plaines $369,281; Elk Grove Village $154,866; Hoffman Estates $82,484; Mount Prospect $163,057; Palatine $101,265; Rolling Meadows $81,624; and Wheeling $54,695.

The ultimate fate of the compromise proposal still is uncertain. Both the House and the Senate must pass the bill, although usually such approval is a foregone conclusion.

The Percy spokesman said it is difficult to anticipate when action on the measure might come. But he added that both the House and Senate are expected to act before they adjourn later this fall.

Distribution of the funds then must await President Nixon's signing of the bill.

Simchat Torah This Weekend

Simchat Torah, the festival of rejoicing in the Torah, will be observed at Beth Tikvah Congregation with Friday evening and Saturday morning services.

The Friday service will be at 7:30 p.m., at the congregation, 275 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates. This year the Tikvah Teens will conduct the service. They will stress the importance of American Jewish solidarity with the Soviet Jews.

On Simchat Torah, the annual cycle of Hall also is a member of the Volunteer Bureau Board and its education committee portfolio. The second workshop conducted by Isabel Burg and Mike Zawacke, former branch director and school principal, respectively, was held Sept. 19 at the School Dist. 15 administration building in Palatine. Approximately 60 persons were in attendance at the workshops. Coordinator packets were distributed and questions answered. The workshops were geared to both the principal of the school utilizing the volunteer program and the volunteer coordinator of the school building.

Zawacke, principal at Willow Bend School in Rolling Meadows, is also a member of the Volunteer Bureau Board and its education committee portfolio as is Bob Guthrie of Mount Prospect and Don Stipe of Palatine, chairman of the building is a key person in the operating of a volunteer program. All requests are channeled through her and screened as to feasibility under the direction of the principal. It is the coordinator who greets the volunteer at the school on arrival that first time, and who handles any problems which might arise. The volunteer coordinator is chosen by the principal.

Do-It-Yourself

House painting gets easier, but it never gets safer.

Paint may go on easier, dry faster and brushes can be cleaned with little trouble. These facts coupled with higher labor costs mean that more people are painting their own houses or are tempted to.

Don't be in too much of a hurry. Look over your equipment. Check it. Figure out how to use it, how much of the job you can do yourself.

If there is a flaw in your paint brush it is no great disaster. If there is a flaw in your ladder it can be a great disaster.

Never mind that you have used the ladder frequently, that it has been in the family for years. Wooden ladders dry out and rot even if they don't break.

BUT LADDERS do break. Check for splits and cracks as well as rot. The supports under the rungs may have weakened and need tightening or repairing.

Never paint a ladder. Paint can cover a crack. Protect the wood and keep it in good condition by coating it with linseed oil. Treat a wooden scaffold or plank the same way, checking it often for cracks.

Metal ladders should be checked for loosened nuts and bolts, for bent rungs. Check carefully for rough spots, sharp edges and burrs. File these before they injure you.

Learn and maintain good safety practices in using a ladder.

Don't climb a ladder in a high wind. It's smarter to wait for another time, even another day.

Know the right angle at which to place a ladder. Too close to the house and it could fall. Too far and it might break under your weight. The foot of the ladder should be placed a distance from the house that is about a quarter of its length.

KEEP THE FOOT of the ladder on firm ground. Soft earth or asphalt requires metal cleats on the base of the ladder. Loosely filled sandbags at the foot of a ladder will keep it from slipping. So will a board staked across the foot.

An arm's length without stretching is far enough to reach from a ladder. If you have to let go or lift one foot off, you are reaching too far.

Face the ladder when you climb up and down. Don't stand on the top step of a ladder and never try to work from the very top. Don't extend an extension ladder to its limit.

Keep metal ladders away from wires. Keep any ladder away from a hornet's nest. Don't put a ladder in front of a door. If you can't avoid it, make certain the door is locked.

Turnberry is for people, young and old, who have a real zest for living.

There are 1100 acres of woods, hills and valleys to be hiked, biked, explored and enjoyed. Three beautiful lakes of nearly eighty acres to be fished and sailed. And the private Turnberry Country Club includes a championship golf course, an imposing French Normandy Clubhouse high on a hilltop with breathtaking views of lakes, fairways and surrounding countryside. An Olympic-size pool set dramatically into the hillside, and tournament-quality tennis courts adjoin. That's the good life at Turnberry. Every day is a vacation from busy city life—the first year-round community of its kind in the Chicago suburbs.

Turnberry, in the village of Lakeside, is a 10-minute drive from the Crystal Lake North Western Station. The Loop is within easy reach by air-conditioned trains. O'Hare Airport and all of Chicagoland are readily accessible by expressways.

Pioneered after Arthur T. McIntosh & Company's Inverness—undoubtedly one of the most distinctive and beautiful villages in the Midwest, Turnberry has similar protective covenants assuring that the basic way of living—the good life at Turnberry—will never change.

There are no ordinary homesites at Turnberry. Here, the crest of a hill, a lush green fairway, a beautiful lake or century-old trees adjoin your living room. Homesites average 3/4 of an acre, and more important, have a minimum of 150 feet at the building line. Prices range from $16,000 to $34,000. All sites are fully improved with winding, paved roads, water, sewer and underground utilities. Drive out now, or send for free brochure.

Too Few Specialists

Self-Help For Allergics

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Your school-age child is allergic to egg whites or penicillin or chocolate. Son or daughter wears a bracelet or pendant proclaiming in print that he or she is allergic.

The bracelet such as one from Medic Alert in Turlock, Calif., gives you peace of mind. It's sure-proof protection for your allergic child, right?

Wrong, according to Dr. Doris J. Rapp, a pediatric allergist from Buffalo N.Y. She says the things worn to label one allergic also ought to have a medicine compartment — to hold medication that might be used in an emergency when an allergic reaction blossoms.

But what's wrong with that idea? Plenty, right now. Dr. Rapp said in an interview there are rules against school children carrying pills.

In an emergency, medication such as a chewable antihistamine pill might make the difference between a mild and acute reaction. In some cases children should do more than carry such emergency medication.

IF YOUR CHILD is allergic in a massive way to insect stings, it probably is a good idea to have at the school — as well as at home and in the car — an anti-sting emergency kit. These are available on a prescription basis.

Dr. Rapp said five to 10 per cent of the children have allergies. She explained that there are not enough allergists to go around and that a little self-help is indicated.

A certain amount of detective work on the homefront — in the bedroom or kitchen — may, in fact, turn up the cause of your child's allergy, according to the authority.

The point of all this: To relieve the youngster's discomfort as soon as possible. Dr. Rapp said a six-month wait for an appointment with a pediatric allergist isn't uncommon. There are just 250 doctors board certified in that specialty in Canada and the United States. And they are expensive. Dr. Rapp likened a visit or visits to such specialists as "a luxury."

THE SPECIALIST WAS interviewed in connection with her new book, "Allergies and Your Child" (Holtz Rinehart, Winston). She wrote it because there was no book like it — and "it's needed."

The book follows a question and answer format and isn't meant to be read from cover to cover. Chapters are divided into main topics such as nose, eye and ear allergies; allergic coughing and bronchial asthma; eczema; special problems in infants under the age of one year; hives or urticaria.

The how-to sections tell how to detect the cause of your child's allergies — via elimination. One chapter covers how to check on allergies related to the home; another on allergies related to food beyond infancy.

In the appendix are listed some sources of supplies and aids one might need in curbing allergies. Dr. Rapp's book actually helps you to start the attack on allergies on your own.

"MY PURPOSE IN writing this book has been to help parents of allergic children to understand the nature of their child's problem and thereby to relieve some of their troublesomeness, often distressing symptoms," Dr. Rapp said.

Dr. Rapp advises parents to consult with their own physician before following any medical recommendations she makes in the book. A key thing to remember, as she put it — "Every patient is a distinct individual. It is difficult, even dangerous, for a doctor to state rules with absolute certainty and regularity. Medical generalities are fraught with exceptions. Especially in allergy what is true for many patients may not apply to others."

If you follow Dr. Rapp's suggestions for checking on allergy sources on the homefront and you find it's a pillow or mattress, you simply eliminate the cause.

"An allergy is like a nail in a shoe," she said. "You get rid of the nail to get rid of the trouble."

by FRAN HECKART

At Haeger Potteries in Dundee, the tradition of craftsmanship keeps the wheels of production turning.

The potter's wheel, a tool thousands of years old, is still in daily use and with it craftsmen such as Sebastiano Maglio produce hand-thrown artware. In a matter of minutes Maglio can transform a lump of clay into a one-of-a-kind urn.

A professor of art in his native Sicily, Maglio has studied and practiced "throwing" pieces on the wheel since he was 10 years old. He has taught his craft for more than 14 years, but his most promising student today is his 8-year-old son Tommy, who is beginning the long study that will eventually lead him to mastery of the craft.

Maglio's potter's wheel is believed to have been invented in the Uralian Highlands, a territory which later became Persia. After its discovery in about 4000 B.C., it spread throughout the Middle East and was in common use after 3000 B.C.

Unfortunately, no factory could survive with one master craftsman. Haeger's major production procedure teams many hand processes with the latest machinery to produce the familiar lamps, vases, ashtrays and serving pieces.

New methods to help production have been developed but an amazing number of steps must still be done by hand. Designs are developed on paper. Three-dimensional handworked models are made of promising design ideas. Precise models have to be made for those pieces that will eventually be produced.

Molds must be made and slip (liquid clay) pumped into them. Glazing, firing and inspection occur at various points along the slow moving assembly line. The total process will often take up to several days.

At the end of a 24-hour trip through Haeger's tunnel kilns, the ware is fired and ready for final inspection.

From founder David H. Haeger's Dundee Brick Yard in 1871, Haeger has progressed to its position today as a pacesetter in design and innovation.

Quality is the ultimate aim, according to Joseph F. Estes, third generation president of Haeger.

A company that projects personality and pride, Haeger offers daily guided tours presenting every step of the manufacture of ceramics.

The tours include a close-up view of pottery produced for the mass markets of America and abroad.

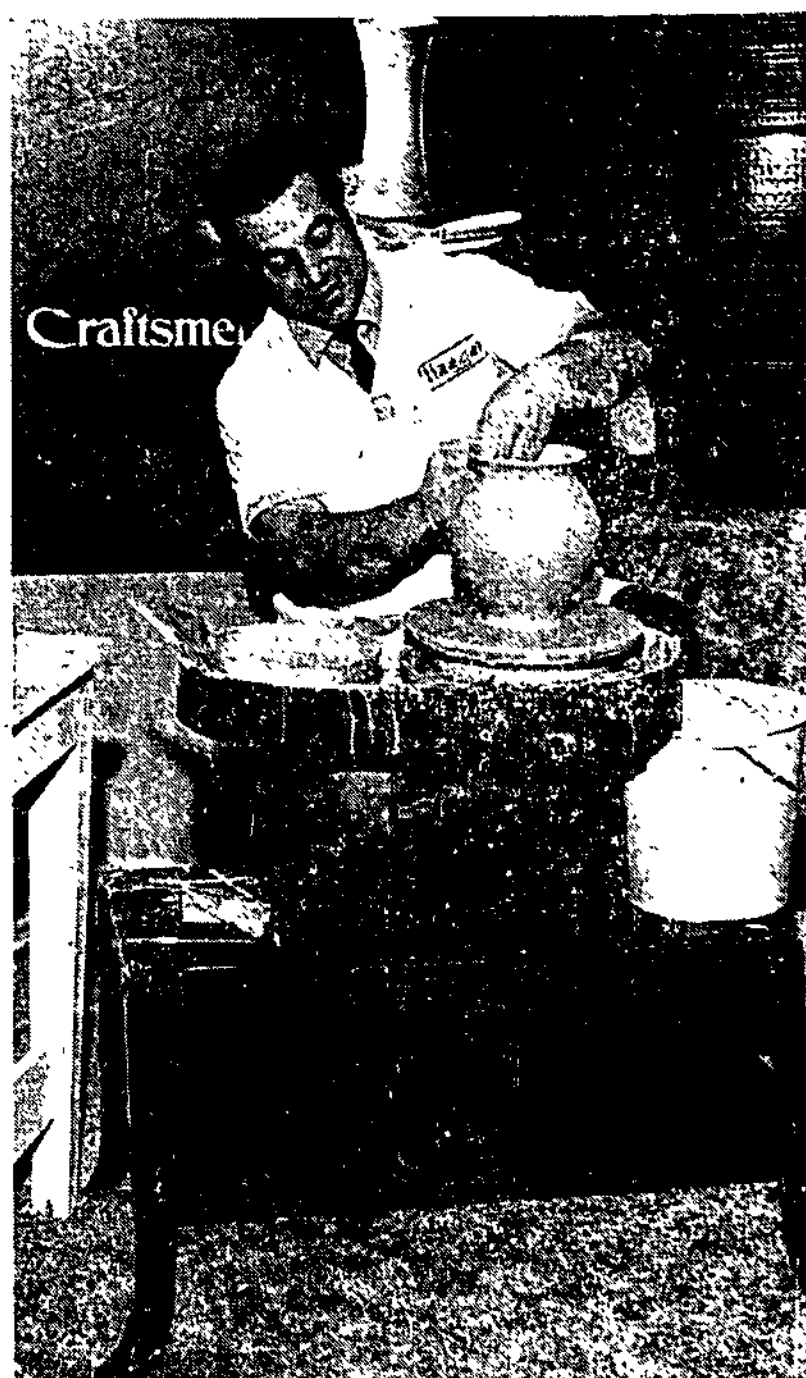

For history buffs, the tour includes a stop at the ceramic museum where historic pieces of pottery are displayed. Ancient clay coins, a clay "baby bottle" and pottery containers offer proof that the art of pottery-making has been challenging men for centuries.

Assyrian and Babylonian writings have been inscribed upon clay tablets. The Egyptians, Persians and Greeks all had highly developed forms of potteries.

Having recently celebrated its 100th birthday, Haeger is distinguished as the world's largest artware factory.

A deluxe tour is offered for the flower fanciers. For groups of 30 or more flower arrangements are demonstrated using appropriately designed containers produced at the factory.

Tour information may be obtained by writing Haeger Tours, The Haeger Potteries, Inc., Dundee, Ill., 60118.

MASTER OF THE potter's wheel, Sebastiano Maglio produces hand-thrown artware for Haeger Potteries in Dundee. Maglio places a ball of clay on the potter's wheel and with quiet assurance transforms the mass into a vase.

JOSEPH ESTES, president of Haeger Potteries, displays a finished lamp base produced at the factory. Highly developed glazes are applied by hand to each piece to assure fine quality. Lamp, ashtrays, vases and serving pieces are available in a variety of colors, gold leaf and antique finishes.

Sewing Lecture At Hersey High

Nationally-known consultant and designer Ruth Oblander will present the modern methods of "Sewing and Fitting for Feminine Figures." Sewing enthusiasts are invited to attend Mrs. Oblander's sewing lecture and demonstration next Wednesday, at John Hersey High School. The program will take place in Room 124A 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Mrs. Oblander, a resident of La Grange Park, has been teaching sewing for 22 years, and since early 1970 she has been president of her own company, the SewFit Company.

Those who sew are invited to end the frustrations of old time-consuming sewing and fitting methods. Mrs. Oblander's demonstration includes learning how to cut-to-fit by sliding and pivoting the pattern; she will also show how to set in sleeves without pinning or basting.

Tickets are $1 either at the Adult Education Office in District 214—799 W. Kensington Road, Mount Prospect, or at the door, if seats are still available.

It's Fashion

By United Press International

Clothes influence behavior. A sense of neatness and organization in your dressing will make everything fall into place by itself.

There's a new feeling for neatness and a tidy, well-brushed look along the school trail. Fashion authorities say it started with the boys. Some even are wearing shirts with collars and ties—even suits—back to school. Even their jeans fit better. The same for their sweaters. It seems to have something to do with hair—which is shorter and neater. Have you noticed?

A resolution for girls at back to school time—suggested in a booklet distributed by the Consumer Service Division, Union Label Dept., International Ladies Garment Workers Union: "I'll wear my pants or jeans so they hang well and if they're too tight across the derriere I'll wear my snugest body suit or an easy soft panty girdle for control under it all."

Directions for being a young fashion-maker: whether you're junior high or junior college—the big words this fall are casual and classic. The components put together include things that can be mixed and matched or switcheroos. You add, subtract, multiply and stay with the classics. Put the put-together look under a coat that goes with all the parts no color clashes, please and you are bound to be a fashion-maker. See?

Elk Grove Couple Married Sept. 2

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Crispe

A young couple from Elk Grove Village, Sandra Ann Hartmann and John C. Crispe, were married Sept. 2 and are making their home in Mount Prospect. The bride's mother, Mrs. Naomi Hartmann, lives at 331 Forest View, and the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Crispe, live at 16 Evergreen.

The wedding took place at 5:30 in the evening with a reception following at Casa Royale, Des Plaines, for 130 guests. Sandra and John exchanged vows and rings by candlelight in Calvary Lutheran Church, Wood Dale.

The bride wore a white organza gown styled with a high neck and long sleeves all edged with a wide ruffle. Venise lace trimmed the Empire waistline and a panel down the front of the A-line skirt and cathedral train. A Camelot headpiece held the bride's short bouffant veil in place. She carried a cascade bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids, white carnations, yellow roses and ivy.

PATRICIA TOMPKINS of Des Plaines was maid of honor, wearing a floral printed gown in yellow, orange and green. The bodice was white with stand-up collar and long sleeves, the skirt of the printed fabric. Patricia wore a white picture hat tied with green ribbon and carried a basket filled with white daisies, yellow roses and orange carnations.

Bridesmaids were Ruth Goewey, West Sand Lake, N.Y.; Judy Banot, Rosemont; and Charmaine Wida, West Chicago; junior bridesmaid was the groom's sister Wendy.

THE BRIDESMAIDS were attired exactly as the maid of honor; the junior bridesmaid had the same gown but wore a green ribbon in her hair.

Lee Ann Hostetter, 5, of Indianapolis was flower girl for her cousin. She wore a floral print in the same colors and carried a basket similar to the others.

John chose William J. Hayes III, Elk Grove, as his best man. Dennis Oltz, Mount Prospect, and Pete Czarnecki and Robin DeLude, both of Elk Grove, ushered.

During the ceremony the couple's friend, Jim Saverthal, sang the "Wedding Song," accompanying himself on the guitar.

The newlyweds had a three-day honeymoon at Phensant Run before settling in their apartment. The bride works in Chicago for DCASR, the groom for Daniel Woodhead, Inc., Northbrook.

Both are 1970 graduates of Elk Grove High School.

Susan Allen Is August Bride In Laramie, Wyo.

The junior Stowe H. Allen family of 205 E. Berkshire Lane, Mount Prospect, was in Laramie, Wyo., the weekend of Aug. 19 for the wedding of Susan Ann Allen and Joseph Lee Paustian. The bridegroom and his family, the Millard Paustians, are residents of Laramie.

The bride's uncle, the Rev. Howard A. Wilson, performed the 11 a.m. ceremony in St. Matthews Cathedral. Later he and his wife hosted a reception in their home for the bridal pair.

Susan is a '68 graduate of Prospect High School and graduated this May in physical education from the University of Wyoming, Laramie. Her husband spent the past four years in the U. S. Navy and now attends Casper (Wyo.) College.

JANICE ALLEN was her sister's maid of honor and Mrs. Larry Johnson of Laramie was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Kathy Buchanan, Laramie and the groom's sister Janet. Jema Allen, the bride's younger sister, was junior bridesmaid.

Nick Paustian served as his brother's best man, while Larry Johnson and John Sculer, Arlington Heights, ushered.

Also in the bridal procession were Sheryl Wilson, 8, the bride's cousin, as flower girl and Shaun Paustian and Tracy Suelo, the groom's 2-year-old nieces, as ring bearers.

After a honeymoon in western Colorado the newlyweds are living in an apartment on the Casper campus.

Joan Heidenreich Becomes Bride Of Kenneth W. Kirby

Joan A. Heidenreich of Schaumburg and Kenneth W. Kirby of Palatine chose the Saturday of Labor Day weekend, Sept. 2, for their wedding in Our Saviour Methodist Church of Hoffman Estates.

The bride's family, Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Heidenreich, now live in Brunswick, Ohio, but came back to Hoffman for the wedding. The groom is the son of the W. W. Kirbys of 201 W. Johnson St., Palatine.

Joan is a graduate of Conant High School and now an executive secretary with Good Steel Service, Inc., Palatine. Her bridegroom graduated from Palatine High and is with Nuclear Data, Rolling Meadows.

THE COUPLE exchanged vows and rings in 4:30 p.m. rites, then greeted 150 guests at a reception at Arlington Heights VFW Hall. They honeymooned at the Wagon Wheel in Rockton before settling in an apartment in Schaumburg.

Joan chose Mrs. Jean Arnett, her twin sister from Bethesda, Md., as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Carol Riley, Palatine; Victoria Kirby, the groom's sister; Martha Karst, Carpentersville; and Kathy Heidenreich, West Chicago, Joan's sister-in-law; with Janet Heidenreich, Joan's sister, as junior bridesmaid.

The girls wore navy chiffon gowns with white bib bodices accented with peter pan collar and navy bows at the neck. The gowns were Empire styled with bishop sleeves. The attendants wore navy picture hats banded with navy satin ribbon and carried red, white and blue flowers.

THE BRIDE chose a white sateu gown trimmed with Val lace and white satin ribbons. It featured a high neck, lace bodice and long bishop sleeves. A matching mantilla flowed from a Camelot bonnet trimmed with lace.

Joan carried a double-tiered ball of carnations and roses.

Bruce Atkinson of Palatine was Kenneth's best man. His other attendants included Mike Dorsey, Ames, Iowa; Mark Brasch, Pontiac, Mich.; Phil Wenzel, Palatine; Jeff Hoffman, McHenry; James Heidenreich, West Chicago; and Edward Arnett, Bethesda, Md.

Meadows Couple Married 50 Years

The mass will be held in St. Hedwig Catholic Church, Chicago, with the reception following in the House of the White Eagle, Niles.

Both born, reared and married in Chicago, the Westons moved to Rolling Meadows four years ago. Mr. Weston, a member of the Drivers' Union for 55 years, retired from the Chicago Tribune in 1963 after 36 years of service.

The couple has one child, a daughter Dolores, who with her husband, Clarence, recently moved from Rolling Meadows to Louisville.

The Consumer

by Monica Wilch

The 3M Company is currently selling a new Scotch Gard formula to carpet mills for treating kitchen carpeting so that it will resist spills and stains. The company's consumer education specialist, Mary Lou Rooney, was in Chicago recently to explain the advantages both of the Scotch Gard treatment and of kitchen carpeting.

While carpeting in the kitchen has been considered a decorative luxury — and an impractical one — it actually offers very practical advantages over linoleum, and the Scotch Gard treatment enhances its usefulness.

With noise pollution a growing issue, the sound-muffling effects of carpeting in such a noisy environment as a kitchen has to be given its due recognition. According to Mrs. Rooney, carpeting absorbs 10 times as much noise as a hard-surfaced floor, including direct impact sound when something is dropped and echoes of clattering pans or whirring appliances.

OTHER POSITIVE points that really can't be denied are comfort and safety. Any woman, whether she's a homemaker or a career gal, is bound to spend a number of hours a week standing in the kitchen, and the padding of carpeting underfoot can be a blessing for tired legs and feet. Moreover, an unnoticed spill on carpeting will not result in a fall, as it might on slippery linoleum.

As for the Scotch Gard, a demonstration by Mrs. Rooney illustrated how wet spills soak into untreated carpeting, but stand on top of the Scotch Gard carpeting, where they can easily be soaked up by a sponge or cloth. Mrs. Rooney said that while spot treatment may completely remove a stain from untreated carpeting, tests have shown that the fibers in the area of the spill will still attract dirt particles, eventually resulting in a dark spot.

She candidly admitted that the Scotch Gard isn't an ironclad guarantee against dirt, but said such carpeting will stay clean two to three times longer than untreated carpeting. (Routine cleaning of kitchen carpeting is another selling point — an easy vacuuming job rather than mopping and waxing.)

SCOTCH GARD, at this time, can only be applied by carpet mills, not by either consumers or commercial carpet cleaners. Barwick Industries currently is making kitchen carpeting with Scotch Gard, which is indicated on the underside. The treatment so far has not added to the cost of the carpeting, although this aspect will depend on the particular mill using Scotch Gard.

About the only apparent drawback to the treatment is that home carpet shampooing processes may tend to reduce the effectiveness of Scotch Gard. This is because detergent residues, which inevitable result from do-it-yourself carpet cleaning, will coat the Scotch Gard. The 3M company recommends a commercial deep-steam cleaning process, which removes 95 per cent of the detergent and enables the Scotch Gard to remain effective through many more cleanings.

The need for such a treatment arises out of the susceptibility of the synthetic fibers in modern carpeting to stains, in contrast to wool carpeting which is naturally stain-resistant. Wool also is non-flammable, while some of the synthetics are quite flammable and have necessitated special standards under the federal Flammable Fabrics Act.

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

My husband has not the slightest devotion to what is quaintly called husbandry. "If you are going to have any grass at all out here," he observed, standing over me as I weeded on hand and knee, "let's have it in our lifetime."

There's one in every family — a member of management married to a member of the labor force. And this time of year the lawn boss has a slight edge over the lawn keeper. It's now that all the sins of the growing season show up. In spring, the lawnkeeper can blame die-back, snowmold or winter kill for any thin spots, but what's his excuse after a full growing season? One look tells everybody if a lawn has not been kept up. A patch of crabgrass crawling here, a family of dandelion rosettes blooming there, a spruce of spurge and quackgrass fairly shouts, "neglect."

THERE WAS A time when I used to be quite psychotic about my yard. I'd spend eight hours or more weeding, feeding and otherwise dithering.

For a while, it looked like my undone ironing would develop cocoons. I didn't put a decent meal on the table from April to November. I was so far gone that when my husband mentioned "separate maintenance," I thought he was finally going to give me a hand with the yardwork.

Finally, I realized — it just happened to be after the last killing frost — that it's easy to spend one's whole life in the garden, but basic maintenance really takes a Saturday afternoon or couple hours after supper a week.

The question I'm most often asked about organic lawn care is "how do you get rid of dandelions and crabgrass without using weed killers?"

START OFF BY crowding them out! You never see weeds thriving in a thick, healthy lawn because there is no vacancy.

Remember that nature is a very modest lady. She never goes nude. Only in a desert is the earth bare. In the woods, nature blankets the forest floor with leaves, ferns, mushrooms and moss. In your lawn, she fills in the bare spots with whatever happens to be in abundance — usually weed seed sprouts that just happen to blow your way.

Crabgrass seeds can't get the sun they need to grow if you keep the grass trimmed extra long (two to three inches.) Crewcuts are passe anyway, aren't they? If you have it now, forget about it. It will die out in another month or two. But come spring, adjust your mower to cut high. It won't return.

BY WATERING ONE inch a week, if there's no natural rainfall, and feeding heavy, the lawn will come back. Don't fertilize now any more until spring. It's too late. But do seed it if the lawn is in really poor shape. A lawn seeded now, with fall's ideal growing conditions, will sprout fast and strong.

Results will start cropping up in a month with merlot blue grass, and it's the results that keep the cynics away.

A Wedding At Historic Site For Ellen Mattingly, Groom

For the wedding Sept. 3 of Ellen Mattingly and Keith James Sims, guests traveled down the original Boston Post Road of pre-stage coach days to a classic New England church on the Wayside Estate in Sudbury, Mass., 20 miles west of Boston. The 5:30 p.m. service was held in Martha-Mary Chapel after which 50 guests greeted the newlyweds at the Wayside Inn.

The inn is the oldest operating inn in the country. Built in 1702 by David How, it was originally known as the How Tavern. The name was later changed to the Red Horse Tavern in 1861, and in 1923 Henry Ford purchased the inn and restored it to an old-time hostelry and furnished it with antiques.

Ellen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raphael Mattingly, Clearwater, Fla., is a 1970 graduate of Duke University and is now attending Boston College of Law School. Keith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sims, 636 E. Clarendon, Arlington Heights, graduated in chemical engineering from the University of Illinois in 1962. He received his masters in chemical engineering from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N.Y., and is now with Ionics, Inc., in Watertown, Mass., a Boston suburb.

FOR THE DOUBLE ring service Ellen chose a white Empire gown with V neckline, and a lace mantilla. Her flowers were white roses, white carnations, stephanotis and blue delphinium with ivy.

Donna Sherry, Boston, a sorority sister from Duke, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Pamela, Arlington Heights, and Kristan Voetmann, Cambridge, Mass., roommate of the bride. Donna and Kristan were in olive green and Pamela in lavender. They carried nosegays of mixed flowers.

Clark Sims, Arlington Heights, brother of the groom, was best man, and ushers were Subash Batra, Boston, and Peter Wetzel, Houston, Texas.

The newlyweds honeymooned for a week at Le Chateau Frontenac, Quebec, Can., and they are now making their home in Brighton, Mass., also a Boston suburb.

Cardiac Program Open To Public

Dear Dorothy: There was a faint odor of mildew in one of the rooms and, in switching things around to trace it down, we found it was coming from the rug. Is there any way I can remove the odor? — Mildred K.

This is a big job and you really ought to have it done professionally. However, if you have someone to help you, there is a routine to take care of a mildewed rug.

If possible, take the rug outdoors. Brush off the loose mold with a broom (when it's done outdoors you don't run the risk of scattering the mold spores through the house). Then run the vacuum over the rug to draw out more of the mold. While sun and air often take care of a mild mildew, it is best to sponge with a thick suds or rug shampoo. Remove the suds by wiping with a cloth dampened in clear water. Dry in the sun, if possible, then use a fungicide spray.

Suggestions have started to come on how to treat galvanized gutters so that paint will stick to them. William Bunch says galvanized gutters must first be primed with a zinc-based primer — one containing at least 10 per cent zinc. When the primer is dry, he says any type of house paint can be used. Mrs. Ruby Weibaker says new galvanized gutters should be washed with vinegar and then painted when dry.

Dear Dorothy: The name of the artist who painted the picture, "The French Chess Game," is T. Boda. We have one. — Florence Allyn.

Thank you — and bravo. As readers should know, even the major chess clubs and museums were stymied on this one. Like so many others, I've been entranced by the astonishing interest generated by the Fischer-Spassky match. Hearing our 8-year-old granddaughter tell of a game she had just played with a playmate drove home the point that this is a game that youngsters go for swiftly, and not just something for graybeards.

Double 'Merger' For Two Teachers

Laurel Patrice Hamley and William E. Scagnelli went to different schools together, but they are both alumni of the same school. Her school, Mount St. Scholastica College in Atchison, Kan., and his school, St. Benedict's College, Atchison, merged recently, just before Laurel and Bill's "merger," Sept. 2, also in Atchison.

The colleges are now known as the Benedictine Colleges of Kansas, and Laurel and Bill are known as Mr. and Mrs. William E. Scagnelli.

Laurel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Hamley, 1416 Robert Drive, Mount Prospect, is a May '72 college graduate, and Bill, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Scagnelli, Chamblée, Ga., is a May '71 graduate. Both are teachers in Atchison. Upon her graduation from Forest View High School, Laurel was the recipient of a cash scholarship from Mount Prospect Woman's Club.

MARRIED IN St. Joseph Church, Laurel chose an Alencon lace gown with matching mantilla for the 2 p.m., double ring service. Her bouquet was a mixture of flowers. Mrs. Dale E. Altergott, Schaumburg, was her sister's only attendant. The former Terri Hamley was in a pastel floral print georgette.

Attending Bill as best man was his brother James of Milwaukee, and ushers were Bob Cuba, Lancaster, Kan., and Robert Vanzlor, Springfield, Ill.

A reception for 190 guests was held at the Peachtree Farm near Atchison, and among the guests were the bride's brother, Jack Hamley, and her two-year-old nephew, Christopher Hamley, of Hawaii.

The newlyweds honeymooned briefly in Kansas City, Mo., and since Sept. 5 have been at home at 519 N. 5th St., Atchison.

Rummage, Bake Sale

A rummage and bake sale takes place Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Palatine Masonic Temple, Plum Grove and Palatine Roads. It is sponsored by Palatine Bethel 107, Job's Daughters.

Dorothy Always Was A Hall Of Famer

MRS. DOROTHY ORTMAN officially was inducted into the Illinois softball hall of fame earlier this month. Unofficially, she's been there all the time.

A fantastic pitching career, spanning 15 seasons, led to the honor she received recently by the Amateur Softball Association. During the '30s and '40s Dorothy hurled 650 games, winning 90 per cent of them. Among those achievements were second-place finishes by her team in the World Championship.

The titles, victories and no-hitter accomplishments didn't matter much four years ago, however. Over the Labor Day weekend in 1968 she received word that her only child, Rick, was killed instantly in a freak auto accident. Having lost her husband a few years before that, Rick's tragic end was almost too much to bear.

"I think the fact that I've been able to compete all my life helped me to keep on going," says Dorothy. "After a while I came to and went back to work and so forth."

Dorothy began competing when she was a youngster with an eager-to-disappear softball.

"My brother and dad played semi-pro ball. I'd chase all the balls so they didn't lose them."

Shagging eventually led her to the mound. She began pitching in earnest in 1931 and didn't stop until 1945. During that time the titles, victories and records flowed from her talented right arm.

"The Cubs were bad and the Sox weren't too much better," says this former fast pitch artist. This helps to explain why many games she played in drew up to 7,000 spectators. Another reason was the competition — sharpened by hundreds of women's teams — was outstanding.

When the war came, Dorothy joined a professional team formed by P.K. Wrigley.

"His idea was that since the men would all be gone, he thought the big leagues would fold. So he started a professional team."

Playing for the Racine Belts, she played in Wrigley Field exhibition games for the Red Cross. But the major leagues continued to play, the war ended and women's softball began to fade away.

Dorothy's competitive nature must have rubbed off on Rick for he became a track star at Palatine High School. His mile relay team set a state record in 1966 — still the best mark ever for the Herald area.

"Never a day goes by that I don't think about Rick and the fact that he was so young and had so much to live for," she says, still feeling the effects of his loss.

"His friends were absolutely great. They talk about the teen-age kids, but some of the kids still write to me. Some of the girl friends are married now and have children and still write."

Along with their help that trying week, they began a living memorial for Rick — a scholarship fund. Each year a deserving trackman receives benefits from it as well as a medal.

Besides the assistance of his friends and her own, she's made her comeback with the help of faith, her job and her hobby — breeding and training dogs (through the park district).

DOROTHY ORTMAN

A former physical education major, Dorothy now teaches fourth grade at Winston Churchill School in Palatine. Naturally she's pleased by the new emphasis on girls sports in high school.

"I think that if a kid's in sports — whether it be a boy or a girl — if he really is active, he doesn't have too much time to get into a lot of other things. At least that is the case if they're going to be good athletes."

"I'd like to see more girls and more women become active," says Dorothy. "I don't think our bit in life is just to stay by the stove. I think a well-rounded life is better."

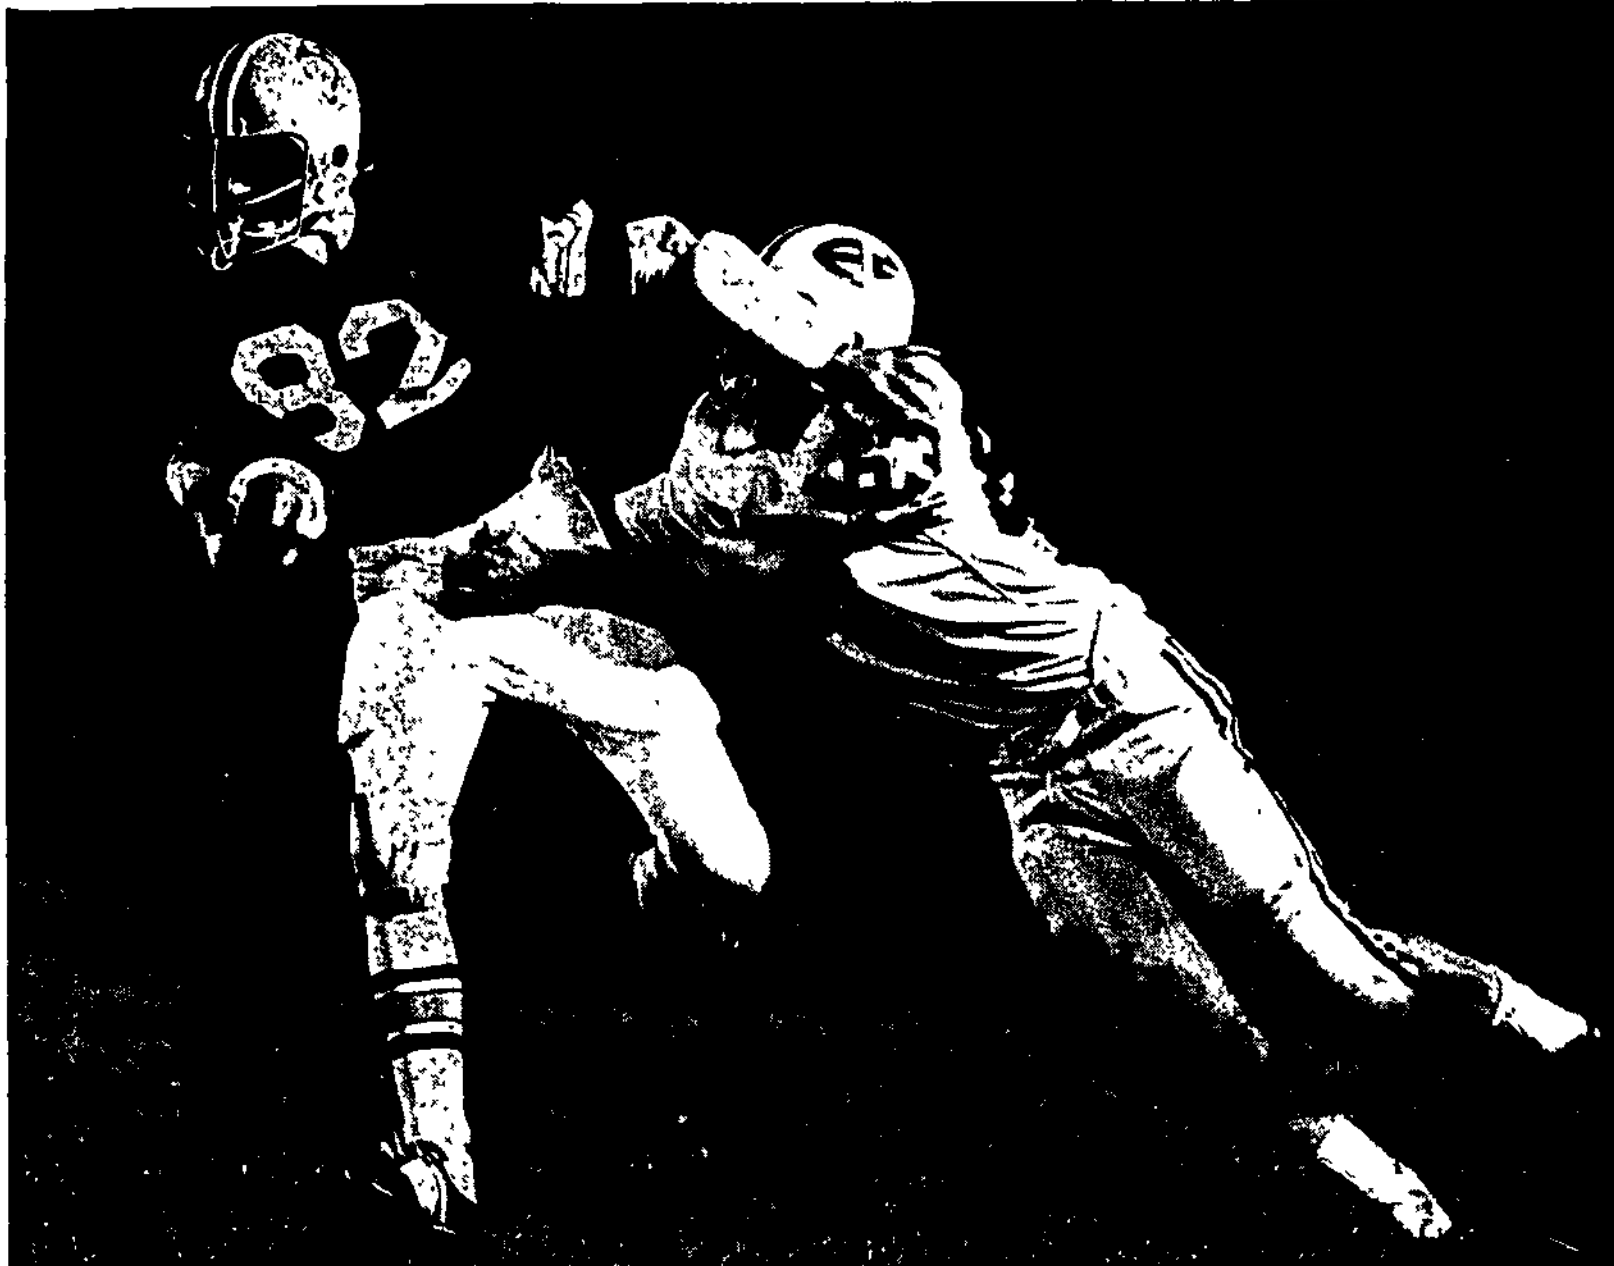

"It (sports) gives you a more complete life. It has for me. I'm not the happiest woman in the world. I wish I had my husband and my son ... I just feel I've had a good life even though I've had tragedy."

Dorothy Ortmann was a hall of famer long before she was inducted.

At Rolling Meadows

Bob Greenlees blistered out games of 220-211-156-587 to pace the Palatine Majors Men's League at Rolling Meadows. J. Stones was also in the groove with scores of 199-181-174-554 while Larry Zeno recorded 192-193-157-542.

John Paoline had things pretty much his own way for the Palatine Majors Men's League at Rolling Meadows when he scored with games of 211-183 186-580. Joe Hartmann contributed 202-210-136-548, Nash 135-175-224-534 and Elmer Dotson 187-182-166-535.

END IN SIGHT. Hersey and Mark Kleiner is brought down by Mike Sronkoski of Elk Grove after picking up 14 yards on a reverse run during the fourth quarter of Friday's contest on the Huskies gridiron. The play initiated a 53-yard scoring drive for the hosts but was not enough to prevent the Grenadiers from triumphing 20-8.

League Cross Country Roundup

Fremd Runs To Impressive Wins; Palatine Tops Hersey, Arlington

by LARRY EVERHART
Cross Country Editor

The race is warming up, and the heat will increase today.

That's the interesting cross country picture in the Mid-Suburban League after another full schedule of four triangulars Tuesday.

Favored Fremd remained unbeaten, while Palatine stayed right on the heels of its crosstown rival. Hersey, Conant, Forest View and Arlington also are planted in the first division and are staging a lively battle among each other.

Palatine had to sweep Tuesday to stay one length out. Besides Fremd, other double-winners — both for the first time — were Conant and Schaumburg. Hersey would have been tied for runner-up except for a tie against Arlington.

What appears to be Fremd's last major obstacle until the conference meet — Hersey — comes up on the Vikings' schedule today along with Schaumburg. The Huskies figure to give Fremd all it can handle and Palatine will be hoping for an assist.

In other triangulars Thursday Palatine and Elk Grove will be at Conant, Arlington and Forest View at Rolling Meadows, and Wheeling and Glenbard North at Prospect.

It will be the league's last slate of triangulars for this season with duals starting next week. The schedule is now at its halfway point. Standings at the conclusion will count half toward the overall title, with the other half (as in other years) being decided by the conference meet at the Union 76 Oil grounds in Palatine Oct. 21.

Tuesday's results:
PIRATES TRUMPH TWICE
In the meet which brought together teams with the best records, Palatine confirmed its strength, claimed its fifth victory in six MSL contests and took over sole possession of second place by sweeping two fine teams, Hersey and Arlington. Scores were 22-34 over Hersey and 20-35 over Arlington. The Huskies and Cardinals ran to a 28-28 tie.

The tie could be costly for Hersey since without it the Huskies would have had a chance to catch Fremd, their opponent today.

Scott Williams was the winner over the three-mile layout at Palatine Hills Golf Club in 15:25. He had a 13-second edge and behind him was a very closely-bunched pack from all three schools. There was a scant 11-second spread from second through 10th.

Tom Burridge of Hersey ran one of his best races to finish second with 15:38. On his heels, each a second behind his predecessor were Paul Kearns of Palatine and Tom Holub of Arlington.

Five Huskie sophomore Jay McCarthy was fifth with 15:43 and again, the next four runners were spaced by only a second. They were Palatine's Dave Tehle, Arlington's Neil Haseman, Palatine's Steve Peterson and the Pirates' Bill O'Neill. Two seconds farther back was John Jones of Hersey.

Other Arlington harriers were Bill Schmid, 15:55 for 11th; Dave Jenkins, 15:59 for 12th; John Lerchenfeld, 16:00 for 14th; Bob Skolnik, 16:13 for 16th and Mike Haseman, 16:35 for 20th.

Hersey had Dan Leider in 18th with 15:59, Ron Stephani 17th with 16:14, Dave Jones 18th with 16:21 and Tad Daley 21st with 16:48. Palatine added John Thullen in 15th place (16:08) and Rick Schell in 19th (16:23).

In a very closely-contested sophomore race, Palatine nipped Arlington 27-28 and Hersey 25-31 while the Cards topped the Huskies 24-33. Carl Klewert of the Pirates won in 16:43 for the three-mile course.

Hersey was a double winner by wider margins on the frosh level, 20-33 over Arlington and 23-33 over Palatine. The Pirates defeated the Cards 23-36. Winner was Hersey's Jeff Groover with 12:49 for two miles.

FREM D ROLLS ON

The Vikings continued to sail smoothly over a wet, three-mile course with six of the top eight finishers in easy victories of 21-40 over Elk Grove and 15-47 over Prospect. Prospect trimmed Elk Grove 25-32.

Elk Grove claimed the top individual in Brian Powell with a 12-second cushion, winning in 15:42. Fremd took over after that with Jamie Olson checking in with 15:54, Steve Inbody with 16:01, Mike Rohrer with 16:11, Chuck Ruppenthal with 16:16, Ken Gehlb with 16:22 and John Miller with 16:23.

Other than Powell, only the Grenadiers' Damian Archbold broke up the Vikings' top eight occupation with 16:20 for sixth place.

Prospect had a string of four boys from ninth through 12th — Don Burger (16:24), Mike Tyre (16:46), Rich Reithal (16:56) and Mike Skelton (16:57). Their others were Brian Pomrenke with 14th, Tom Nemec with 20th and Keith Spacapan with 21st.

Elk Grove's only other finishers were Dave Dill and Dave Jackson with 16th and 19th, respectively.

Fremd's crack soph outfit overpowered the Grenadiers 15-50 and the Knights 15-48 with Jim Galls winning in 16:40 over three miles. Two-mile winner among frosh was Elk Grove's Bob Alt, but Fremd again was double-winner, 26-29 over the Grens and 25-30 over Prospect. Elk Grove shaded the Knights 25-30.

COUGARS DOUBLE WIN TOTAL
Conant swept its first double dual of the season, using fine balance to outrun Forest View 25-36 and Wheeling 18-45, while the Falcons got a 23-33 win over the Wildcats.

As expected, Forest View had the top two runners in Jim Wise with an 18-second margin in winning the race in 14:51 and Rich Nilsson with 15:09. But the Falcons' lack of depth after those top two kept them from beating Conant.

Undermanned Harper Loses Golf Match

When you take on the likes of College of DuPage — perennially a golfing power — you've got to be at full strength. Harper College wasn't and lost.

Taking a 3-0 record into the triple dual meet at the DuPage school, the Hawks — minus two starters — lost to the hosting Chaparrals, by five strokes, 315-310. They did defeat Thornton (325) and Elgin (358), however.

Despite the absence of Scott McMillion and John Hansen, four Harper golfers cracked the 80 barrier. Frank Fenton led the charge with 75, followed by 78s by Mike Sutton and Scott Persson. Steve Leggett had an 82.

Had McMillion, an even par shooter the last time out, been in the lineup, the Harper winning streak might still be intact. The Hawks are now 5-1 in dual meets and 2-0 in the Skyway Conference.

SOLDIER FIELD FLINGER. Showing the form that helped her team to second place finishes twice in the World Tournament, Dorothy Ortmann pre-

Saxons Claim Invite Crown

Arnold Jackson and his Schaumburg cross country cohorts have been especially enjoying invitational meets this fall.

Jackson, the sensational junior, still is undefeated in all meets for the season after another of his impressive showings paced the Saxons to the team title in the 28-team Skokie Invitational Monday.

Victories for Jackson have included three large meets like Monday's, pacing Schaumburg to high finishes in every one though they are just 3-3 in league duals.

Winning time over the three-mile, flat, grass course was 15:05. Helping the champs' cause were Mike Carey with fifth place, Ron Healer with 19th, John Schevikhoven with 28th, Mike Istok with 33rd, Doug Warlick and Mark Hoerlich.

The team race was a close one with Schaumburg's 81 points outtallying Malze North's 86 and Downers Grove North's 90. No other Herald area teams were entered.

Fess Cloonan led the frosh-soph Saxons with 15th place.

ald captured the first annual Metro Media 16-inch Tournament last week at Chicago's Thillens Stadium by beating three downtown papers.

Harrier Report

The Cougars grabbed seven of the next eight positions to assure the win, taking every other place down through 10th except for fifth, which belonged to Steve Wilhelm of Wheeling with 15:34.

In order, Conant's placers starting with third were: Rick Jensen, 15:17; Bob Everly, 15:24; Steve Wattron, 15:39; Kent McDill, 15:47; Steve Golubski, 15:49; John Bond, 15:52 and Dave Elderklin, 15:53.

Others for Forest View were Tony Hess with 16:10 for 12th and Larry Keen with 15th.

Wheeling had Bruce Messenger in 11th with 15:59, Mike Schuster in 16th, Jim Leeper in 19th and Terry Keene in 23rd.

The Wildcats' moment to shine came in the sophomore meet earlier with victories of 17-42 over Conant and 23-32 over Forest View. The Falcons beat the Cougars 20-48. John Messenger of Wheeling was individual winner in 17:06.

Conant took both frosh meets, paced by Jeff Olsen's winning time of 11:49. Scores were 18-42 over Forest View and 18-40 over Wheeling, with the Falcons defeating the Cougars 27-32.

SAXONS ARE WINNERS

Improving Schaumburg, with better depth and balance, took its first sweep of the conference season and doubled its previous MSL win total, climbing to the .500 level with wins of 21-34 over Rolling Meadows and 26-31 over Glenbard North. Glenbard got its first victory, 25-31 over Meadows.

Junior Arnold Jackson, still undefeated this season (including three invitationals) and pulling out of sight from every other runner as he usually does, had a tremendous winning margin of a minute and 18 seconds ahead of the next-closest runner. His time over the long Union 78 course was 18:59 to 20:17 for Bob Pegg of Glenbard North and 20:20 for Rich Jensen of Rolling Meadows.

Also helping the Saxons' cause were Mike Carey with fifth place, Ron Healer with seventh, John Schevkhoven with ninth, Mike Istok with 10th, Mark Hoerlich with 15th and Doug Warlick with 17th.

Rolling Meadows' best runners after Jensen were John Kreutzer with eighth place, Jim Huddleston with 12th, Jerry Porters with 13th, Mike Suerth with 14th and Craig Dahlquist with 16th.

Aiding Glenbard North were Dan Fowler's fourth place, Steve Dominus' sixth, Joe Dowling's 11th and Mike Migalla's 18th.

Schaumburg made it a perfect day for the school with sweeps on both lower levels as well. The Saxons also had the individual winners in each of those races. Fess Cloonan took the soph affair in 21:20 for three miles as Schaumburg easily beat Meadows 17-42 and Glenbard 15-30, with the Mustangs topping the Panthers 19-42.

Mike Moran was the frosh victor in 12:53 for two miles to lead the Saxons to a 20-37 win over Glenbard and 23-34 triumph over Rolling Meadows, while the latter defeated North 25-32.

Viking Sophs Finish First

Fremd's highly-regarded sophomore cross country team added another feather to its cap when it won the title of the York Frosh-Soph Invitational Monday.

No other Viking soph team ever had won this tough meet, not even the class which later copped the state title as seniors.

Dave Scott led the winners with second place in 9:50, Jim Galis was fourth with 10:00, Paul Kinyon fifth with 10:03, Kevin Richardson eighth with 10:10 and Eric Inbody 12th with 10:17. Clay Pittenger and Greg Maguire followed.

Four other Herald area teams were entered. In the soph race Prospect was fourth, Arlington ninth, Hersey 15th and Elk Grove 17th. Prospect was paced by Keith Spacapan with 16th place, Hersey had Hal Stembirdge 27th and Greg Hansen was 32nd for Arlington.

In freshmen competition Hersey was fifth, Prospect sixth, Elk Grove 12th and Fremd 13th. Arlington did not enter a team.

Pre-Olympic Champs

NEW YORK UPI — The first winners involved in the summer Olympic games in Munich were three American youngsters who won their medals even before the international competition began. Top-winning gold medalist was Nancy Miller, 14, of Elkhart, Ind. Silver medal winner was 11-year-old Keith Schleicher of Plantation, Fla., while his brother, Kevin, 14, took third place and won a bronze medal.

The three beat out about 20,000 other boys and girls aged 10 through 16 who competed in the U.S. Olympic Fund Raising Championship sponsored by 200 Red Barn restaurants across the United States to help send the U.S. Olympic team to Germany. More than $160,000 was raised in the campaign.

Hoffman Estates Boys Football Facts

by AL REZNICK

And, as the saying goes, then there was one. Today, after looking back on last Saturday's Wildcat and Pee Wee league football action in Hoffman Estates, there is just one unbeaten, untied team left — the Pee Wee Bears.

But while Frank Viasaty's young Bears made it three straight wins with a 27-0 trouncing of last year's champions, there were other big stories out of the week's Pop Warner play. There were the Pee Wee Saints slipping from the unbeaten and just managing a 6-6 tie with the super-charged Lions via a TD in the final three minutes.

And there was the continuation of high-scoring action in the Wildcat division, the leading Chiefs a 30-0 winner over Schaumburg, the two high-scoring Falcons a lopsided 45-0 victory over winless Hanover Park, and the strong Browns a surprisingly easy winner over the Giants by a lopsided 30-0 score.

And then there were the stories of the Pee Wee Steelers and Cowboys, both scoreless until Saturday, but today no longer showing a "zip" on the points-for side of the ledger.

The two both lost again, but not before giving the winners a real run for it. The Steelers scored four times — 25 points — but still suffered a third straight loss, as the Vikings rolled up 62 points. And the Cowboys put over a touchdown, conversion and safety against the Chargers, but still came out on the short end, 12-9.

The Bears victory over the Packers not only was their third straight, but also marked three consecutive Saturdays without an opponent scoring.

But the Packers did not go down without a battle, holding the Big Red to a 6-0 halftime lead. The play of the Bears during the first two periods was marked by fumbles and costly penalties.

Hoffman PeeWee Rams Unbeaten

The Hoffman Estates Boys Club PeeWee Rams remained on top in their division of the Northwest Community League by defeating the Colts 26-0.

Charlie Pugh led the scoring with two touchdowns and an extra point. Sean Bradley also scored on a pass from Dave Cerie. An extra point was run in by Mark Zieleskie while Jeff Newack rounded out the scoring.

Opening some holes on the offensive line were Greg Yoder, Chris Getzinger, John Kenny, Dan Reilly and Dan Pelligrino.

Papa Bear's Top Thrill Had Weird Ingredients

Not surprisingly, George Halas once described his greatest day in football as being the Bears' famed 73-0 victory over the Washington Redskins in the 1940 National Football League championship game.

Among the most amazing facts about the game were these:

- Halas felt that despite the score, the Redskins actually played good football. That was how great he considered his team's performance.

- The game had been rated a tossup right up to the kickoff.

- The Redskins had 18 first downs to the Bears' 17.

- It was the worst beating ever administered in pro history at the least likely time — in a championship contest.

Halas recounted a story behind that game which explained how determined the Bears were. Just three weeks before the title game (which was Dec. 8, about five weeks earlier than the annual Super Bowl nowadays), the "Skins had edged the Bears 7-3. On the last play of the game Bears quarterback great Sid Luckman threw a pass toward George McAfee in the end zone. Washington players swarmed all over McAfee and the pass was never caught.

You guessed it — the Bears cried interference but the referees saw the play differently. Halas recalled that the newspapers picked up the dispute and fanned it into a raging fire that the Bears carried into the championship game. The papers also quoted George Marshall, Redskins owner, as saying, "The Bears are just a first-half team."

It was small wonder, then, that the Bears were worked up into a frenzy when they next met Washington with the world title on the line. This was reflected in the final 73-0 score — strangely enough, a combination of the earlier 7-3 defeat.

The Lions-Saints contest, Jim Heister's defending division champion Lions, playing in what could be called a rebuilding season, shocked the high-flying Saints with a first half touchdown and then almost made it hold up for a stunning upset. As it was, the 6-6 tie certainly can be considered a moral victory for the Lions, now 1-1-1 to the Saints 2-0-1.

Scott Crutchfield scored the Lions six points, while Curver Caruth hit paydirt with about three minutes left to bring Coach Dick Russo's eleven into the life.

The Wildcat Chiefs rolled over Schaumburg 30-0 but reports from the Conant gridiron indicated that the contest was closer than the score.

The Squires, 1-3 in league play, came out charged-up and held the Chiefs on downs four times in the first half. But on two other occasions, the Chiefs, with a 0-0 standoff with the Giants the only mar on their record, had too much fire-power for Schaumburg.

The first time came in the opening period when the Chiefs marched 28 yards to paydirt, Ron Jurgenson going the final seven aided by a Bob Slania block. Then, midway in the second period, the Chiefs took two plays from the Squires 47 to score. First George Rush swept his right side for 10; then, on the next play, quarterback Jeff Miller hit Jurgenson over the middle for a 34-yard TD pass-run and a 12-0 halftime lead.

The Chiefs scored once in the third stanza, this time following Jurgenson's interception on the Schaumburg 16. Two plays later Scott Koburi scored. The Chiefs were moving late in the quarter and had reached the Squires' 30.

An interception stopped that drive. Then, on fourth down, Schaumburg's punt was caught by seatbelt Rick Broadus who rambled 30 yards to paydirt.

It took two plays from the kickoff for the final Chiefs' TD to be scored. On the first play, Bill McCarthy recovered a Squires fumble on the Schaumburg 35; Broadus then hit right tackle and dashed in for the touchdown.

The Chiefs gained 126 yards, 144 rushing, while holding the Squires to minus-7 for the day, minus-19 rushing and 12 passing.

Broadus was the leading ball-carrier with 48 yards in six carries, while Tom Gallo accounted for 11 Chiefs tackles, nine unassisted.

Coach Al Reznick's Falcons, still smarting from a shutout loss to the Browns, continued to roll over out-of-town competition, this time a 47-0 romp over winless Hanover Park. A week ago, the Falcons dumped Schaumburg 33-0.

The Falcons managed one touchdown, in the first period, then really put their offense in high gear in period two, scoring three times, one on a 34-yard pass-run from Marty Pugh to end Hugh Hannon. The winners scored once in the third stanza, then put two more TDs on the board in the fourth period.

And while Falcons' Mike Daly, Rich Doan, Jim Murphy, Mitch Reznick, Hugh Hannon, Rich Schenk, Steve Riggs, Scott Nemzek and Pugh enjoyed an offensive field day, the defense, coached by Tim Hannon and Lew Sylva, turned in a sparkling performance.

Twenty-one Falcons joined in the defensive show, six showing involvement in five or more tackles. More important, the Falcons' defense allowed the Dolphins to gain yardage on only six plays — five rushing, one pass. On seven occasions, it was no gain, and on 17 other tries, Hanover Park was thrown for losses. In all, the Dolphins lost 99 yards rushing to the alert, hard-charging Falcons' defense.

Pugh carried seven times for 87 yards, Daly 10 times for 66.

Doan led the way in tackles with seven solos and three assists, while Steve Hillman, Reznick, Pugh, Hannon and Riggs all had at least five tackles.

Falcons scoring in addition to Hannon were

The Hoffman Estates Boys Club Titans remained undefeated in the Chicago Suburban Football League with a 14-6 victory over the Bloomingdale Bears Sunday at Conant Stadium.

Bloomingdale struck first midway in the first quarter but failed to convert the point after. The Titans quickly retaliated on a pass from Bob Slowack to Chris Moon who carried the ball to the five yard line. Slowack then found the endzone in the next play with John Kerr following with the extra point.

The second half saw nothing but Titans as Bloomingdale tallied a minus 46 yards. Bob Groble scored the second TD through a gaping hole provided by Mark Caple and Tony Stompanato. Andy Scholl scored the extra point on the other side between Joe Ciknaukas and Joe O'Malley.

The second game of the doubleheader brought out the bigger boys in blue, the Lancers, who won hands down to the tune of 26-12.

Bloomingdale again scored first, but quickly the Lancers returned the ball through blocking efforts of Scott Miller and Jim Chamberlain allowing Dan Kaufman to sprint 60 yards for the touchdown. Reilly making the extra point. Just before the half ended, Tim Harkness hit Ed O'Malley for 30 yards and a score making the score at the intermission, 14-6, Lancers.

In the second half, Lancer Terry Sopkin romped on to another touchdown and scored the extra point as well. Bloomingdale temporarily turned the tables and scored, but Kaufman went for the clinching tally to put the game out of reach for the Lancers.

Head coach Bob Hill had praise for the entire team. Next week the two teams will play at Schaumburg.

Never On Monday

NEW YORK UPI — Quarterback Roger Staubach of the world champion Dallas Cowboys is playing "Monday Night Football" — every night of the week but Monday.

Roger, who will be out of action most of the season because of an exhibition game injury, is sports director of Aurora games, developers of a new electronic battle-board game called "Monday Night Football."

"I play it every night of the week, with everybody who drops by to see me," he said. "Every night but Monday. Then I watch the AFB Monday night game of the week."

ARLINGTON AD-OPTION. Engineering the quarterbacks halfback John Norton time to lead a blocking (70). Arlington's brutal running attack and fourth-terback keeper, Arlington's Ward Schell (15) al- brigade against Prospect defender Randy DiVito quarter surge topped the Knights, 20-0.

Madison Hands Lake County First Loss

The spirited Madison Mustangs came to the Lake County Rifles with the desire to give them their first defeat of the year and Madison succeeded 27-14 Saturday.

The game had been billed as the game of the year in the Central States Football League and the game lived up to its advanced promotion.

Madison played aggressive and near perfect football against a stubborn Lake County squad suffering from key injuries and a number of mistakes.

Early in the game it looked like another rout by the Rifles as they went 70 yards for a touchdown the second time they got the ball.

The drive began with three consecutive runs by Clifford Boyd for a total of 12 yards moving the ball to the 42 yard line. A long pass by John Dobbs failed and Boyd was held to no gain on a running play.

A first down to the Madison 45 was made when Dobbs passed to Ron Jurewicz. Boyd, the leading rusher of the game with 107 yards then went for eight yards on two carries and Jurewicz ran for a first down to the 33 yard line.

Dobbs faded back to pass and hit Larry Lancaster up the middle on the seven yard line and from there he ran it over for a score. Al McNeil made the extra point.

In the second quarter Madison scored 20 points, nearly equaling all of the points scored against the Rifles all season. It all began on the second play of the period when it appeared that another Rifles goal line stand would succeed. Toward the end of the drive a penalty made it first and five yards to go on the 11 yard line. Three plays gained only two yards and on fourth down quarterback Terry Murawski found Luther Palmer free on the left side of the line and passed to him for a score followed by Dewy Stendahl's extra point to tie the game.

Later in the quarter the Rifles again were on the march when a penalty stopped them and Lake County punted out to their own 41 yard line. Then backs Al Schmitt and John Smith with powerful running and superb blocking moved downfield with Schmitt taking the ball six yards through left tackle to score for a 14 to 7 Madison lead.

On the next kick off Lake County started another drive but Jurewicz fumbled on his own 30 yard line and Louis Cooper, a defensive end, picked up the ball and ran it to the 19 yard line where Boyd moved through three blockers to hit him, saving a touchdown.

Schmitt ran to the 14 yard line and then Smith ran a twisting 14 yard run over right tackle to score. Jon Hittman blocked the extra point.

In the third period it looked like the Rifles would come back. They held Madison and scored the first time they had the ball moving 85 yards on the running of Boyd and a 10 yard pass from Dobbs to Jimmie Brooks.

Jurewicz on a pitch out to the right moved the last seven yards with Brooks blocking for him.

Early in the final period Madison scored again on a 56 yard pass play from quarterback Jerry Hackhart to Albert Hannah in which he beat defender Mel Easley. Easley, who in the previous week was named as the outstanding defensive player in the game, this time briefly stopped running back as the pass was thrown, perhaps thinking the pass would be short, but he was wrong and this was enough to spring Hannah loose.

Until the pass on third down the Rifles had thrown two Madison runners for losses of seven yards.

Midway in the final period a long Lake County march was stopped on the 1 yard line, again a five yard offside penalty on the three yard line was a major factor in stopping the drive.

The Rifles travel to Delavan for a game this coming Saturday and then on Oct. 7 will play a home game against the Rockford Rams, the defending champions at Carmel Field in Mundelein.

Lake County now has a record of five wins and one defeat and Madison is four and two. The defeat ended an eight game winning streak this year, including three exhibition games and is the first defeat in 14 consecutive home games, a streak extending back into the 1970 football season.

Homes of the Northwest Suburbs

THE FRENCH PROVINCIAL BUNGALOW

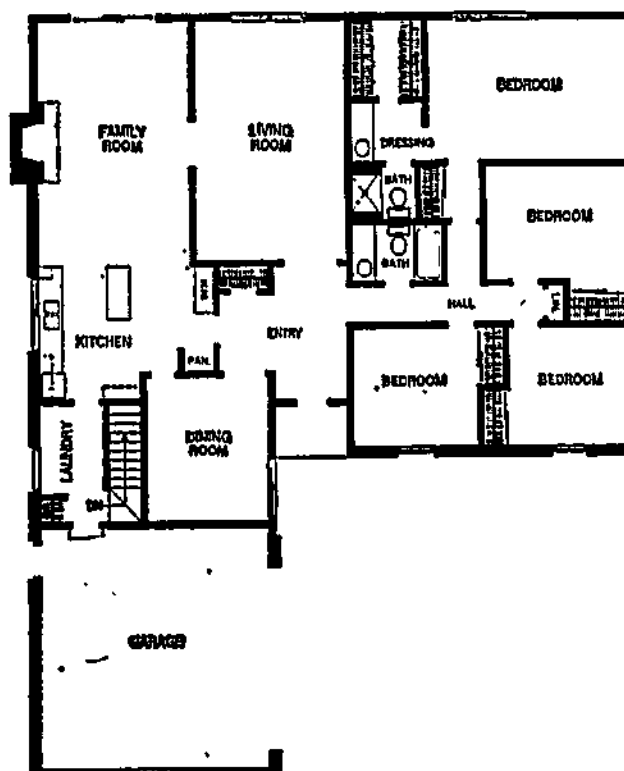

The romantic exterior of the French Provincial bungalow ranch hardly suggests the spaciousness of the interior.

The outstanding feature of the floor plan is the separated living areas or "wings" that place all the bedrooms in one section of the home with the master bedroom in a private secluded position.

Through a large vestibule entry, one has quick access to any area of the house, truly a unique traffic pattern that affords privacy with functional step saving.

A handsome kitchen opens directly into the family room in the grand manner of the old fashioned "country style" kitchen with center bar work area and loads of cabinets.

In essence, the French Provincial is a gracious home with a very agreeable double personality.

Better To Be Comfortable Than Warm; Check Heating

When your heating system responds to the call of the thermostat, does it make you comfortable or did it merely heat the room?

There's a big difference, and, says the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, today's homeowner should settle for nothing less than true comfort.

To be truly comfortable, you should feel neither hot nor cold. There should be no drafts. No harsh blower sounds. No on-and-off heat sensations. Your feet should feel as warm as your head, and the floor should be as warm as the wall.

Meeting these specifications is not all that easy, but every home heating system should be designed to provide optimum comfort.

In hydronic systems, water is the medium used to meet the requirements of true comfort. The temperature of water can be modulated and controlled more closely than the temperature of air, and heated water can also be stored and sent great distances without losing its heat.

The Council recommends hydronic heating systems with baseboard panels mounted near floor level on all outside walls, especially under windows. When the system calls for heat, the entire room is blanketed with comfort, including the occupants.

Concrete, Asphalt Driveways Add Value

A concrete or asphalt driveway can add value to your property and increase the salability and good looks of your home. Here is the difference between concrete and asphalt:

Concrete. If properly installed, concrete should last for many years, be able to take a beating, have a surface easy to keep clean, be easy to keep clear of snow, and hold up without crumbling under heavy traffic.

Asphalt. Three basic types are available: "Surface Treatment" — a limited life one-inch coat; "Asphalt Cold Mix" — a medium grade covering more than an inch thick and poured while cold; and "Asphalt Hot Mix" — the most durable type, poured more than an inch thick and laid hot.

Families Going Down, Out And Up

Is your house like this? The teenagers have no place to entertain their peers; the living room is too formal for play; the family is growing, and television needs are wider.

You don't need an expensive expert to tell you, but you need a room for general family needs: letting off steam, quiet reading, cards and games and parties.

There are many choices open to you. You can go up, down or out. This means that you may finish the attic, the basement or build a new room, depending on the size and shape of your home and pocketbook.

But regardless what choice you make, the National Better Heating-Cooling Council cautions you to preplan your heating needs. If heating is planned along with all the other requirements, not only will you save money on the total project, but the new room will be more livable.

Nine out of ten home improvements require some sort of heating. If your home is equipped with hydronic (modern hot water) heating, it can be a relatively simple task to add to the present system. In most cases of hydronic modernization it is not necessary to tear down walls or rip out floors because hydronics uses small tubing which can be snaked through partitions with a minimum of fuss.

Away With Bulky Radiators

Would you believe that a heating contractor is the first person to call about redecorating your living room?

You would if you had bulky, eye-sore radiators, and they were preventing you from having a room to resemble the one you saw in the home furnishings section of your favorite newspaper. Now comes word from the National Better Heating-Cooling Council that it is relatively inexpensive to replace radiators with popular baseboard heating panels when you have hydronic (hot water and steam) heating.

When your heating contractor installs the baseboard panels, it won't be necessary to make drastic alterations to the original piping or even to the house's interior. Baseboard heating is a home decorator's dream. Only ankle high, the wall-hugging panels can be painted either to blend or contrast with the color of the room. Now you can have wall-to-wall carpeting and floor length drapery, and since the baseboard never gets too hot to the touch, nothing will scorch.

As a special bonus, the Council adds, baseboard heating is considered the quality comfort system by most engineers. Installed on outside walls, it provides draft-free heating and acts as a barrier against the cold.

Time To Fix Your Home Humidifier

Fall is a good time to get your furnace humidifier set to do its job in the cold, dry winter that's ahead.

If you have a self-flushing or self-cleaning type of humidifier (Humid-Aire is an example), cleaning is no problem. All you have to do is drain the unit.

But many humidifiers must be periodically serviced. If lime deposits are allowed to remain, they can reduce the humidifier's performance and may even damage it beyond repair.

—Turn off the water and power supply to the unit.

—If possible, remove the humidifier from the furnace. Usually only a few screws have to be removed.

—If you have an evaporative plate-type humidifier, remove the plate and discard them. Install a set of new plates, available at most hardware stores.

—Using steel wool or a wire brush, scrape off the lime deposits from the inside of the unit.

—Pay attention to the water inlet and float valve seat. You may have to use a vinegar or muriatic acid solution to remove stubborn lime.

—If the humidifier has a solid atomizing wheel or a moving belt, be sure these are lime-free. But be careful with atomizing wheels, however. These are precisely balanced and can be thrown out of line.

—After cleaning, reassemble the humidifier, put it back on the furnace, and turn on the power and water.

If all this sounds like too much of a job, you can ask your heating man to do it for you when he does the fall cleaning job on your furnace.

Finance Division Reaches $137 Million Mark

Paced by a single transaction in excess of $18 million, Baird & Warner's Real Estate Finance Division rolled up $137,221,500 in mortgage financing in the first six months of 1972.

Laurence H. Cleland, senior vice president and manager of the division, said that because the report includes business generated for Baird & Warner Mortgage and Realty Investors, a real estate investment trust which commenced operations July 1, 1971, "it would not be valid to compare the first half of 1972 with the year-ago period."

He pointed out that the six-month volume includes $44,122,800 in construction loans of which "a significant portion" was generated in behalf of the trust, which Baird & Warner serves as adviser. The total also includes $18,025,000 of financing generated by Baird & Warner for the trust.

Cleland said that "even without the increased opportunities for mortgage financing sparked by the advent of the new REIT, we would have experienced an exceptional six months through a determined effort to gain a bigger share of the mortgage market."

He cited, in particular, the single $18,550,000 transaction for the Wheaton Center residential complex in west suburban Wheaton negotiated by mortgage vice presidents John Varley and Elsie Illegibottom.

Cleland also singled out the work of mortgage vice president Robert S. Julian, who in the first half negotiated 21 deals for a total volume of nearly $32 million.

"Julian has been especially effective in the industrial sector, which has been relatively quiet. His work is largely responsible for our nearly tripling our volume in this category," Cleland said.

Another boost in the division's volume for the six-month period was a sharp rise in dollar volume reported by the firm's Milwaukee office, which reported transactions totaling $10,450,000. One of the transactions negotiated by Richard Krauss, Milwaukee office manager, for the $45 million Arrowhead Lodge in Alexandria, Minn., helped that five-year-old office to chalk up its biggest volume ever at just the midway point of the year.

Think Of Heating More Than Cooling

When you shop for a new home, give more thought to heating than to cooling, advises the Chicagoland Better Heating-Cooling Council, reminding you that in most parts of the country heat is needed at least eight months of the year. For optimum comfort, the Council recommends hydronic (modern hot water) heating with baseboard heating panels installed on outside walls, especially under windows.

300-Acre Seneca Estates Project To Open Saturday

The Mannheim Corp., developers of Sterling Estates in suburban Justice, has announced the opening of Seneca Estates — a 300-home project on 420 acres overlooking the Illinois River near Seneca, Ill.

Prospective buyers will be able to view both site locations and a model home display — featuring prestige name mobile homes — beginning Saturday, seven days a week from 9 a.m. to dark.

The unique feature of Seneca Estates is its year-round outdoor holiday atmosphere. Featured is a clubhouse with an outdoor swimming pool and tennis courts, fenced horseback trails which can be used for snowmobiling during winter months, and access to a marina for boaters and water skiers.

Completely furnished two-bedroom units begin at $5,495. Each unit contains complete furnishings including wall-to-wall carpeting, drapes, electric stove, and a refrigerator-freezer. Bank financing is being made available to qualified buyers.

Each Seneca Estates home will be situated on a 60-by-100-foot fully landscaped lot and located on paved and winding streets 33 feet wide. Side drives for off-street parking will be optional but a family-size patio is included with each site.

SEWER, WATER, and electric utility services are being installed throughout the development and arrangements have been completed for construction of a central television antenna hook-up to which each home will be connected.

All families residing in Seneca Estates will become members of the development's exclusive community club with access to its clubhouse, swimming pool, and tennis courts. Horse owners will be able to board their horses in the development's stables at a nominal rate to cover feeding costs. Arrangements for access to a marina on the Illinois River will be made for boat owners.

Seneca Estates has been planned to provide maintenance-free vacation living an hour's drive from Chicago. It is expected that the site will not only be the year-around permanent homes for families but also as either a weekend and vacation retreat, or as a retirement home.

To drive to Seneca Estates, take Interstate 80 to the Seneca exit, then south on route 6 to route 170 in Seneca. Follow Rte. 170 through Seneca and across the Illinois River. Seneca Estates is situated at the crest of the hill just past the river.

Some people ask whether wood wall paneling may be used in rooms furnished with a number of lovely wood pieces like chests and tables.

The answer is yes; woods go together very well. However, most interior designers recommend contrast, pointing out that vertical grained softwood paneling in natural finish is the best complement to furniture woods, which are more distinctly grained.

Vertical grain western hemlock is a good paneling wood to choose as a complement to walnut, teak, maple and mahogany. Oak furniture, when finished in its natural golden tone, stands out best against a slightly darker paneling, like cedar or ponderosa pine.

Riley Designs Wide Open Space For Mature Buyers

Despite the fact that their families are shrinking, many mature couples who have passed the child-rearing stage still want plenty of room to adapt to a new mode of living.

"Couples who begin a new lifestyle when the kids are gone frequently don't want less space. They just need their space rearranged for themselves, for visiting children and grandchildren and, often, for an accelerated social life that includes more entertaining than ever," observes Albert Riley, builder.

Since 1965 Riley has specialized in building adult environmental communities geared to this need, including the already completed Plum Grove Village and Winthrop Village in Plum Grove and two currently under development, Fairfax Village in Rolling Meadows and Dartmouth Village in Wheaton.

Couples looking for wide open space take special delight in the Model 50, a roomy two-story model called The Squire at Dartmouth Village and The Lexington at Fairfax Village.

For openers, the home has two living rooms and, for all practical purposes, two master bedrooms.

Approaching the home through a 440-square foot landscaped, private terrace, you can proceed into a quarry tiled entrance foyer adjoining the main living room or slip through insulated sliding glass doors into the second living room, a 14 by 18 foot informal activities center.

The two-story foyer provides convenient access to the open stairway, kitchen, and second living room, as well as to the formal living room and dining room, a 22 by 25-foot el highlighted by a corner fireplace in natural brick.

A short corridor leads from the dining room to the spacious 10 by 14-foot kitchen. An all-electric work, dining and service center, it is equipped with self-cleaning oven, dishwasher, and disposer. Designed with rich wood cabinets and in-laid vinyl floor, the kitchen is crowned with a fully luminous ceiling to brighten chores and visually expand the entire room.

A 10-foot pass-thru counter divides the kitchen and the "second living room," the informal activities center. Enriched with a pre-finished ranch type oak floor, this appealing activity center is planned for large or small scale entertaining and dining, indoors or out. Sliding glass doors overlooking the enclosed terrace help open the room to year-round outdoor living and viewing.

At the far corner from the formal living room is the 14 by 16-foot master bedroom, actually a private suite with his and hers as well as "our" closets flanking the entrance to a ceramic-tiled full bath. Also accessible from the hall connecting bedroom and informal living room, this bath doubles as a convenient guest powder room.

The second floor contains two bedrooms, a second full bath, and a wealth of storage space.

One of these bedrooms more than competes with the master bedroom in size as well as amenities. It measures 14 by 20 feet, offers 17 linear feet of closet space behind sliding doors, and boasts a dressing area with vanity adjoining the bathroom.

The third bedroom, which, like the second, easily converts to office, study, library, music or game room, den or guest bedroom, is more modestly scaled at 12 feet by 12 feet. Its room-width closet contains a hidden door to a convenient 8 by 12-foot storage attic.

Riley observes that adult buyers who have accumulated valuable possessions over a lifetime have particular need of generous storage space and points out that the Model 50 plan offers it at every level. In addition to the second floor attic, the generous 21 by 21-foot two-car garage provides ample storage space.

The 750-square foot basement area also provides for additional storage space and plenty of room for a workshop or recreational area.

Other luxury features of the home are central air conditioning; electric heat; fireplace with recessed overhead fireplace lighting; ceramic tile on bathroom floors and on walls in tub and shower areas; strip hardwood floors in living room, dining room, bedrooms, and halls; ceramic or slate tile on foyer floor; decorator styled vanity cabinets; and combination white enameled finished aluminum storms and screens.

Professional maintenance crews care for lawns, shrubbery, walks and lanes, snow removal, exterior painting and re-pairing.

The homes themselves are set in an idyllic environment of gently rolling and heavily landscaped terrain dotted with scenic ponds and bound together into a country village by winding lanes nostalgically lighted with antique street lamps plus many other quaint touches.

Models of the homes, priced from $42,900 to $58,900 are open for display seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Dartmouth Village is located in Wheaton on Westhaven Dr., 1 1/4 miles west of Naperville Rd. and two blocks south of Roosevelt Rd. (Alt. 30). Fairfax Village in Rolling Meadows is on west Frontage Rd. west of Rt. 53 one half mile south of Kirchhoff Rd.

A Dining Room? Yes, But . . .

Surveys show that younger couples want a dining area, but don't want to "waste" a room as a dining room.

In short, they're looking for a room to do double duty, or they want to get maximum usage out of every square foot of their apartment or small house.

With this in mind, younger couples are activating an idle corner, short wall space or bay window. Many of today's dining tables fold down into a small size that also can be used as an occasional table in a living area.

If desired, the dining spot can be given a decorative flair. Use an eye-catching paneling, such as a new black-and-white Vice Versa series by Marlite.

The Integrille pattern has a hint of New Orleans' French Quarter . . . Downline a contemporary supergraphic feeling . . . and Upsandowns a bold vertical line treatment that creates a feeling of greater spaciousness.

Designed for the do-it-yourselfer, this prefinished hardboard paneling comes in 16"x8" planks. Tongue-and-grooved edges simplify installation of the planks, which are only one-third the size of the conventional 4"x8" sheet.

Highly resistant to heat, moisture and stains, Marlite paneling can be damp-wiped clean. It does not require periodic painting or redecorating.

NOW 1½ BATH MODEL

Time was, if you hoped to own a fancy house, you had to pay a fancy price.

Times up. Thanks to a revolutionary way of building that does for houses what Henry Ford did for cars.

We put four fabulous two-story homes under just one roof. So they'd look like just one very big, very handsome house. And so we could split up the cost four ways.

We also manufactured all the parts we could. So they'd cost less and be made better. And we built all our houses in clusters. So every one would look out on a super-colossal front yard (instead of the typical, tiny front- and backyard). So we could even save you money on land.

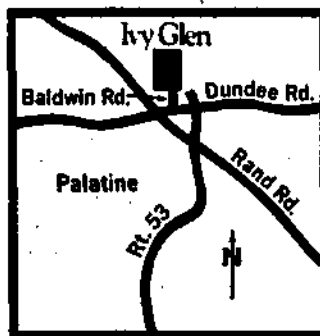

As for the inside, it's a dream. Big and cozy. Two bedrooms. Carpeting wall to wall. GE oven-range, refrigerator-freezer, dishwasher and disposer. Central heating and air conditioning. Storage space. Enclosed garage. And privacy aplenty, from your own entrance to special sound-engineered walls that hush all the noise.

There's more. Something you'd hardly expect to get for $20,990. No maintenance. Nothing at all to interfere with the way you spend your free time. And all for just $950 down and a total monthly payment of $151*.

Of course, you may want another bedroom. Fine. You've also got your choice of three-bedroom floor plans. And four- or five-family homes, in ten exterior designs and one or two stories. (We think variety is the spice of homes, too.)

You're welcome to see our model homes any day of the week between 10 and 10. We're in Palatine. On Baldwin Rd., north of Dundee (Rt. 68) between Rand and I-53. Ivy Glen. Handsome two- and three-bedroom homes, from $20,990. (312) 359-9212.

*Loan of $20,040 with 348 monthly payments of 7.78% simple interest, reflecting an 8.37% annual percentage rate. Payment includes principal and interest ($146.57) as well as mortgage insurance ($4.17). Condominium fee of $35.00 (est.) and taxes of $48.67 (est.) are extra per month.

Kron Named Head Of Larwin Homebuilding

Samuel Kron has been named president of the Illinois Homebuilding Region of The Larwin Group, Inc. The announcement was made by Michael L. Tenzer, president of the single-family housing division and senior vice president of The Larwin Group.

"Sam has assumed key responsibility for Larwin's housing activities in the Chicago area," Tenzer stated. "He will direct the on-going programs at our Greenbrook Country, which has enjoyed tremendous success in the past two years."

"We are always especially pleased to announce promotions from within the company, and we are confident in the strong leadership Sam will provide for the continued growth of our Illinois Region."

Kron was previously vice president and director of forward planning for the Atlantic Region of The Larwin Group. Prior to joining Larwin, he was president of a major homebuilding company in Virginia and Maryland.

A graduate of Wagner College, Kron holds a bachelor of science degree in physics. He has served as a physicist in the field of rocketry and has published several articles in his special field.

Larwin's home sales in Illinois have exceeded $26 million since 1970, with operations centered in its master-planned 1,000 acre Greenbrook Country in DuPage County.

Greenbrook features three architecturally distinct single family home and townhome villages, offering a variety of California-styled homes at a wide range of prices. All three villages make effective use of large landscaped areas and cul-de-sac streets, virtually eliminating through traffic within the community.

Larwin is also marketing homes in Maryland, Virginia, New York, and throughout California. In addition to single-family housing, The Larwin Group also has major divisions in multiple-family and urban housing, recreational communities development, mortgage banking, real estate investment trust management, and commercial development.

$300,000 In Leases Announced By Firm

Two industrial real estate leases totaling approximately $300,000 in term rentals were announced by Podolsky and Associates. Both transactions were for facilities located in the O'Hare International Industrial Plaza, Schiller Park.

Emery Air Freight leased the 20,000 square foot facility at 4346 Transworld Road, formerly occupied by Domestic Air Express. Emery will use the building for their international division, in addition to their facility at the airport.

The second transaction was consummated with United Standard Products, Inc. United Standard Products has leased the 20,000 square foot facility presently under construction, and will be warehousing automotive parts.

Steven Podolsky, of Podolsky and Associates, was the sole broker in these transactions, representing both lessees and lessors.

Walden Names Resident Manager

John Blythe, a native Chicagoan and 1960 graduate of Marquette University, has been named resident manager at Walden, planned unit development of townhouses, apartments and commercial properties in northwest-suburban Schaumburg.

Blythe, 34, has been in real estate management for the past three years with Khasuba Corp.

'Boy-Proof' Your Youngster's Room

You can "boy-proof" a youngster's room so that vulnerable walls become resistant to childish abuses and maintenance consists of an occasional damp-wiping rather than frequent repainting or papering.

Use prefinished tongue-and-grooved planks. These 16"x2" Marilla planks come in a variety of textures and colors. They are applied with concealed metal clips and adhesive.

TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING REAL ESTATE SERVICE

KEEP YOUR HOME IN GOOD REPAIR

With winter coming, it is always wise to think about doing certain things to the home that will prevent damage and maintain top appearance in the event of resale.

First, be sure all your storm windows are tightly sealed to prevent excessive moisture and eventual discoloration of the window sash. Be sure all rain gutters and downspouts are free of leaves and blockage that can cause water overflow and rusting of the gutters. Prime, seal and paint any open pores in the exterior wood so that the winter air and moisture will not expand the area and cause excessive chipping and peeling. Check your furnace for winter operation and if necessary, have the heating unit professionally inspected for hard winter operation. Be sure all exterior doors are properly weatherproofed and that all your delicate landscaping such as small shrubs and rose bushes are covered for the winter.

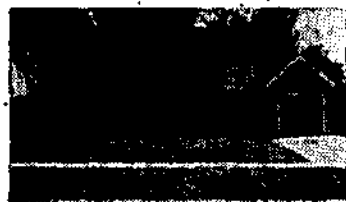

Keep your home in top shape and it will be a more saleable piece of property when and if it comes time to sell.

A veteran of 13 years with Chrysler Corp., Hayden expects to appoint 40 to 50 single-line Mazda dealers in Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Illinois before the end of the year with nearly 75 to 100 additional dealers to be added throughout the Midwest during 1973.

After seven years in the retail automobile business, Hayden joined Chrysler in 1960 as a district manager in Waterloo, Iowa. Executive marketing positions followed in Wisconsin and Illinois until 1971 when Hayden was promoted to assistant regional manager for Chrysler's Southeast Region headquartered in Orlando, Fla.

Born and raised in Illinois, Hayden, 41, plans to return to the Chicago area with his wife Joan and five children to live near Mazda's new Midwestern Branch headquarters in Elk Grove Village.

The U.N. Turns Nationalist China Into A 'Noncountry'

by TOM TIEDE
UNITED NATIONS — It has been an ugly diplomatic year for the Republic of (Nationalist) China. Last October the government was suddenly, that is to say rudely, bounced from a quarter-century of U.N. membership. Short while later, two Taiwan newspaper correspondents were likewise banished from the rolls of the world body.

One by one the U.N. cut away other Nationalist affiliations — its position in the World Health Organization, its seat on the International Atomic Energy group. Then, most recently, the word was leaked, splashed, that the U.N. has decided to drop all Taiwan "reference, note or information" from its records and publications.

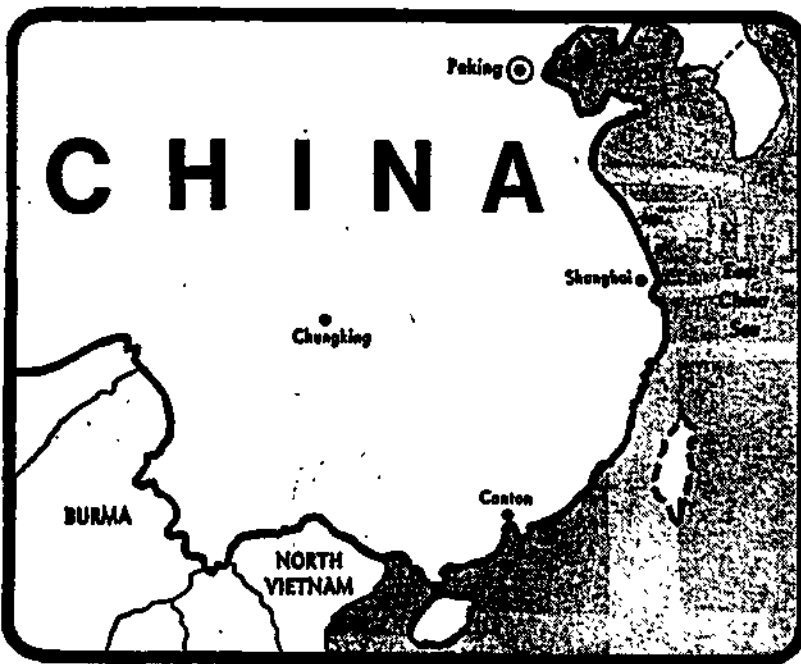

And now, good golly, as if the wound isn't deep enough, sources say the U.N. may be getting set to apply an official coup de grace. Communist China is reportedly ready to ask the General Assembly here to formally condemn any mention of Taiwan as separate from the mainland. The vote, if carried, would have the effect, once and for all, of relegating Nationalist China to the status of a noncountry.

WILL THE VOTE carry? Taiwan officials fear the worst. "Not because of Peking," says a Nationalist spokesman, "free China can handle its enemies. We have always been able to handle our enemies. It is our friends that we can't seem to control."

Indeed, the friends of "Free China" have, as of late, been less than reliable. The lure of 800 million mainlanders has shaken up the old alliances. Nations which once would not even accept mail from Peking, without first inspecting it, now are maneuvering for diplomatic ties.

"Look at the United States, for instance," says one ranking Nationalist. "In the last 10 years Americans have put 45,000 lives and $120 billion into a lost cause like Vietnam. But in that same time they have just stood by with hands in pockets while Free China gets its brains knocked out."

It wasn't always thus. Once the entire free world cheered Taiwan. Twenty-three years ago when the Nationalists were forced from the mainland, most western nations offered aide and encouragement. In the United States, a magazine publisher Henry Luce began a kind of China lobby for "these brave people." On a wider scale, former Congressman Walter Judd created a Committee of One Million to offer not only moral but financial and physical support. And Sen. Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin set his conservative wrath on anyone who would suggest that there was any other China than Free China, any other worthy Chinese than those Chinese on Taiwan.

IT WAS, perhaps, the McCarthy excess that began to erode the western world's enthusiasm for Taiwan. "He hurt us badly," says I-Cheng Loh, director of the Chinese Information Service in New York. "But we didn't ask him to do the things he did. He was your Frankenstein, not our Frankenstein." Nonetheless, after McCarthy, after the witch hunts for Communist sympathizers, Free China never seemed so free again and Communist China didn't seem that much more enslaved.

Over the years the original sympathy turned to apathy, then to some animosity. Today, Luce's China Lobby is long dead and moldering, the Committee of One Million has changed its name (Committee for a Free China) and is moribund in Washington, and opinion polls indicate that most people no longer are interested in Taiwan's survivability.

"Friends?" scoffs I-Cheng Loh, "give me the enemy any day."

For its part, the Republic of China has decided to accept its damaged image and diplomatic reversals with as much calm as possible. Eleven months after their U.N. removal, they say: "We are disappointed but not dead." Officials try to play down the embarrassments with quips ("The U.N. and the Communists deserve each other") or the rhetoric ("West Germany is not in the U.N. and it seems to be doing very well").

AND ACTUALLY, measured any other way than diplomatically, Taiwan is not in any national or international trouble. Since the U.N. ouster the Nationalists have increased the number of their consulates in the United States from eight to 10, and maintain "300 to 400 diplomats and business executives here."

Since the ouster, the nation's trade has grown, not shrunk: "In the first five months of 1972 our exports are up 37 per cent over a corresponding period last year." So bright are the nation's finances, in fact, they have purchased ($180,000) an upcoming newspaper supplement (in The New York Times) which has been entitled, "Free China Is Alive and Well."

Yet despite the public posture of cheer, the sting of the last year still hurts Taiwan. "Please," says an embassy official, "don't call us Taiwan. Call us the Republic of China. We are not Taiwan. We are China, temporarily on Taiwan."

And the worst of the sting, obviously, is the loss of confidence in former allies. Says Information Agency director I-Cheng Loh: "I have done my best to drum up indignant support for Free China. But except for some newspaper editorials, there has been no worldwide outcry. And even the newspapers seem to be blacking out Free China these days."

RECENTLY I SENT out a story about how the new Communist delegation has built a big wall outside its living quarters in New York. The wall is gigantic. It's a block long and constructed of reinforced concrete. Its only purpose, of course, is to hide the Communists' quarters from the street. I thought it was a good story. I called it "the second great wall of China." But so far I haven't seen one single reprinting. Can you imagine that kind of blackout?"

Blackout? An unfair term, perhaps. Then again, as Taiwan struggles increasingly alone, perhaps not. "Yes," says a U.N. official, "you might say we are blacking Taiwan out. As far as our books show, anyway, Nationalist China has ceased to exist."

6 Months Later, Still No U.S.-China Diplomatic Ties

by WILBUR G. LANDREY
UPI Foreign Editor

PEKING (UPI) — Six months after President Nixon's visit to China, the Vietnam War and Taiwan still are blocking diplomatic relations between China and the United States.

But more Americans are coming, and China is about to take the great leap forward by establishing diplomatic relations with Japan.

Premier Chou En-lai and his officials are believed to feel that the visit to Peking next month by Japanese Premier Kakuei Tanaka probably will succeed in establishing full relations.

Hideji Kawasaka, a member of the Japanese Diet (Parliament), has been in Peking the past week performing the same roles as Dr. Henry Kissinger performed before President Nixon's visit.

JUST A YEAR AGO, Chou was telling interviewers that Japanese militarism and expansion was a threat to the peace of the area.

Emerging from the Cultural Revolution, China has been pursuing an active policy of detente to win friends for the past two years.

Since President Nixon's visit in February, no fewer than 112 government delegations have been in Peking. Official limousines for foreign visitors are parked in lines outside the major hotels.

At China's Great Wall, an hour and a half by car from Peking in the jagged western hills, a half-dozen languages were being spoken last Sunday by tourists climbing the steep incline of the wall to a watch tower at the crest.

Many of them were Canadians. Nearly 500 Canadians including Foreign Minister Mitchell Sharp were in Peking for the opening of a $3 million trade fair Monday with exhibits ranging from telephone exchanges to snowmobiles.

Of 250 exhibitors at Canada's fair, 50 are wholly-owned American companies and 40 others are companies in which American capital has sizable interests.

A PARTY of UPI executives, led by UPI President Roderick W. Beaton, is visiting China.

Both UPI and AP have concluded exchange agreements with the official Hsinhua News Agency. No American news organization has been permitted to establish a Peking bureau yet, but Chinese officials have indicated that chain bureaus are coming too.

A team of Boeing negotiators has been in Peking for weeks trying to conclude a deal for the sale of 707s.

Until President Nixon's visit, China had been the great unknown for more than 20 years. But several hundred Americans have been here since, mostly professionals in various fields. The China Travel Service estimates that 30 to 40 Americans are in China now.

PEKING AND several other cities in Eastern China have become more familiar along with the Great Wall, but large scale tourism is not around the corner. For one thing China is not equipped to handle tourism on a large scale. More important, the Vietnam War is still going on and American forces have not yet been withdrawn from Taiwan. Those two issues must be arranged before there can be full Sino-American relations.

Japan is not involved in Vietnam and is willing to break its diplomatic relations with Taiwan in favor of Peking.

Aborigines Devastated By Influence Of Western Culture

Until about 200 years ago a civilization of tribal, nomadic people wandered the continent of Australia — in the same way their relatives — for 20,000 years before that — did too.

Then, about 200 years ago, white settlers either killed or drove these Australian Aborigines into the desert. These Stone Age men, who had never even developed tools, were devastated by the influence of western man's culture.

Dr. Virginia Huffer of the Institute of Psychiatry and Human Behavior at the University of Maryland, who has extensively studied the Aborigines, said there are still a few tribal people left in Western Australia but now most of the Aborigines can be divided into four environmental groups.

"There are those who live in the urban ghetto of big cities and groups called 'fringe dwellers' or those who live on the outskirts of small towns. There are Aborigines who are pastoral workers, like cattle hands and sheep herders on ranches, and the fourth group, which is the largest, are those who live on reservations either under the control of the government or under religious Missions."

After World War II, according to Dr. Huffer, it was thought that the Aborigines were becoming extinct but through improved health care their number has increased and there are now about 100,000 pure blooded Aborigines. "But," she added, "they are breeding out quickly — that is they are intermarrying with Caucasians."

DR. HUFFER SPENT a great deal of time with a group of about 650 Aborigines who live on an island about 15 degrees south of the Equator and about 300 air miles from the nearest big town — which is a mining town. The island is 20 miles long and 10 miles wide and has very sparse vegetation.

According to Dr. Huffer the Aborigines have gone from the polygamous marriage to the Western type family to the extended family structure within the past 50 years.

"Fifty years ago," she explained, "Presbyterian missionaries came and introduced dormitory-type education to the people. Boys and girls from ages five to 20 were sent to the dorms to live full time. They were segregated according to sex and were taught the rudiments of things which would help them in western civilization. When they reached their late teens or early 20's marriages were often arranged by parents or missionaries.

"The children had had very little social interaction and no prototype of the mother-father-children family arrangement because they had come from polygamous backgrounds.

"The dormitories were abandoned," Dr. Huffer continued, "so that children were brought up in the home. The original 'dormitory' Aborigines are now middle-aged average Aboriginal parents whose children have a high birth rate but relatively low marriage rate. So now you'll find middle-aged grandparents living with their children and their children's illegitimate offspring in the extended family set-up."

In this country, Dr. Huffer noted, we have gone from the extended family to the very well demarcated nuclear family. "But my concern is that the Aborigines' extended family is perhaps not as stable as ours was 50 or 100 years ago."

Veterans' News

EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q — DO I HAVE to use a VA form to change the beneficiary on my GI Insurance policy?

A — No. Any clear statement signed by the policyholder is acceptable to VA. However, it is preferred that VA Form 29-336 be used.

Q — MY AUNT IS a disabled veteran of World War II. She needs care in a home, but does not need nursing home care or hospitalization. Does VA have such homes for women veterans?

A — Yes. VA has domiciliaries, and those at Bay Pines, Fla., Dayton, Ohio and Martinsburg, W. Va., and Vancouver, Wash., have facilities for women veterans. Any VA office will help your aunt file application for this benefit.

Q — CAN A VETERAN whose VA benefits have been forfeited apply for their reinstatement?

A — Yes. a veteran may apply for presidential pardon which, if granted, may again entitle him to VA benefits for which he was originally eligible.

Social Security and You

Q — I'M 43 AND want to retire. I have a wife and two children under 18. I know my monthly payments will be lower if I retire now instead of when I'm 65, but will the payments to my wife and children be figured on my reduced payments?

A — No. Checks for your family will be figured on your unreduced amount.

Q — I RECENTLY received a social security number in the mail. I'm receiving widow's benefits and have never worked. Why was I sent a number for myself?

A — All individuals who are receiving social security benefits and never had a number of their own, are being issued numbers at this time. You may need a number of your own, if you plan to drive a car or open a bank account. If you already had a number, other than on your husband's account, contact your local social security office. There is an office located at 120 W. Eastman, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60004.

Q — I JUST FOUND some doctor bills from last year and was wondering if I could still send them in to Medicare for payment. Can you tell me if there's a time limit on claiming medical expenses from 1971?

A — Yes, there's a time limit. It's Dec. 31, 1972, for services received from Oct. 1, 1970, through Sept. 30, 1971. It's Dec. 31, 1973, for services rendered from Oct. 1, 1971, through Sept. 30, 1972.

Sugar 'n Spice

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

Bake a fresh "Welcome"

Anytime's a good time to gather family and friends together for coffee and coffecake — a cheerful morning brunch, a formal afternoon tea, a business-with-pleasure club meeting. And there's no better way to welcome guests than with fragrant, freshly baked yeast breads flavored and brightened with convenient jams, jellies and preserves.

In spite of their elegant appearance and tantalizing flavor, coffecakes can be simple to make when they take advantage of up-to-date techniques. For homemakers who are wary of the tricky step of dissolving the yeast in warm water, the Rapidmix Method eliminates this step. Instead, the yeast is added to part of the dry ingredients, then heated liquids are added. Initial beating is done with an electric mixer, which not only makes mixing easier, but produces lighter, more evenly textured yeast breads.

Jams, jellies and preserves add pure fruit flavor to yeast breads with ease. Sticky Buns take on new interest with an orange marmalade-coconut topping. Raspberry jam complements the flavors and appearance of Apple Kuchen. And a festive Daisy Coffee Ring is flavored and colorfully decorated with a variety of jams to suit everyone's tastes.

Daisy Coffee Ring

- 5¼ to 6¼ cups unsifted flour
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 2 tablespoons grated lemon peel
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- 1 cup water
- ½ cup milk
- ½ cup (1 stick) margarine
- 3 eggs (at room temperature)
- 14 tablespoons any (flavor jam or jelly)
- Confectioners' sugar frosting

In a large bowl thoroughly mix 1½ cups flour, sugar, salt, lemon peel and undissolved dry yeast.

Combine water, milk and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120-130 degrees). Margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs and 1 cup flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; divide in half. On lightly floured board roll one half to a rectangle, 14x7 inches. Cut into 14 strips, 1-inch wide. Twist 2 strips together. Hold one end of twist firmly and wind dough to form a coil; tuck end underneath. Repeat until all strips are used. Place one coil in center of greased baking sheet. Surround with remaining coils so that all coils are touching. Repeat with remaining dough. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Press deep indentations into centers of coils. Fill each with 1 tablespoon jam or jelly.

Bake at 375 degrees 15 to 20 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks. Frost with confectioners' sugar frosting. Makes 2 large coffee cakes.

Marmalade Sticky Buns

- ¾ cup milk
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ cup (1½ sticks) margarine
- ½ cup warm water (105-115 degrees)
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- 1 egg
- 3½ to 4 cups unsifted flour
- ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 cup (12-ounce jar) orange marmalade
- 1½ cups pecans or flaked coconut

Scald milk; stir in ½ cup sugar, salt and ½ cup margarine. Cool to lukewarm. Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle in yeast; stir until dissolved. Add lukewarm milk mixture, egg and 3 cups flour; beat until smooth. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff batter. Cover bowl tightly with aluminum foil. Chill at least 2 hours or up to 3 days.

When ready to shape, combine cinnamon and remaining ½ cup sugar; set aside. Melt remaining ¼ cup margarine. Blend in orange marmalade. Pour into 2 greased 8-inch square pans. Sprinkle with pecans or coconut.

Turn dough out onto lightly floured board; divide in half. Roll one half to an 18x9-inch rectangle. Sprinkle with ½ cinnamon-sugar mixture. Roll up from long side as for jelly roll. Pinch seam to seal. Cut into 12 equal pieces. Arrange in a prepared pan, cut side down. Repeat with remaining dough and sugar mixture. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1½ hours.

Bake at 375 degrees for 25 minutes, or until done. Invert onto plates to cool. Makes 24 buns.

Jam-Glazed Apple Kuchen

- 2¼ to 3½ cups unsifted flour
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 package active dry yeast
- ½ cup (1 stick) softened margarine
- ½ cup very warm tap water (120-130 degrees)
- 3 eggs (at room temperature)
- 4 cups pared apple slices (about 2 large apples)
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- ½ cup red raspberry jam

In a large bowl thoroughly mix 1 cup flour, sugar, salt and undissolved dry yeast. Add softened margarine.

Gradually add very warm tap water to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs and ½ cup flour. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a thick batter. Turn into 2 greased 8-inch square pans. Arrange apple slices on batter. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, for 1 hour. (Batter will not be doubled.)

Melt remaining 2 tablespoons margarine. Add jam; stir until well blended. Drizzle mixture over apples.

Bake at 375 degrees 30 to 35 minutes, or until done. Cool in pans. Cut into squares to serve. Best when served warm. Makes 2 8-inch cakes.

Sour Cream Sauce — Cream 1/3 cup butter or margarine. Slowly add 1 cup confectioners sugar and beat well. Add ¼ teaspoon lemon juice and ¼ teaspoon vanilla. Beat in ¼ to ½ cup sour cream until sauce is light and fluffy. Makes about 1 cup.

Tomato-Cheese Batter Bread

Exemplifies Contemporary Baking

Whether you're an old hand at bread baking or an enthusiastic beginner, you'll find that making your own yeast bread is easy and fun.

Tomato-Cheese Batter Bread, a uniquely shaped casserole bread, exemplifies contemporary baking. It's neither consuming nor difficult to prepare — thanks to modern methods and ingredients.

In making this batter bread, a variety of short cut methods are used to simplify preparation. One is combining the dry yeast with other dry ingredients then mixing in warm liquid to eliminate the step of separately dissolving the yeast.

Another change is using an electric mixer to begin mixing the dough. This helps develop the gluten or the structure of the bread.

Tomato soup and Cheez Whiz, featured in the recipe, add a unique flavor and color to this delicious bread. Serve it warm or cold and fill with thick slabs of cheese or meat for hearty sandwiches. You'll also find this bread good toasted.

TOMATO-CHEESE BATTER BREAD

Generously grease 1½ or 2 quart round casserole or two 8 x 4-inch loaf pans.

Combine the following ingredients in a large mixer bowl:

2 cups unsifted unbleached flour

2 tablespoons sugar

1 teaspoon salt

1 to 2 teaspoons caraway seeds, if desired

2 packages active dry yeast

Heat the following in saucepan over low heat until warm:

¼ teaspoon baking soda

1 can (10 oz.) tomato soup

½ cup Cheez Whiz

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
¼ cup water
Add 1 egg and warm (not hot) liquid to flour mixture. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed. By hand, stir in another 1 to 1½ cups unbleached flour to form a stiff batter.

Cover batter, let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 45 to 60 minutes. Stir batter vigorously, about 35 strokes, pour into greased pan. Cover; let rise in warm place until batter rises almost to top of pan, 30 to 45 minutes.

Bake in preheated 350-degree oven, 35 to 40 minutes until deep golden brown and loaf sounds hollow when lightly tapped. Remove immediately; cook. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle with coarse salt if desired.

Tomato Cheese Bread

A Vegetable Variation

With the abundance of fresh vegetables available, and canned or frozen ones always handy, the vegetable course can be the most varied one on the menu.

This vegetable dish combines one fresh and one frozen in a tasty combination that's seasoned with curry. Usually a spice thought of in conjunction with meat, you'll find curry is great with vegetables too. Cook the vegetables separately, combine them with the curry-flavored sour cream sauce and pop in the oven for about half an hour so all the flavors will blend.

CURRIED CAULIFLOWER AND PEAS

1 medium head cauliflower

1 package (10 ounces) frozen peas

3 tablespoons butter

2 tablespoons flour

1½ cups dairy sour cream

2 teaspoons curry powder

1 teaspoon seasoned salt

½ cup silvered blanched almonds

Wash cauliflower; break into flowerets. Cook in slightly salted boiling water until tender; drain. Cook peas in slightly salted boiling water until tender; drain.

In saucepan, melt 2 tablespoons butter; blend in the flour. Add sour cream, 1 teaspoon curry powder and seasoned salt; heat gently.

Combine cauliflower, peas and sour cream sauce; mix gently. Turn into shallow 1-quart casserole. Melt remaining 1 tablespoon butter; blend in remaining 1 teaspoon curry powder and silvered almonds. Cook until almonds are golden brown. Sprinkle over vegetables.

Bake in preheated 325 degree oven for 25 minutes or until heated. Yield: 8 servings.

Ice Cream Sandwiches For Snackers

Ice cream is high on the list of favorite desserts. For a semi-homemade concoction, try Filbert Cherry Ice-Cream Sandwiches. You'll want to make a batch of the "sandwich" crust so youngsters can make their own for after-school snacks.

FILBERT CHERRY-ICE CREAM SANDWICHES

½ of 10-ounce package pie crust mix

¼ cup firmly packed light brown sugar

¼ cup finely chopped toasted filberts*

1 square (1 ounce) unsweetened chocolate, grated

5 teaspoons water

1 teaspoon vanilla

1 jar (8 ounces) red maraschino cherries

1 quart vanilla ice cream, softened

Combine pie crust mix with sugar, filberts and chocolate using a pastry blender. Sprinkle over crumb mixture and mix until well blended. (If mixture is not moist enough to hold together when pressed then sprinkle small amount of additional water over it.) Turn half of pastry mixture into each of two well-greased 8-inch square pans. Press mixture firmly and evenly over bottom. Bake in 375-degree oven for about 17 minutes. Cool in pans on wire rack. Cover and set aside.

Drain and chop cherries. Blend cherries with ice cream. Spread ice cream mixture evenly in chilled 8-inch square pan. Freeze until firm, at least 3 to 4 hours.

Cut each pan of pastry into bars of about 2x4 inches each. There will be 16 pastry bars. Cut 8 bars of ice cream of the same size. Form sandwich with ice cream between 2 pastry bars. Serve immediately. Makes 8 sandwiches, 2x4 inches.

(*Spread filberts in shallow pan and bake in 400-degree oven 10 to 15 minutes, stirring occasionally.)

Autumn Inspires Applesauce Nut Loaf

Lengthening shadows in late afternoon indicate autumn is approaching. School bells, a harvest moon and football games vouch for it!

Crisp, cool weather and that first whiff of burning leaves often kindle a latent baking spirit. When an Applesauce Nut Loaf results, your family and friends will be more than content.

APPLESAUCE NUT LOAF

¼ cup lard

2/3 cup brown sugar

2 eggs

2 cups sifted flour

1 teaspoon baking powder

1 teaspoon soda

¼ teaspoon salt

½ teaspoon cinnamon

1 cup thick applesauce

¼ to 1 cup chopped nuts

Cream together lard and brown sugar. Add eggs and beat well. Sift together flour, baking powder, soda, salt and cinnamon and add to creamed mixture alternately with applesauce. Stir in nuts. Pour into greased loaf pan (8x5-inches). Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 50 to 55 minutes.

Spending In 2000

By the year 2000 Americans will spend only 12.5 per cent of their disposable personal income for food, compared with 16 per cent today, according to Dr. Roy M. Kottman, dean of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, Ohio State University. Speaking at the 50th anniversary meeting of the National Live Stock and Meat Board in Chicago, Dr. Kottman based his projection on a three-year long-range planning project, Life 2000, conducted by faculty members in the institutions he heads.

Canadian Bacon Crowns Casserole

Seasonal change is reflected in food as well as foliage. Inspired by harvest time, a cook can convert Canadian-style bacon, an all-season breakfast favorite, into an autumn casserole to enliven dinner. Just arrange slices of this flavorful smoked meat atop a mellow mixture of squash, cranberries, cinnamon and nuts.

CANADIAN-STYLE BACON and SQUASH BAKE

1½ pounds Canadian-style bacon

2 packages (12 ounces each) frozen cooked squash, defrosted

¼ cup sugar

¼ teaspoon cinnamon

1/3 cup coarsely chopped fresh cranberries

¼ cup coarsely chopped nuts

Cut Canadian-style bacon into 9 slices approximately ½ inch thick. Remove casing from slices. Combine defrosted squash, cinnamon, cranberries and nuts. Turn mixture into a greased shallow 1½ quart casserole. Top with overlapping slices of Canadian-style bacon. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes or until cooked through. 6 servings.

A French Tradition In Wisconsin

by JEANNE LESEM

Liane Koumy's work hat is a fashionable black straw model instead of a chef's traditional toque blanche. But that's not what makes her an unusual chef-restaurateur.

Mme. Koumy's restaurant in Food du Lac, Wis., is open regularly only one night a week and by appointment on two others. Dinner for one costs $17.50 without wine or liquor. This sounds like a formula for failure, but The Postillon is so successful in its 23rd year that the French-born owner recently rejected an unsought offer to sell it to a big American food manufacturer.

In an interview, Mme. Koumy — pronounced Keu-nee — said she turned down the offer for the same reason that she refuses to obtain a state liquor license: pride of name.

The interview took place during a trip to New York in connection with the introduction this fall of mail order sales of some food specialties formerly sold only at the restaurant.

Mme. Koumy said she refused to get an alcoholic beverage license because:

"In Wisconsin the wine license is married to the liquor license and I don't want our family name on one."

She said her patrons benefit from this policy. They can afford to bring with them wines she couldn't afford to stock.

Her restaurant also differs from the norm in other ways. It occupies the dining room and veranda of her home, a 121-year-old house. It is booked months ahead on reservations, although the only advertising is word-of-mouth.

She either grows or has grown for her virtually all the ingredients used, from fresh herbs to Charolais beef cattle, milk-fed veal and Breese-type chickens. Poulets de Bresse, a great French specialty, are fed only on grain, corn and buttermilk.

Mme. Koumy, whose husband, John, is an artist and director of the Oshkosh Public Museum, insisted on all natural ingredients long before it was fashionable to do so.

"I'm not a food faddist," she said. "I am a connoisseur. I know when something is good."

She does all the cooking herself, with the help of three women in the kitchen. Six waitresses serve the 28-seat restaurant.

Special reservations also are accepted for lunches and dinner any weekday but it was apparent that Mme. Koumy's heart really belongs to the cooking school she also conducts in her home.

Her pupils range from high school graduates and college girls to professional chefs of both sexes. Two young women who were star pupils now are chefs at the Wisconsin governor's mansion.

"THE SCHOOL is no society girls' afternoon tea," she said. "I supervise it like a boarding school. I teach them how to prepare and serve meals, how to set tables and plan menus." She even insists that they learn meat cutting.

"I teach them not to waste anything, to get the last vestige of nutrition out of the food they serve."

"Meals are served on embroidered Madeira olives, sterling and Spode (in English bone china). Trappings don't make good food. They enhance it. And they can't make up for bad food."

"The greatest specialties of the house are my mother's recipes," added Mme. Koumy. These include milk-fed veal in fresh herbs and cream, salmon mousse, quenelles pike dumplings with lobster sauce, and fruit compotes with rum, cognac or kirsch — white brandy distilled from cherries.

MME. KOUNY said she has taught cooking since the early 1940s, when as a bride she opened her first culinary arts school with friends as pupils. That was in Portland, Ore., where her husband was stationed with the U.S. Air Force. She said she's still teaching nearly 30 years later because:

"What you like to do is not work."

Liane Koumy's restaurant serves fresh corn off the cob in a rich cheese sauce. Melt 3 tablespoons of butter in a heavy skillet. Off the heat, stir in 4 tablespoons of flour until smooth. Gradually add 1/2 cup of strong chicken stock and 1 cup of heavy, whipping cream, 15 drops of juice from a grated onion, 1/4 of a fresh nutmeg, grated, and salt and ground white pepper to taste. Cook, stirring often, until sauce thickens and floury taste is gone. Stir in corn cut from 12 ears. Add 1/2 cup of grated Swiss or gruyere cheese and stir well again. Add 1 tablespoon of chopped fresh parsley and stir well. Turn into a flameproof hot buttered dish, top with 3 or 4 tablespoons of grated Swiss or gruyere and place under broiler just long enough for mixture to reach boiling point and brown lightly. Makes 6-8 servings.

Free Buying Guide

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has published a new pamphlet in the How to Buy series. "How to Buy Dairy Products" supersedes "How to Buy Butter" and "How to Buy Nonfat Dry Milk." In addition to butter and nonfat dried milk, the publication discusses all types of milk, cream, cheese, yogurt, and frozen desserts.

A list of milk equivalencies on the basis of the calcium they provide, is included. The bulletin covers inspection and grading marks for the products and hints on home storage and use.

Apple Praline Cream From Vanilla Ice Cream

Apple Praline Cream is a neat-trick idea that converts plain vanilla ice cream and that every-day favorite, canned apple sauce, into a conversation-piece dessert. With sugar and spice and other things nice, the tangy apple sauce is simmered over low heat until it's thickly-richly darkened and almost caramelized. The cooked mixture is swirled through slightly softened vanilla ice cream and then the whole quickly reformed in the freezer.

This recipe suggests that you reserve some of the apple praline sauce to serve as topping for individual portions of the cream. The sauce itself is so sumptuously delicious — like candied fruit — that you'll want to make an extra batch to store in the refrigerator for other dessert occasions. You can vary the flavors of the ice cream with which you team it or use it for topping cakes, puddings or other fruits.

So give this super sauce a send off by making it into Apple Praline Cream for a bridge-luncheon or a late get-together for coffee and dessert.

APPLE PRALINE CREAM

3 cups canned apple sauce
1/2 cup brown sugar
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 quarts vanilla ice cream, slightly softened

Combine apple sauce, brown sugar, lemon juice, lemon rind, cinnamon and salt in sauce pan. Simmer over low heat, stirring occasionally, for about 4 minutes or until mixture is reduced to about two cups. Remove from heat. Cool thoroughly. Place ice cream in loaf pan or in two ice making trays. Spoon one cup apple sauce mixture over. Cut through with knife to ripple. Cover with wax paper; freeze until firm (about 1 1/2 hours). Serve in scoops with remainder of apple sauce mixture for topping. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Which Potatoes?

Potatoes come in two general types — long and round. Round white ones are recommended for boiling, frying and salads and round reds ones, for salads, boiling or fresh. Round russets are all-purpose spuds, and Idaho russets, or long whites, are for baking.

Versatile Ham Dish Fits On Family Or Company Table

When cubes of cooked ham are combined with green beans and water chestnuts in a soy-flavored sauce and given a crunchy crumb topping, Oriental harmony is achieved in a casserole. It is a dish that will be enjoyed by both family and guests.

If you do not have extra meat from a baked ham, buy a ham slice to cut into cubes.

ORIENTAL HAM CASSEROLE

2 cups cubed cooked smoked ham
1 tablespoon lard or drippings
1 package (9 ounces) frozen french green beans, cooked
1 can (4 to 8 ounces) water chestnuts, drained and thinly sliced
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1/3 cup cracker crumbs
4 teaspoons melted butter

Brown ham cubes in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add green beans and water chestnuts. Melt 1 tablespoon butter or margarine in a small saucepan. Stir in flour. Add milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Combine sauce, sour cream and soy sauce and add to ham mixture. Cook just until heated through. Pour mixture into a greased 1 1/2-quart casserole. Combine crumbs and 4 teaspoons butter or margarine. Sprinkle crumb mixture over ham mixture. Place casserole under broiler 2 to 3 minutes. 4 to 6 servings.

Wing Your Way To Economy Meal

For good eating at low cost, take wing — chicken wings, that is. When you buy chicken wings, get about 1/4 pound or four wings for each person. That means a family of four would need three pounds or 12 wings.

You can store the wings up to two days in the refrigerator. Before refrigerating, be sure to loosen the wrapping enough to allow some air to move around.

Serve either of the following chicken wing main dishes with a mound of fluffy white rice and green beans.

CHICKEN WINGS

Put a layer of 1/4 large white onion, sliced, in a saucepan and top with a layer of six chicken wings. Dot with 2 tablespoons margarine and season with salt and pepper. Top that with rest of sliced onion, 6 wings, 2 tablespoons margarine and salt and pepper to taste. Add 1/2 cup water and cover saucepan tightly. Cook over moderate heat about 30 minutes. Serves 4.

CHICKEN WINGS DELUXE

Cover 3 pounds chicken wings with 3 1/2 cups canned tomatoes and 2 cups water. Simmer 20 minutes. Add 1 garlic clove, 2 chopped onions, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon celery salt, 3 carrots and 1 teaspoon chili powder. Simmer until tender and liquid is almost absorbed. Thicken with 1 tablespoon flour for each cup of liquid, if desired. Serves 4.

Homemade Grape Jelly

From Her Backyard Vine

by LOIS SEILER

Seeing her shelves well stocked with glistening jars of homemade jelly, pickles and sauerkraut gives a feeling of inner satisfaction to Loretta Libricz of Buffalo Grove, and tasting the fruits of her labor later in the year is a pleasure, indeed.

Loretta became interested in canning about four years ago, and her first attempt at making grape jelly was so successful that she was encouraged to try other foods. Her husband, Bob, helped her with bread and butter pickles and then dill pickles, and last year she added sauerkraut to her store of canned products.

Having a grape vine in her backyard insures Loretta of a good supply of grapes.

"Our one Concord grape bush yielded a full bushel last year, from which I made close to a hundred jars of jelly," Loretta said.

Her children Lory, 15; Bobby, 12; Tommy, 10; and Mike, 7, usually pick the grapes and Loretta makes the jelly right then to insure the finest flavor. Not everyone has this advantage, but Concord grapes of excellent quality can be purchased at roadside farm stands from the end of September to about mid-October, depending on the weather. And Loretta credits a good recipe for the success of her jelly.

"It's a hot job," said this ambitious cook, "and sometimes the weather can make it even hotter."

She cautions that the hot grape mixture and hot pots should be handled with care, and also advises against doubling the recipe as it turns out better making just one batch at a time.

After the jelly is made, it is poured into scalded glasses, sealed with paraffin and later capped with metal tops. Clear and dark red in color, the jelly is a nice spreading consistency. Her family enjoys it for breakfast on English muffins or toast, and the children love peanut butter and jelly sandwiches.

"IT IS ALSO NICE for gift-giving, as almost everyone likes grape jelly," Loretta said.

When she makes sauerkraut, Loretta gets the cabbage fresh from a farm market, preferring the late season variety. She simply shreds it and packs it into scalded jars with salt and boiling water.

"The recipe is so easy to prepare and very inexpensive as one large cabbage will make six quarts of sauerkraut," Loretta said.

"The lids must be tightened every few days," she explained. "As the cabbage ferments, it loosens the caps. It is ready to eat in three weeks."

For one of the family's favorite dinners, this good cook prepares roast pork, adding the sauerkraut and little potatoes the last 45 minutes of cooking time.

For dessert, consider another of her specialties, a delicious Poppy Seed Cake.

"It is quick to make, as everything is mixed in one bowl," she said.

A can of poppy seed is added to the batter, contributing to the cake's moist texture as well as its flavor. Baked in a tube pan, it is dusted with powdered sugar when cool.

"It is not a real sweet cake, so is appealing to any number of occasions and will keep for at least a week," Loretta remarked.

GRAPE JELLY

3 pounds Concord grapes
½ cup water
7 cups granulated sugar
½ bottle liquid fruit pectin

Examine fruit carefully, being careful to use only full-ripened grapes. Discard any grapes that are under-ripe or rotten. Place in a colander and wash well. Remove stems.

Place grapes in a large pot and crush thoroughly with a potato masher. Add water. Bring to a boil and simmer, covered, ten minutes.

Pour mixture into a jelly cloth or bag or into several layers of cheesecloth which have been placed in a colander over a pot. Squeeze out juice and push down on pulp with a potato masher. Handle carefully; it is very hot. Squeeze out all the juice.

Measure four cups of juice into a very large pan. Add sugar and mix well. Place over high heat and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. When it comes to a boil, immediately add the pectin. Bring to a full rolling boil, stirring constantly, and boil hard for one minute. Test with a metal spoon.

Remove from heat and skim off foam with a metal spoon. Pour quickly into scalded glasses. Cover at once with 1/8-inch of hot paraffin. (Never melt paraffin over direct heat; always use a double boiler).

Put metal caps on jars after paraffin has hardened. Yield: about ten medium-size jelly glasses.

CANNED SAUERKRAUT

1 large head cabbage, shredded
Salt
Boiling water
Pack shredded cabbage fairly tight up into the neck of each quart jar. Add one teaspoon salt to each quart. Fill with boiling water and seal lid as tight as possible. Every few days, screw lids on tighter. As cabbage ferments, it loosens the caps. It is ready to eat in about three weeks. Yield: about 6 quarts.

To cook sauerkraut, place in saucepan with just enough water to cover. Add salt, pepper and caraway seeds. Cook about 15 minutes. It is delicious drained well and added to the pan with a roast pork the last 45 minutes of roasting time.

POPPY SEED CAKE

2 cups sugar
4 eggs
1½ cups vegetable oil
1 large can evaporated milk
3 cups all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking soda
1 can Solo brand poppy seed
Put sugar, eggs, oil and evaporated milk into a large bowl. Mix well with an electric mixer or by hand. Add flour and baking soda and beat well. Add poppy seed and mix thoroughly.

Turn into an ungreased tube pan and bake one hour and 15 minutes at 350 degrees. Let cool in pan about 15 to 20 minutes; remove and let cool on rack. When cake is thoroughly cool, dust with powdered sugar. Store in covered container.

A CONCORD GRAPE vine in the backyard inspired Loretta Libricz of Buffalo Grove to develop her jelly making talents to utilize the fruit. Her first attempts were so successful that she was encouraged to try other foods. Loretta now makes pickles and sauerkraut as well as grape jelly to stock her pantry shelves.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

"Apfel strudel is a challenge to all Austrian cooks who try to produce the finest strudel and strudel paste," observes Chief Purser Ewald H. Gudenus of the TS Hansette. On our cruise the chefs more than met that challenge and strudel was one of my favorite desserts.

Here's the recipe to make 8 to 10 servings. For the strudel dough, sift 2 cups plain flour and a pinch of salt. Stir in 1 egg yolk, 1 tablespoon melted butter or oil, and ½ cup (approximately) warm water, enough to make a soft dough. Knead on a warm, floured board. When smooth, cover with a warm cloth and bowl and let stand for approximately 15 minutes.

Meantime prepare the filling. Fry ¼ cup breadcrumbs in ¼ cup butter. Core and slice thinly 1½ pounds (four to five medium) apples. Carefully mix crumbs, apples, 2 ounces currants, 2 ounces seedless raisins, 2 ounces sugar, 1 to 2 teaspoons powdered cinnamon, grated rind of ½ lemon.

Now back to the strudel paste. Cover a table with a clean cloth. Sprinkle with flour and place the dough in the middle. Roll out as thinly as possible using mainly the balls of the thumbs. It should be pulled out thinly enough to read through, but this takes lots of practice.

Spread apple mixture over the dough to within ½ inch of the edges. Roll like a Swiss roll (overlapping) and lift onto a baking sheet. Curve into horse-shoe shape, if necessary. Brush with melted butter and bake in the center of a hot oven, 425 to 450 degrees for 20 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 to 375 and continue baking for 30 minutes. Brush at least twice during baking with additional butter. Serve sliced, hot or cold with whipped cream.

Another favorite of the Hanseatic chefs was Bavarian Cream, a combination of cream, gelatine and custard mixture. The custard can be varied by adding chocolate or coffee flavoring, using almond in place of the vanilla or flavoring with brandy or sherry.

The basic recipe, 4 to 6 servings. Beat 4 egg yolks with 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons, powdered sugar (confectioners). Heat 8 ounces (1 cup) milk until hot, but not boiling, and add to egg yolks and sugar. Cook in top of double boiler until it becomes a smooth, thick custard.

Blend 1 "light dessertspoon" (scant teaspoon) powdered gelatine (no more) with 2 tablespoons cold water. Place receptacle containing gelatine and water in a pan of very hot water and stir until gelatine has dissolved. Add this to the custard, together with ½ teaspoon vanilla and stir over heat until thickened. Allow to cool but not to set then fold in ½ pint thick whipped cream. Serve in individual glasses or put into mold and turn out when set.

An attractive dessert known as Russian cream is made with the same ingredients with the addition of ¼ to 1 pint of raspberry jelly. Half the liquid raspberry jelly should be put into a mold and allowed to set.

Then the cold but still fairly liquid Bavarian cream is spooned over and allowed to set. Finally add the other half of the raspberry jelly by spooning on top. You have bright clear jelly at the top and bottom of the opaque Bavarian cream when set and ready to serve.

International Day Of Bread

Marks Revival Of Ancient Custom

There's nothing like baking your own bread! You receive a special satisfaction as you combine the ingredients, as you knead the dough, and as you savor the aromas which mingle through the house while the bread is baking.

It seems an appropriate suggestion that you bake a loaf of bread on next Tuesday, which has been designated as the International Day of Bread. The return to this celebration, which began in Germany in 1934, marks the revival of an ancient custom when men stopped to say thanks for the annual harvest.

Here are two breads featuring "fruits" of nature which can be mastered by even a beginning baker.

Banana Wheat Bread is made from a combination of flours — whole wheat and unbleached all purpose flour. Mashed ripe bananas and chopped nuts are added to the dough for an extra special flavor and texture.

To make, the dry yeast is combined with other dry ingredients, then is dissolved when a warm liquid is added to this mixture. Mixing methods have changed and now get a head start on the electric mixer. This helps develop the gluten (which forms the bread's structure), and shortens the kneading time to about 2 minutes.

After the bread has cooled, glaze with a powdered sugar icing for a finishing touch.

NO KNEAD SWEET BREAD is another bread we think you'll enjoy making and eating. This bread begins with unbleached all purpose flour and is flavored with orange juice. The addition of grated raw carrots, raisins and chopped nuts increases the flavor as well as the nutritional value of this special bread.

The preparation is easy, too, as the kneading step has been eliminated and the dough only rises once before baking. While warm, glaze with a powdered sugar icing.

Both Banana Wheat Bread and the No Knead Sweet Bread — served plain or toasted — making excellent additions to breakfast menus. Because of their special "sweet touch," you'll also find these breads are nice accompaniments for light luncheons of salad or soup.

BANANA WHEAT BREAD

Generously grease 9 x 5-inch or 8 x 4-inch loaf pan.

Combine the following dry ingredients in large mixer bowl:

1 cup whole wheat flour
½ cup sugar

1½ teaspoons salt
1 package active dry yeast
Heat the following in sauce pan over low heat until warm, not hot.
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons cooking oil

Add 1 egg and warm liquid to flour mixture. Beat ½ minute at low speed, 2 minutes at medium speed.

Add 1 ripe banana, mashed, and ½ cup chopped nuts to yeast mixture, beat 1 minute.

Stir in 2½ to 3 cups unbleached flour gradually to form a soft dough. Knead on floured surface until smooth and elastic — about 2 minutes.

Cover dough; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 45 to 60 minutes. Punch down dough. Shape into loaf. Place in greased pan. Cover; let rise in warm place until light, 30 to 45 minutes.

Bake in preheated 350-degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes until loaf sounds hollow when lightly tapped. Remove from pan immediately. Cool; glaze with powdered sugar glaze, if desired.

NO KNEAD SWEET BREAD

Generously grease 2 quart deep round casserole or 9 x 5-inch loaf pan.

Combine following ingredients in large mixer bowl:

2 cups unbleached flour
1/3 cup sugar
1½ teaspoons salt
2 packages active dry yeast
Heat in saucepan over low heat until warm:
2 cups orange juice

¼ cup cooking oil

Add 1 egg and warm liquid to flour mixture. Blend at lowest speed until moistened, beat 2 minutes at medium speed.

Stir following into yeast mixture:

1 cup grated raw carrots
½ to 1 cup raisins
½ cup chopped nuts

By hand, gradually stir in 2½ to 3 cups unbleached flour to form a stiff batter.

Cover dough; let rise in warm place until light and doubled — about 50 minutes. Stir down dough; spoon into greased pan.

Bake in preheated 375-degree oven for 45 to 50 minutes until loaf sounds hollow when lightly tapped. Remove immediately. Glaze warm bread with powdered sugar glaze, if desired.

Fresh apples will be attractive buys for consumers next month, according to reports from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

Apples will be the featured item on the USDA's October Plentiful Foods list. Other foods on the list are canned applesauce and apple juice, rice, dry beans, wheat products, broiler-fryers, turkeys and eggs.

According to USDA reports, fresh apples will be in peak supply next month, just in time for the annual observance of National Apple Week, Oct. 26 to Nov. 4.

For the fourth consecutive year, the apple harvest will be about 150 million bushels. Stocks of canned applesauce and apple juice are large, assuring October supplies.

Rice production this year is estimated to be the greatest volume in three years and should result in attractive consumer prices for this versatile commodity.

October broiler-fryers production is expected to be three per cent more than a year ago. While consumer prices will probably top the very low prices which prevailed last year, chicken will continue to be a relatively good buy.

National Bake-A-Chicken Week, Oct. 1 to 7, is an opportune time to take advantage of the attractively priced broiler-fryers.

Baked chicken recipes include casseroles in which broiler-fryer chicken pieces or quarters are baked in casseroles or baking dishes with a sauce or other liquid.

The following recipe for Baked Mustard Chicken is an excellent way to utilize economical chicken in your menus.

BAKED MUSTARD CHICKEN

2 broiler-fryers, quartered
2 teaspoons salt
½ cup prepared mustard
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 teaspoon dried leaf thyme
¼ teaspoon ginger

Sprinkle chicken on both sides with salt. Place skin side up in foil-lined shallow baking pan. Mix together mustard, vinegar, water, salad oil, thyme and ginger. Spoon over chicken. Bake in 375-degree oven 50 to 60 minutes, until tender. Makes 8 servings.

Look Younger Day After Day After Day

Suddenly one morning you look in the mirror and face the truth. You don't look as young as you used to.

Women in many parts of the world have, like you, been distressed by the skin dryness that accents the wrinkles and lines that make a woman look older than she is. Then they discovered a world-renowned beauty secret. These women could tell you the benefits of their secret, Oil of Olay moisturizing lotion. But why not experience the beautiful results yourself?

Quick-penetrating Oil of Olay was created by beauty researchers to ease away dryness. Watch as your skin all but drinks in the unique blend, with its tropical moisturizing oils, abundant natural moisture, and other emollients. The precious fluid helps maintain the oil-moisture balance needed for younger-looking skin. Its natural ingredients help retain your skin's own moisture to keep you younger-looking still.

Oil of Olay is as near as your drugstore. Apply lavishly morning and night. Look younger day after day after day.

Distinctive Cheese Dressing Accents Fresh Green Beans

Vegetables add the color accept to a meal and also provide vitamin A and minerals. Yet, for many homemakers, the decision of what vegetable or vegetables to serve is frequently the hardest part of meal planning.

Call on green beans more often. The fresh, varietals are available all year around while frozen and canned green beans are with us always lending their great convenience.

Let's think about fresh green beans available now. Little do we care whether they are the pole variety or bush beans but they must be crispy fresh, young and tender.

These quality green beans deserve the distinctive cheese dressing the good cooks of Denmark have shown us how to use. The beans are left whole and cooked to a crispy-tender stage. Then, the lightly seasoned beans get a drizzle or two of melted butter and a ribbon of melted delicious Danbo Cheese. Or, other Danish cheeses equally good as a dressing are Samsøe and Tybo. All three are natural cheeses.

TO COOK GREEN BEANS:

Select beans that are clean, firm and tender and look uniform in size and length. Wash them well in cold water and drain. Rarely do we find quality green beans today that need "stringing" and for this convenience we thank the agricultural scientists.

Follow the Danes and cut only the tip ends of the beans with a sharp knife using a cutting board. Then, you'll avoid waste.

To cook, use a flat bottom sauce pan with tight fitting cover that fits the size and amount of beans to be cooked. Don't crowd the beans, but lay them end to end in the pan as this makes serving easier.

Use a small amount of salt and only a small amount of cold water — usually 1/2 to 1 cup of water depending upon the amount of beans. Count on two pounds of green beans making six servings when cooked.

Start beans cooking on high heat and when the water is rapidly boiling (don't mistake the steam that rises first as boiling) turn to low heat. Start timing the cooking and allow 18 to 20 minutes to cook the whole green beans crispy, tender. Do not lift cover while cooking as this loses the build-up of steam that cooks the vegetables. Get in the habit of timing your vegetables, not peeking!

TO SERVE:

With a wide spatula, lift the green beans to a warm serving platter. Drizzle 1/4 cup melted butter over beans. Sprinkle with a bit of paprika.

In the meantime, grate or cut into small pieces four-ounces of Danbo Danish cheese. Place in a small pan, placed in hot water or in top of double boiler. Melt just in time to dress the green beans.

Instead of the mild flavored, firm textured Danbo that everyone likes, you might use Tybo, recognized by its red ring, or delicious popular Samsøe. You'll find that all three of these quality Danish cheeses have interesting flavors that complement vegetables.

Pour the melted cheese over just half or two-thirds of the beans in ribbon fashion. Serve immediately with roast beef, lamb, chicken or turkey. Two pounds of cooked, prepared green beans makes 6 servings or 1 1/2 pounds 4 servings.

Fish Recipes Are A Good Catch

Interesting, easy-to-fix fish recipes are something of a catch so don't let these two get away. Either one would be a superb way to prepare the family angler's catch but they're good tasting too, made with frozen fillets from the market. Each of the recipes is a combination of ingredients not commonly associated with fish dishes but the results are uncommonly delicious.

Dilly Crisp Fish Fillets are old favorite fried fish with a new twist. Instead of a batter, the fillets are coated with country style mashed potato flakes. When done — and remember fish cooks quickly — the fillets are crisp and beautifully browned. Serve with Golden Tartar Sauce — a mixture of mayonnaise and dill pickle enlivened with prepared yellow mustard.

A simple, savory sauce made with evaporated milk, prepared yellow mustard and chopped tomato highlights the Baked Fish Fillets. Arranged in layers with the colorful creamy sauce, the dish is attractive and appealing.

Serve either dish with green peas, pickled beets and a loaf of crusty French bread and top off with sliced peaches and cookies and glasses of milk. These suggested menus are balanced meals providing servings from each of the Basic Four Food Groups we all need daily to keep fit.

DILLY CRISP FISH FILLETS

- 1 egg
- 2 tablespoons dill pickle juice
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 pounds fish fillets
- About 1 cup mashed potato flakes
- 2 to 3 tablespoons butter or oil
- Golden Tartar Sauce
- Beat together egg, pickle juice, and salt in shallow pan. Dip fish fillets in egg mixture, then in potato flakes. Fry in melted butter or oil for 3 to 4 minutes on each side, until golden brown. Serve with Golden Tartar Sauce, 6 servings.
- Golden Tartar Sauce: Stir together 1/2 cup mayonnaise, 3 tablespoons chopped dill pickle, and 1 tablespoon prepared yellow mustard

BAKED FISH FILLETS

- 1 tablespoon flour
- 2 tablespoons prepared yellow mustard
- 1/2 cup evaporated milk
- 1 tomato, chopped
- 1 teaspoon parsley flakes
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 to 2 pounds fish fillets
- Salt and black pepper
- Combine flour and mustard in small mixing bowl; gradually stir in milk. Add tomato, parsley flakes, and salt. Sprinkle fish with salt and pepper. Place 1 layer of fish in shallow 1 1/2 or 2-quart casserole. Spoon half the tomato mixture over fish. Top with remaining fish and tomato mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes, until fish flakes easily when pierced with a fork. 4 to 6 servings.

Sausage Scrapple Arouses Appetites For Morning Meals

A wise homemaker makes certain her family maintains the daily ritual of the morning meal. She relies on the aroma and flavor of meat to bring an eager family to the breakfast table.

For a delicious change from basic breakfast meats, start the day out with sausage scrapple, a flavorful specialty originated by the thrifty wives of Pennsylvania Dutch farmers. It can be prepared and chilled the day before trying and serving to eliminate morning rush.

SAUSAGE SCRAPPLE

- 2 pounds pork sausage
- 1 can (13 ounces) or 1 1/2 cups evaporated milk
- 3 cups water
- 1 1/4 cups yellow cornmeal
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 2 cups crushed corn flakes
- 2 eggs
- 3 to 4 tablespoons lard or drippings
- Brown sausage and pour off drippings. Combine milk and water. Measure 4 cups of liquid and add to sausage. Reserve remaining liquid for dipping scrapple. Heat sausage mixture to boiling and slowly stir in cornmeal and seasonings. Cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Pour into a greased 8x8 inch loaf pan and chill until firm. Unmold and cut into 1/2-inch slices. Dip into cornflakes. Combine eggs and remaining liquid and dip slices in this mixture, then in corn flakes again. Brown in lard or drippings on both sides and serve hot with syrup. 8 servings.

We feel like 100 MILLION DOLLARS ...and so should you!

When you stop and think of it, one hundred million dollars ($100,000,000.00) is a lot of money. It's your money. You have entrusted us to manage it.

An institution which attains this level in assets acquires a new status in the financial world. Frankly, we like the feeling—and you should, too.

On our side, it means a rarely attained achievement. It means a highly professional competence. It means giving our customers a variety of financially sound and flexible savings plans and paying the highest rates allowed by law. It means providing our customers with sure, dependable loans. It means protecting our savers' dollars, not only with the insurance of a Federal agency but with our own financial strength and integrity.

On your part, it means significant accomplishment. As a mutual institution chartered by the Federal Government, we are owned—not by officers, directors, employees, or stockholders—but by you who make use of our facilities and services. This is what you have accomplished in the 19-plus years since Arlington Federal Savings was founded in March 1953:

- You have made $200,000,000 available through your savings to families seeking to achieve ambitions for home ownership or home renovation. This is a stout fund enabling thousands of northwest suburban families to obtain the financing needed to build, buy, or remodel their residences. It has contributed vastly to the economic strength of the area.

- You have added $22,000,000 to your resources—the earnings you have received for depositing your savings with us and making them available for home lending.

- You have encouraged the physical development of the Association along adopted Williamsburg colonial lines rather than in the direction of a modern "antiseptic" building. This is really your financial home; we have simply tried to make it as you have indicated you like it.

The best evidence that you endorse what has been done is our extraordinary record of growth, a record that within just two decades has placed us within the top 10 per cent of the nation's 5,550 savings and loan associations. Particularly convincing is your response to our April 1971 announcement of expansion plans:

- A 22 per cent increase in savings assets during 1971, the largest percentile gain in over a decade.

- The surpassing of the 1971 record in the first seven months of 1972, a savings pace which, if maintained, will produce an incredible 40 per cent increase for the whole year.

"I've always been treated royal." The 21,000 persons who registered during the six-week Open House ending July 15 paid their compliments in words. Of all the congratulatory expressions, the one we cherish most is a handwritten note from an Iron Mountain (Mich.) lady, a former local resident, who wrote:

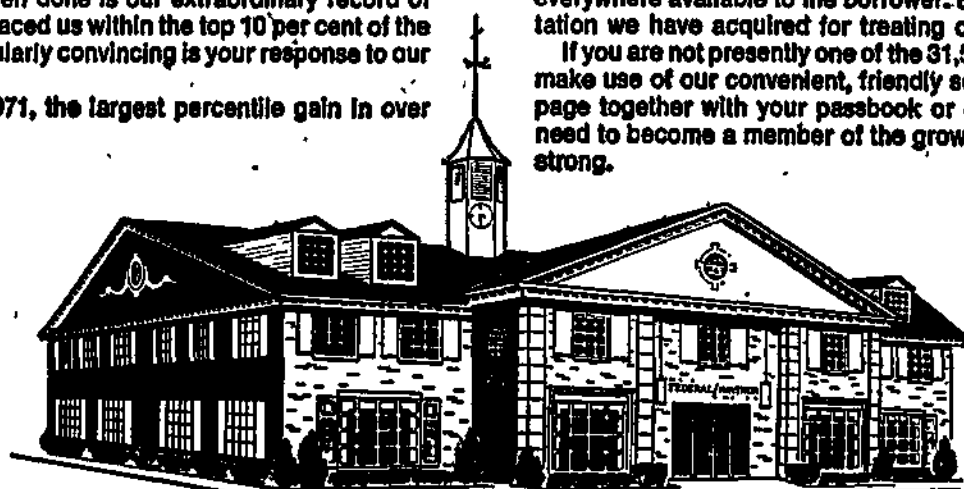

"Words can't begin to say how beautiful the bank now is (we forgive her for calling us a bank). It sure is something to be proud of and I'm very glad to be a depositor. I took several of your brochures to show my friends and relatives up here and all they could say was they have never seen anything quite like it or so huge or beautiful. As long as I've been banking I've always been treated royal and I expect to keep banking at Arlington Heights Federal for quite some time."

We are particularly grateful for the comment about "royal" treatment. We think the architecture has something to do with it; our employees frequently comment how easy it is to be warm and friendly in such surroundings. Customers too get into the spirit when they enter the building.

In addition, of course, we have emphasized in our staff relations programs that in a business like ours where one dollar bill is quite like another, friendly service is the distinguishing characteristic among savings institutions.

We have striven to give our customers every advantage that the laws governing financial institutions and sound, prudent management allow; our savings programs pay the highest allowable rates of return and our home mortgage loans combine advantageous features not everywhere available to the borrower. Beyond these competitive features is the special reputation we have acquired for treating our customers "royal."

If you are not presently one of the $1,500 savings customers, now is an appropriate time to make use of our convenient, friendly services and facilities. The New Account Form on this page together with your passbook or certificate from another savings institution is all you need to become a member of the growing Arlington Federal Savings family—$100,000,000 strong.

HIGH, SAFE EARNINGS A variety of savings plans, passbook and certificate, pay from 5 to 6 per cent, the highest legal rates. Accounts are insured up to $20,000 by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC). Total insurance coverage can be increased substantially when two or more people own the accounts.

DAY-IN, DAY-OUT INTEREST Interest is compounded daily and paid quarterly for the actual time it is in your passbook account. Deposits and withdrawals may be made at any time.

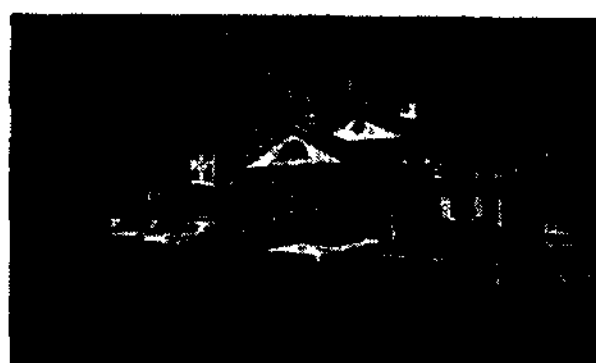

FULL RANGE OF SERVICES Every teller is full service, handling savings transactions, payments on home mortgage, home improvement, and college loans, traveler's and registered checks, money orders, and Christmas and Vacation Club payments.

ON-LINE RECORDS Beginning October 1, customer transactions will be more speedily handled by computers through direct cable connection between tellers' terminals and the data processing department.

SAVE BY MAIL Our save by mail plan means that we are as close as your nearest mail box. Saving by mail is convenient, fast, and efficient.

DRIVE-IN SERVICE New Drive-In facilities permit simultaneous service to three car customers, served by pneumatic tubes and direct speaker systems.

AMPLE PARKING Two adjacent Association parking lots and two Village parking areas surround the Association on three sides, providing 178 free parking spaces.

Revenue Sharing Compromise Plan Hits Suburbs Hard

by KURT BAER

Northwest suburbs appear to be in for drastic reductions in federal revenue sharing if a compromise House-Senate program is adopted by both houses of Congress.

The compromise measure would result in cuts of 60 to 80 per cent for most suburbs compared with an earlier House-passed measure.

Arlington Heights would be particularly hard hit by the recommended compromise. Under the revenue-sharing bill passed by the House, Arlington Heights could expect to receive $1,007,068 this year. The compromise program would cut the allocation to $246,211, according to figures released yesterday by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

Other Chicago suburbs would experience similar percentage reductions. The state's largest cities, however, notably the City of Chicago, would receive more money under the compromise provision.

COMPARISONS between the House and compromise versions for other Northwest suburbs are: Buffalo Grove $188,566 (House) to $23,400 (compromise); Des Plaines $908,711 to $327,509; Elk Grove $417,241 to $137,385; Hoffman Estates $379,929 to $73,174; Mount Prospect $529,656 to $144,032; Palatine $416,556 to $89,635; Rolling Meadows $317,101 to $72,411; Schaumburg $314,684 to $61,630; and Wheeling $146,760 to $46,522.

The compromise measure was worked out after a Senate bill, strongly backed by rural interests, was approved, taking money away from affluent suburbs and distributing it to large cities and rural areas.

Chicago's allocation would go from $58,899,411 under the House version to $69,335,285 under the compromise version.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. John Woods called the compromise measure "disappointing indeed." He said if the compromise is ratified by the House and Senate it "would not be very meaningful to Arlington Heights or any of the other suburbs."

Arlington Heights trustees had discussed using revenue sharing money for a number of major capital improvements including flood control, landfill site acquisition and transportation improvements.

"While we fully recognize Chicago's needs for funds, this doesn't make our needs any less acute," Woods said.

Woods said he planned to send what he called "a salvo of telegrams" to area Senators and Representatives urging them to reject the compromise. He said he hoped and would urge other suburban mayors to take similar action.

SCHAUMBURG MAYOR Robert Atcher also criticized the compromise proposal saying it discriminated against the suburbs.

"I'm sorry the compromise discriminates against suburban municipalities," giving more for big cities and little rural towns. "If you compare the tax picture... the towns close in near Chicago have tremendous problems by comparison. To skip over communities with the problems is unfair," Atcher said.

A spokesman in Percy's office said the smaller compromise figures are the result of the formula used to distribute money within each state. This formula takes into account what the spokesman called each town's "taxing effort" and the relative income of its population.

Towns with higher per-capita incomes got less money than those with lower such figures. "This will hurt the suburbs," the spokesman said.

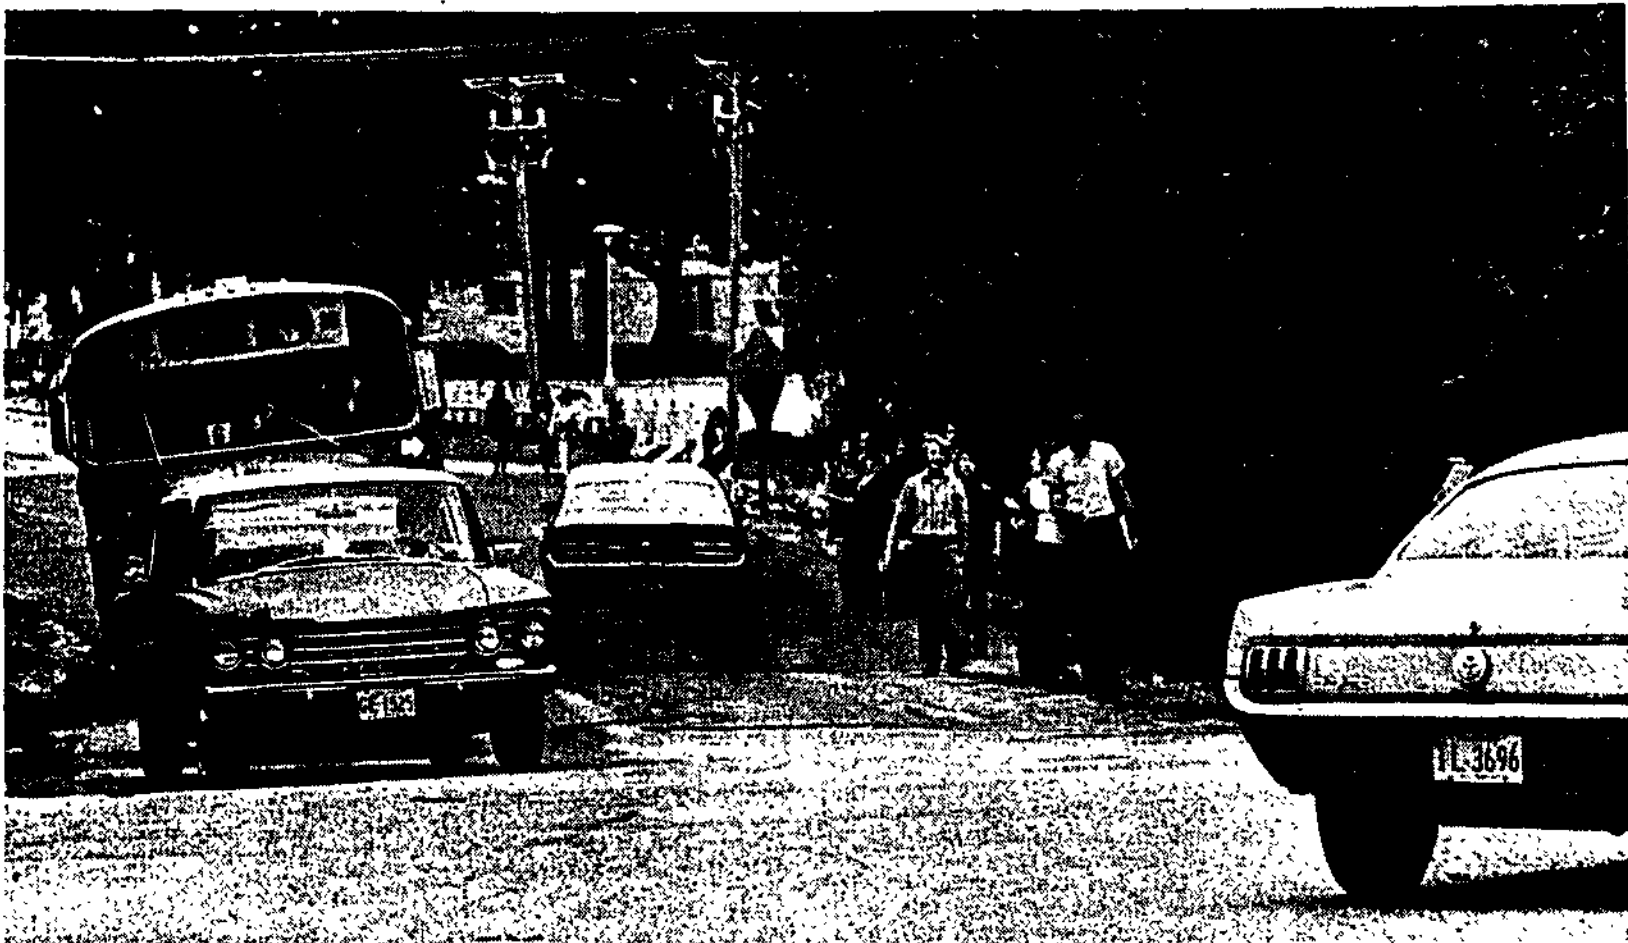

There is a provision in the compromise measure, however, that would allow state legislatures to alter the revenue sharing formula by eliminating the per-capita income factor.

If a state chooses to alter the formula, it must apply the revised program to all municipalities in the state for the full five year duration of the revenue-sharing program, the spokesman said.

THE PERCY spokesman outlined three ways in which the compromise formula could be altered by state legislative action.

One alternate formula is based on multiplying the population's general tax effort times its population. A second means is multiplying population times the per-

Pollution Control Deadline Extension

Village Won't Oppose Magnet Wire

Elk Grove Village has no plans to testify against a request by Chicago Magnet Wire Corp. to extend its deadline for installing pollution control equipment at its plant at 801 Chase Ave. Village Atty. Edward Hofert said Tuesday.

According to an agreement among the village, the company and the Illinois attorney general's office, Magnet Wire was to install a system to eliminate 95 per cent of the odor emitted by its plant by Oct. 15. Two weeks ago the company requested a deadline extension on the grounds that delays in receiving parts have put work on the system behind schedule.

Hofert said he and the attorney general's office have discussed the subject and see no point in opposing the extension.

"We made a physical inspection of the plant last week, and apparent observations indicate that the company is being reasonably diligent in installing the system," he said. "The court will decide whether or not to grant the extension but we see no profit in testifying against it."

HE SAID COMPANY officials told him that delays had been caused because contract suppliers had not fulfilled their commitments and delivered some materials 30 to 40 days late.

After the visit to the plant Hofert said it appeared that all materials, including the late items, were at the plant and all the general construction, such as platforms and stairs, were completed. He said he was told the company hopes to turn on the first section of the installation about Nov. 15 and the second section Dec. 1.

The pollution control system being installed at the plant is completely new, and there is none like it working anywhere else, Hofert said. He added that company officials have said that much testing would be necessary after the equipment was in operation.

Hofert said the cost of the pollution control devices was about $360,000 and added to the cost of construction, the system was costing the company more than $600,000. Gases to burn off the odor-producing phenolic compounds would cost about $80,000 per year, he said.

According to the March agreement, Chicago Magnet Wire has been required to report to the village and the state attorney general's office progress on the pollution control system every 30 days. This summer the company has been saying it was getting behind schedule, and some deliveries from Pennsylvania were delayed because of flooding.

Village Salutes Police, Fireman

Three Elk Grove Village policemen were awarded certificates of commendation and a village firefighter was recognized for five years of service at the village board meeting Tuesday.

Police Sgt. Jay Akely, Patrolman Michael Severns and Patrolman John Banter were honored for their actions in the arrest of a narcotics pusher Aug. 23. Richard Virga, 20, was arrested after police confiscated drugs in his Elk Grove Village apartment.

Banter also received a second commendation for detecting a quantity of marijuana and drugs in a car driven by Michael Curik, 19, of Wisconsin during a traffic arrest March 20.

Elk Grove Village firefighter Wayne Singel was presented with a five-year award for service to the community. He joined the fire department Sept. 15, 1967 and was promoted to fire engineer Oct. 6, 1970.

Martin Waltzman, 20, of Chicago, was sworn in as the village's newest patrolman. He is the youngest policeman ever to join the department.

Recommend Original School Boundary Changes

The special committee on attendance boundaries for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 has finished its work.

At a meeting Tuesday night, the committee completed discussion and made a recommendation on the last problem area, the Cook School attendance boundary in Elk Grove Village. The committee held to its original recommendation for the boundary change, but gave the school administration and board the responsibility for determining when the change would be made.

The committee called for the Cook attendance area to be split by a line down the center of the lake northwest of the school and continuing south on Wellington Avenue. Students living west of the line would be bused to Salt Creek School, students living east of the line would remain at Cook. The original recommendation called for this change to be implemented for the school year starting September, 1973.

The committee modified the original recommendation by stating that the change would not take effect until, "a review is made in June, 1973 and/or June, 1974 by the administration and a potential overcrowding is found to exist. All or a portion of the recommended boundary change should be implemented."

FRED SCHUSTER, a resident of the Elk Grove Estates subdivision, one of the areas from which children would be bused to Salt Creek under the recommendation, said he was satisfied with the committee's action.

"They are recommending that when the school becomes overcrowded, the boundaries should be changed. That's reasonable," said Schuster.

Schuster was the spokesman for Elk Grove Estate area parents, who were strongly opposed to the boundary change. He had previously presented a report to the committee which disagreed with their expectations for student population, at Cook. The Schuster report forced the committee to state there were too many variables expected in construction and population for a definite date to be set to implement the boundary change.

Beginning Square Dance Lessons Set

Beginning square dance lessons for children and adults, sponsored by the Elk Grove Park District, will begin Oct. 4 and 5.

Adult lessons will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday, at Ridge School,

After making the recommendation for Cook School, the committee gave final approval to the wording and content of its report to the school board.

The report will be submitted to the board on Oct. 2, the next regularly scheduled board meeting.

650 Ridge Ave., Elk Grove Village. Children's lessons will be the same time on Thursday evenings at Ridge.

Registration for the lessons can be made at the park district office, 499 Biesterfeld Rd.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Brimming with confidence that has him musing about the size of his potential mandate, President Nixon took his reelection campaign from New York to California. He spoke at $1,000-a-plate dinners in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

After weeks of hard campaigning on the road, Sen. George S. McGovern will take his case to the people through prime-time television, starting with nationwide broadcast of a half-hour biography Sunday night.

The government's index of leading economic indicators jumped sharply in August after two sluggish months, proving that the economic recovery is not about to run out of steam as some critics charged, the Commerce Department said.

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger flew back to the U.S. to report to President Nixon after completing two days of secret meetings with North Vietnamese delegates to the Vietnam peace talks.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, stumping in a cornfield near Galesburg, told farmers the Nixon administration has dramatically expanded farm markets but "won't be happy" until farmers' incomes match average nonfarm incomes.

The Senate Armed Services Committee has decided to investigate charges that Navy fliers — as well as Air Force pilots commanded by Lt. Gen. John D. LaVelle — bombed North Vietnam in violation of President Nixon's restrictions.

The State

Yellow tickets blossomed like dandelions on Chicago's streets as the men in blue turned motorists purple with uncommonly strict enforcement of traffic laws. The "ticket blitz" was a campaign by policemen to persuade Supt. James B. Coakley to negotiate with police organizations on bargaining demands.

More than 130 motorists were jailed for traffic infractions.

Former Black Panther Verline Brewer testified that a black policeman threatened to "blow her head off" during a 1969 police raid in which two Panther leaders were killed.

The World

Three American war prisoners released by North Vietnam more than a week ago arrived in Moscow and said they were willing to meet privately with U.S. diplomats. They were in high spirits and apparently in good health.

The Philippine government announced

the closure of all casinos and enforcement of a broad anticrime code under prevailing martial law.

Bombers struck three times in Northern Ireland, but police foiled the fourth and most dangerous attack. One teenage gunman died in a hail of army bullets in Belfast.

The War

Communist rockets hit the Allied air base at Da Nang for the second time in five days, but the seven Soviet-built heavy missiles fell harmlessly in an open field, the U.S. command said. There were no casualties or damage.

The Market

The Stock market rallied strongly, sparked by rumors of peace moves surrounding the Vietnam War. Volume on the New York Stock Exchange accelerated from its recent pace. The Dow Jones Average soared 10.69 to 947.25. Advances routed declines, 1,042 to 393, among 1,751 issues crossing the tape. Prices were higher in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange.

From The Library

Women's subjects are taking over the Elk Grove Village Public Library — at least on the "new books" shelf, that is. Some recent acquisitions are for or about women.

"Young and Female" by Pat Ross relates the turning points in the lives of eight well-known American women. Shirley MacLaine, Shirley Chisholm and Althea Gibson are some of the subjects, all of whom tell their stories in their own words.

The essential historical writings of feminism are collected in "Feminism," edited by Miriam Schneier. The writings span 120 years, from the American Revolution (Abigail Adams and Mary Wollstonecraft) to post-World War I. Each selection is introduced by the editor.

"Mary Wollstonecraft" chronicles the life of that eighteenth century author whose writings foreshadowed many of our most popular contemporary ideas on women.

Her love affairs and radical views may have inspired the life of George Sand, the liberated French author of the nineteenth century, whose unconventional life is recorded in Samuel Edward's "George Sand."

"When Women Rule," edited by Sam Moskowitz, is a collection of science fiction stories with a common theme — women fighting for and gaining dominance.

Science takes over in the book "The Descent of Woman" by Elaine Morgan. Her theory for incorporating the role of women into evolution is a challenge to Darwinism since it holds that the role of women is more than reproductive.

Back to fiction: Alix Kates Shulman's bitter novel "Memoirs of an Ex-Prom" explores the effect on one woman's young, produce photogenic children.

Flaking Sidewalks, Driveway Aprons

Village Delays Action On Repairs

Elk Grove Village Trustees postponed action Tuesday to force Centex Corp. to repair flaking sidewalks and driveway aprons in one section of the village it developed after residents protested the village's plan would look like a patched up job.

The village had agreed this summer to allow Centex Corp. to repair the chipping pavement by resurfacing aprons and/or sidewalks at 104 homes in the Yarmouth and Exmoor Road area. Resurfacing had been completed at some 40 homes before work was stopped because of a protest from residents.

After promising residents the matter would be reconsidered, the board reappraised the same project Sept. 12 but promised not to order the work resumed until residents were given another board meeting to voice their opinions.

At Tuesday's meeting several residents complained they were being forced to accept patched up driveways because the original concrete was not poured properly by Centex. One resident said he felt that the total financial responsibility for restoring the driveways and aprons to their original condition belonged to the builder.

"By the time I finish paying for my house, I will have put $60,000 into it and I don't want a sloppy-looking neighborhood," Ken Kerwin, 320 Yarmouth Rd., said.

Residents argued that the proposed plans would degrade the neighborhood and lower property values.

Kerwin said he has lived in the village 14 years and felt he was getting little relief from the village board concerning the problem.

Trustee Ron Chernick said it was the village's fault in failing to contact residents before the resurfacing project began. However, he said the plan had been worked out over a period of months and was the best solution the village could find. He said the driveways were structurally sound, and Centex had guaranteed that asphalt would solve the flaking problem.

Later in the meeting when Village Mgr. Charles Willis asked the board whether or not he was to order the resurfacing resumed, the board unexpectedly reversed itself and voted down the plan 4 to 3. The matter was sent back to committee for further study.

New I-90 Section Causing Problems For Ambulances

The opening of a new section of Interstate 90 has saved driving time to Chicago for citizens, but lengthened driving time for ambulances en route to Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

Hoffman Estates Village Mgr. George Longmeyer told the village board Monday he had received a call from a resident noting that the opening of the new highway coincided with the closing of the Old Rte. 53.

Old Rte. 53 gave access to Biesterfeld Road, on which the medical center is situated. New Rte. 53 does not have such access, and ambulances must travel to Thorndale Road and cut back to Biesterfeld, reported Longmeyer. This adds three to five minutes to the time ambulances from Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg require to reach the hospital, he said.

While such a time difference might be insignificant to most drivers, it is highly important in ambulance calls, said Longmeyer.

"It could possibly make the difference between life or death," said the village manager.

If the ambulances did not use Rte. 53 to get to the hospital, the next closest route would appear to be Arlington Heights Road, which intersects the east end of Biesterfeld. Rte. 53 crosses the west end of Biesterfeld.

Longmeyer has written to the state highway department asking that old Rte. 53 be reopened and made a one-way street headed south. The Village of Schaumburg has said it will make the same request, said Longmeyer.

This would allow the ambulances to have the shortest possible route to the hospital, although they would have to take a longer route on their return trip.

Village Opposes MSD On Lake Water Suit

Elk Grove Village Trustees voted Tuesday to actively oppose a suit filed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) that would block the allocation of Lake Michigan water granted to the village in July.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert told the trustees that if the village was interested in keeping its water allocation it had an obligation to defend it and file an answer to the suit.

"We have determined the need for the allocation of water, but unless we fight back, this water will be taken away from us," he told the trustees.

MSD filed the lawsuit in August seeking an injunction and administrative review of the allocation of lake water issued to several Northwest suburban villages, including Elk Grove Village, by the Illinois Department of Transportation.

The state was given the authority to allot up to 3,200 cubic feet per second (cfs) of Lake Michigan water by a U.S. Supreme Court ruling in 1967.

Elk Grove Village received an allotment of 7.4 cfs starting in 1975 which would be increased to 11.8 cfs by 1980. The village currently is appealing to the state for a larger water allotment.

THE VILLAGE board also sent a proposal for a moratorium on construction from State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, to its judiciary, planning and zoning committee. The temporary halt to construction was suggested in an attempt to solve recent flooding problems in the suburbs.

In other business:

—Oct. 22-23 was proclaimed as American Education Week in Elk Grove Village in recognition of the service performed by public schools.

—Oct. 24 was designated as United Nations Day.

—An extension of a sign permit was granted United Development Co. for Village on the Lake condominiums.

—Authorization was given for the village president to sign an agreement with Cook County authorizing participation in the Emergency Employment Act Program. The money is used by the village to employ an automotive serviceman.

—The chief of police was authorized to attend the annual conference of the International Association of Chiefs of Police in Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 14-19 at a cost not to exceed $500.

—Oct. 6 was proclaimed as Lions Candy Day, and the week of Oct. 1-7 was designated as Lions Week for the Visually Handicapped.

—Sept. 30 was proclaimed Punt, Pass and Kick Day in Elk Grove Village in recognition of the football competition sponsored by the Village Jaycees.

Trailer Park Rezoning Hit

Mount Prospect's formal objection to a proposed rezoning for a mobile home park in the Oasis Drive-In Theater in unincorporated Elk Grove Township began Tuesday with a resolution passed by the village board.

The objection will be filed by Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann with the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

Oscar Brotman, owner of the site, wants to expand the Oasis Mobile Home Park on Elmhurst Road near Higgins Road, onto his neighboring drive-in theater property. He has estimated that the expansion will provide space for 232 additional trailers.

Mount Prospect is objecting because village officials believe that expansion of the mobile home park would create problems for the village's fire department, which is under contract to service the area.

Zimmermann said the fire department already has to bring its own water to the park when fighting a fire. The department, he said, feels fire hydrants are needed, but under Brotman's plans only fire stations with extinguishers installed every 200 feet will be provided.

High School Teacher Negotiators Offer Pay Plan

Teacher negotiators in High School Dist. 211 Monday offered a salary proposal to the board of education that would freeze the base pay for teachers and provide increases for those with experience in the district.

In making the offer, the Dist. 211 Education Association took the advice of Board Pres. Robert Creek, who indicated at the last bargaining session that he did not think the base pay for beginning teachers needed to be increased this year.

The teachers' new proposal, however, would cost the district more than twice the amount the board has said it wants to spend in additional teacher salaries.

THE NEW PROPOSAL would leave the base pay at $8,300, the same as the 1971-72 salary schedule, but would increase the raises due for teachers for additional education or experience by one half per cent. The top pay in the proposal would be $18,550, compared to $17,638 on the 1971-72 salary scale.

Last week the board negotiators said they did not want to increase the total cost of teacher salaries more than $115,000 over what is presently budgeted. The teachers' new proposal, according to Carl Flaks, chief teacher negotiator, would cost the district $229,000 over the budget.

Flaks said the proposal was drawn up with the idea of rewarding teachers who have spent years in the district, and added the association officials could not stay within the $115,000 offered by the board.

Board members had said they would take the additional cost of salaries out of the working cash fund, which now has more than $400,000 in it. They had said, however, they would not use more than $115,000 out of the fund because they wanted to provide money for contingencies.

THE WORKING CASH fund is built up by a school district through a special tax levy. The money in the fund may be used to make interest free loans to the education and building funds, which are used to operate the district.

The district's 471 teachers returned to work one month ago without a salary contract. They are now being paid on the 1971-72 salary scale, with those who were in the district last year receiving the five per cent increases provided in that scale.

Negotiators for the board said they will study the teachers' proposal. The next bargaining session was scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday in the district's administration building, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine.

In Good Condition After Auto Crash

Charles Kerber Jr., 28, of 39 Evergreen, Elk Grove Village, was reported good condition yesterday at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in the village with lacerations of the scalp after a head-on collision early in the day on Arlington Heights Road just north of Ill. Rte. 72.

The driver of the second car, James Newgard, 23, of 572 S. Plum Grove Rd.,

Palatine, was treated and released at the hospital.

Elk Grove Village Police said at the time of the accident Newgard was heading north on Arlington Heights Road in the lane nearest the center median strip. Kerber, heading south, passed the construction barricades which diverted traffic across the median strip into the normally northbound lanes and collided head-on with Newgard's car, police said.

WAXING AN OLD coupe, with its swooping lines 177 Maricopa Ln., Hoffman Estates. Gerth feels vintage cars, the chariots of his youth, when a service station job was a ticket to heaven.

'They Just Don't Make 'Em Like They Used To'

by NANCY COWGER

When other drivers in Hoffman Estates are bogged down in winter snow, Harold Newby of 138 Bradley Ln. puts right on past them with a cheery wave from inside his black sedan.

And while Newby is forced to stack grocery bags along his auto's running board, Robert Gerth of 177 Maricopa Ln. can reach into his trunk from the front seat, and find an apple for a mid-day snack.

Newby and Gerth are among that special class of men who understand cars and love them, and glean more pleasure from the old products life has to offer than the new.

No flashy red 1973 Ferrari could steal the places in their hearts that now belong to a 1929 Model A Ford, a 1947 Mercury "woody," a 1940 Plymouth business coupe and a 1949 Chrysler Saratoga.

Newby bought the Model A back in '57 for a mere $125. He couldn't touch it for that now. His joy in its presence led him to build a porch on the back of his home, with one end hinged to permit him to bring it in out of the cold. The Mercury station wagon is a more recent possession, the family's "new arrival" in 1967.

GERTH BOUGHT the Plymouth for $10 in 1958, from three unmarried sisters who drove it once a year — to the service station for a checkup. The Chrysler joined the family last July.

The sisters lived across the street from Gerth's mother in Tomah, Wis., and he had been asking them about the car for a couple years. They were reluctant to sell it — it had belonged to their mother — but chose Gerth to give it a new home because they knew he would treat it with the respect they felt for it.

While Gerth's cars have not required much in the way of restoration, Newby has spent around $800 in the 15 years he has been restoring the Ford. He and his family have personally removed every screw and bolt in the car and returned them in finer condition to their original places.

Newby was disappointed in the paint he was able to buy for the car. He wanted to finish it in Washington Blue, the original color. But when he tried a sample on the car, it dried "about 15 shades lighter" than it should have.

Told by his dealer the variation was because of the primer coat he had first applied, he covered it with a different colored primer and tried again. When the color still didn't satisfy, he "chose Henry's favorite color," and painted the auto a spotless clear black, the color most associated with early Ford products.

While the number of Mercuries like Newby's still around is unknown, the auto connoisseur notes with pride "there are more than 300,000 Model A's still functioning and running in this country."

And Newby's car functions. As Mrs. Newby said, "We need it for transportation." It takes her to the grocery store, delivers the Newby teenagers to school and carries the whole family on a winter day when newer models have troubles just getting around.

THE MODEL A won a third place ribbon in July in an antique auto show in Green Bay, Wis. About 80 of the 367 entries won firsts. They were of the vintage and fragility that never are driven, he said. They are taken to meets across the country in trailers, protected, but never put to use.

Gerth's cars cover a lot of pavement too. He frequently drives the Plymouth to work, and over the past few weeks has been using the Chrysler, to become acquainted with its mechanical condition.

While he likes older cars also, and would like to own one someday, they are expensive. And Gerth has a special fondness for autos of the 1932-41 vintage.

"I like these cars because you can drive them. You get into the older ones, that would strictly be a show car. I really don't think I would enjoy it as much," said Gerth.

Perhaps Gerth's attachment for the 1940 variety auto stems from his youth, when he worked in a gas station. Cars from that approximate time taught him mechanics. The first car he owned was a 1941 Plymouth, only a year younger than his current car.

Both men also own modern cars, and use them as well. Gerth is amused to note the 1973 models have bumpers just like the oldsters did.

They also have strong ideas on how much time and how much money a man should devote to his old car interest. It is just a hobby, they emphasize. A family must be first, and the love of a car must not interfere with family activities, or family finances.

But in both men's homes, the hobby appears to contribute much to a mutual interest among family members, and to family pride and fun.

Newby would like to share his hobby with other antique auto buffs in the area, by forming a club. Persons interested in the sleek old beauties, whether they own any or not, are invited to contact him.

Heavy Signup Of Voters Not Just A Youth Turnout

Although voter registration throughout Wheeling Township has been heavy this year, clerks say that the large turnout cannot be solely attributed to the newly enfranchised youth vote.

"It's been a fair showing, not a strong showing," Dorothy Hauff, Wheeling Township clerk, said of the young people's turnout.

She said there were several reasons why registration was heavy including the youth vote, the change in state residency requirements, and the upcoming presidential election. "Of course, you have to take into consideration that the area is expanding so rapidly," she said.

Mrs. Hauff said that while registration has been quite heavy all week, she doesn't expect the big rush to come until Saturday. To handle the last-minute crowd, the clerk has extended hours and added evening hours tonight and Monday, the last day for township office registration.

Because of the number of people registering, Mrs. Hauff said her office has not yet had time to tabulate how many people registered through the township office. "We've been so bogged down that we haven't bothered to count," she said.

Based on the number of registration cards the office has used up, Mrs. Hauff said that roughly 2,500 people registered there. "There were six of us working here Saturday as fast as we could, and there were still people waiting in line," she said.

AT VILLAGE OFFICES throughout the township, other clerks also experienced increased registration. In Mount Prospect the village clerk said there was "an incredible rush," with 1,200 people registered between July and Sept. 18, when village registration closed.

Buffalo Grove Village Clerk Verna Clayton said that while a "good number" of young people registered at the village, the largest voter registration increases came from the Mill Creek subdivision and Cambridge-on-the-Lake condominiums.

Mrs. Clayton said she did not know how many Buffalo Grove residents were registered to vote because figures from the township and the county are not yet complete. She estimated, however, that approximately 4,500 were registered voters.

Likewise, in Wheeling, increased voter registration has been attributed to new residents rather than young people. "I would think there were quite a few who were moving into the apartment dwellings," said Mrs. Roberta Krause of the office staff.

"Towards the end we had more young people than at the beginning," Mrs. Krause added. She said many of the young voters registered just before they left for college.

"Some of the young people came in, registered and then asked how they could vote absentee," she said. Applications for absentee voting still are available at the villages or other registration places. They must be returned to the county clerk no later than Nov. 2 by mail, or Nov. 4 in person.

AS OF SEPT. 22, 5,905 Wheeling residents had registered to vote. This tally was also made without figures from the township and the county.

with his American family, which is rounded out by twins Dan and Dave and his new fireman father, Don Nelleson.

Federal Funds Compromise Plan Hits Suburbs In Pocket

by KURT BAER

Northwest suburbs appear to be in for drastic reductions in federal revenue sharing if a compromise House-Senate program is adopted by both houses of Congress.

The compromise measure would result in cuts of 60 to 80 per cent for most suburbs compared with an earlier House-passed measure.

Arlington Heights would be particularly hard hit by the recommended compromise. Under the revenue-sharing bill passed by the House, Arlington Heights could expect to receive $1,007,988 this year. The compromise program would cut the allocation to $246,211, according to figures released yesterday by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

Other Chicago suburbs would experience similar percentage reductions. The state's largest cities, however, notably the City of Chicago, would receive more money under the compromise provision.

COMPARISONS between the House and compromise versions for other Northwest suburbs are: Buffalo Grove $188,566 (House) to $23,490 (compromise);

Des Plaines $909,711 to $327,599; Elk Grove $417,241 to $137,385; Hoffman Estates $379,929 to $73,174; Mount Prospect $529,655 to $144,652; Palatine $416,556 to $89,835; Rolling Meadows $317,101 to $72,411; Schaumburg $314,684 to $81,630; and Wheeling $148,760 to $48,522.

The compromise measure was worked out after a Senate bill, strongly backed by rural interests, was approved, taking money away from affluent suburbs and distributing it to large cities and rural areas.

Chicago's allocation would go from $50,899,411 under the House version to $69,335,283 under the compromise version.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. John Woods called the compromise measure "disappointing indeed." He said if the compromise is ratified by the House and Senate it "would not be very meaningful to Arlington Heights or any of the other suburbs."

Arlington Heights trustees had discussed using revenue sharing money for a number of major capital improvements (Continued on page 3)

Iranian Pupils 'Family' Fascinated

by LYNN ASINOFF

Since Iranian student Simon Kamali moved in with his new American family, members of the Don Nelleson household have eaten Persian food, learned Persian songs, and even shared in Simon's celebration of the Jewish High Holy Days.

"It's fascinating to us just to learn about different ways of life," said Mrs. Nelleson, Simon's newly adopted mother. She said that while members of her family are helping Simon with his English, he is helping the rest of the family to learn about Iran.

Simon, who will soon be 17, came to this country to finish high school and go on to college. When he first arrived in the United States, he lived with his sister and brother-in-law, but found that he was not learning English as quickly as he would living with an American family.

AFTER CONTACTING the American Field Service about his problem, Simon soon found himself getting acquainted with the Nellesons at a family outing at Lake Geneva, Wis. They had read about his plight in a church bulletin and in the Herald.

Mrs. Nelleson said the whole family took an immediate liking to Simon.

"He asked us if we liked him, which was a difficult thing for him to ask," she said. "What could we say? We said we loved him!"

Simon is equally enthusiastic about his new family.

The Nellesons have four boys ranging in age from 11 to 16. Simon said he enjoys having brothers to play with because in his own family he is the only boy among three sisters.

Simon and the oldest Nelleson boy, John, have jobs as packers at Jewel Food Store in Buffalo Grove. Simon said that while he enjoys the job, the best part about working is the money.

But Simon said he also is learning to speak better English as a result of his job.

"I pack and I talk with people, and maybe I'll learn to speak better English that way," he said.

While Simon's English has improved a great deal with the Nelleson's help, his new family is also introducing him to

'Open Campus' - Privilege Or A 'Right'

"Open Campus" has become an issue in several area high schools again this year, capped by a walkout of about 400 students last week at Schaumburg High School in Dist. 211.

Students at Wheeling High School have also complained that they want more rights, including leaving the campus at lunchtime.

Dist. 214 Board Atty. Al Franke has now said he feels the students have the legal right to "open campus," but only with their parents' permission.

Franke said that, a school district does not have the right to refuse to let a student leave the campus, but it may require him to get parental permission first.

"The school board has the right to control the students," Franke said, "but a student has the right, through his parents, to leave campus during the lunch hour because, in my opinion, school is not in session."

According to Associate Supt. Bruce Algorgott, the school district does allow students to leave the grounds of any of its four schools during lunch with parental permission.

Franke, who is also attorney for the neighboring High School Dist. 211 School Board, said enforcing a "closed campus" against some students but not against others "may get very difficult administratively."

BECAUSE OF THIS difficulty, he said, some school districts, including Dist. 214, have decided to allow all students the option of whether to leave the campus.

All of the Dist. 214 schools now allow students to leave the campus during lunch, although at some schools students are not allowed to take their cars with them. Administrators in the district report few problems with the open campus policy.

At Elk Grove High School, for example, students were given an hour lunch period with open campus privileges last spring on an experimental basis. The plan was to put into effect permanently this fall and "we are really pleased with how the students have handled it," Assistant Principal Donald Fyfe said.

Originally, he said, the Elk Grove administration was worried students would overrun local restaurants at lunch time. Instead, he said, "the merchants bless us for it."

AT WHEELING HIGH school students may leave the campus, but can only drive if they have their parents' permission, Principal Tom Shirely said.

"We don't really have that many people taking advantage of the privilege to drive off at noon," he said, "but it has probably helped our traffic situation overall."

Franke said the opinion that students cannot be forced to stay at school during lunch if their parents say they can leave is "all part of the freedom thrust we've had in school law in the past few years."

In the past, the attorney said, "there would have been no doubt that a school could force students to stay on campus, but then we had some cases saying students have all the rights other people do except as limited by their parents."

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Brimming with confidence that has him musing about the size of his potential mandate, President Nixon took his reelection campaign from New York to California. He spoke at $1,000-a-plate dinners in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

After weeks of hard campaigning on the road, Sen. George S. McGovern will take his case to the people through prime-time television, starting with nationwide broadcast of a half-hour biography Sunday night.

The government's index of leading economic indicators jumped sharply in August after two sluggish months, proving that the economic recovery is not about to run out of steam as some critics charged, the Commerce Department said.

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger flew back to the U.S. to report to President Nixon after completing two days of secret meetings with North Vietnamese delegates to the Vietnam peace talks.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, stumping in a cornfield near Galesburg, told farmers the Nixon administration has dramatically expanded farm markets but "won't be happy" until farmers' incomes match average nonfarm incomes.

The Senate Armed Services Committee has decided to investigate charges that Navy fliers — as well as Air Force pilots commanded by Lt. Gen. John D. LaVelle — bombed North Vietnam in violation of President Nixon's restrictions.

The State

Yellow tickets blossomed like dandelions on Chicago's streets as the men in blue turned motorists purple with uncommonly strict enforcement of traffic laws. The "ticket blitz" was a campaign by policemen to persuade Supt. James B. Conlisk to negotiate with police organizations on bargaining demands.

More than 130 motorists were jailed for traffic infractions.

Former Black Panther Verline Brown testified that a black policeman threatened to "blow her head off" during a 1969 police raid in which two Panther leaders were killed.

The World

Three American war prisoners released by North Vietnam more than a week ago arrived in Moscow and said they were willing to meet privately with U.S. diplomats. They were in high spirits and apparently in good health.

The Philippine government announced the closure of all casinos and enforcement of a broad antiracket code under prevailing martial law.

Bombers struck three times in Northern Ireland, but police foiled the fourth and most dangerous attack. One teenage gunman died in a hail of army bullets in Belfast.

The War

Communist rockets hit the Allied air base at Da Nang for the second time in five days, but the seven Soviet-built heavy missiles fell harmlessly in an open field, the U.S. command said. There were no casualties or damage.

The Market

The Stock market rallied strongly, sparked by rumors of peace moves surrounding the Vietnam War. Volume on the New York Stock Exchange accelerated from its recent pace. The Dow Jones Average soared 10.69 to 947.25. Advances routed declines, 1,042 to 393, among 1,751 issues crossing the tape. Prices were higher in brisk trading on the American Stock Exchange.

PRACTICING FOR Saturday's big game, the Prospect Heights Park District football team runs through a play. The eight-week program, primarily instructional, is the first in the park district. The 27-member team of seventh and eighth graders competes with teams from the Wheeling Park District.

other parts of American life. BEFORE SCHOOL started, the entire family went on a two-week camping trip was Simon's first traveling in the United States and he said the mountains reminded him of Switzerland and Italy. Simon said he is hoping to see more of the United States, and is particularly anxious to visit New York City and Disneyland. It all goes according to plan, he may get to see the famous California amusement park next year on the family vacation.

Since Simon has been living with the Nellesons, he's also had his first experience with water skiing and horseback riding. He said he sang to the horse because he was scared.

Simon has had little difficulty adjusting to life in this country, but dating customs are somewhat strange to him. In Iran, he said, girls are not allowed to date unless parents make the dating arrangements. Over here, dating is not handled by the parents, and Simon finds that a little difficult to get used to.

THE NELLESONS, of 3201 Ellen, near Wheeling, have been more than eager to help Simon and explain differences in social customs. After dinner, the entire family gets together and talks about everything from girls to homework. "We talk about everything," Mrs. Nelleson said.

With the coming holiday season, Simon will have a lot of new experiences to write home about. He has never celebrated Christmas, Halloween or Thanksgiving, but is looking forward to the family celebration.

The Nellesons, on the other hand, are learning about the Jewish holidays that Simon celebrates. Mrs. Nelleson went to her first Jewish service with Simon earlier this month.

Right now, Simon plans to stay in this country to complete his education, but he does not know what he will do after he graduates.

"I like it now, and maybe I'll love this country after some years," he said. "Everybody can really do everything in this country."

including flood control, landfill site acquisition and transportation improvements.

"While we fully recognize Chicago's needs for funds, this doesn't make our needs any less acute," Woods said.

Woods said he planned to send what he called "a salvo of telegrams" to area Senators and Representatives urging them to reject the compromise. He said he hoped and would urge other suburban mayors to take similar action.

SCHAUMBURG MAYOR Robert Atcher also criticized the compromise proposal saying it discriminated against the suburbs.

"I'm sorry the compromise discriminates against suburban municipalities," giving more for big cities and little rural towns. "If you compare the tax picture . . . the towns close in near Chicago have tremendous problems by comparison. To skip over communities with the problems is unfair," Atcher said.

A spokesman in Percy's office said the smaller compromise figures are the result of the formula used to distribute money within each state. This formula takes into account what the spokesman called each town's "taxing effort" and the relative income of its population.

Towns with higher per-capita incomes get less money than those with lower such figures. "This will hurt the suburbs," the spokesman said.

There is a provision in the compromise measure, however, that would allow state legislatures to alter the revenue sharing formula by eliminating the per-capita income factor.

If a state chooses to alter the formula, it must apply the revised program to all municipalities in the state for the full five year duration of the revenue-sharing program, the spokesman said.

THE PERCY spokesman outlined three ways in which the compromise formula could be altered by state legislative action. One alternate formula is based on multiplying the community's general tax effort times its population. A second means is multiplying population times the per-

'Kids, Teachers Alike Loved Fran Allen...'

"Fran Allen was terrific. Loved by faculty and children alike. She never complained," said Esther Pearson, principal at Betsy Ross School in Prospect Heights.

Mrs. Allen, 47, a Mount Prospect resident, would have started her seventh year as a physical education teacher at the school this month. But she died Friday, a victim of Hodgkins' Disease.

"She always had a smile. She never let her illness interfere with her work," said Mrs. Pearson, explaining that two years ago Mrs. Allen found out she had the disease. "She worked hard. Last year she ordered all the new equipment for our new extension to the gym."

Besides teaching P.E. twice a week, Mrs. Allen, 205 E. Berkshire Lane also taught swimming at the Northwest Suburban YMCA. She encouraged Betsy Ross students to learn how to swim, Mrs. Pearson said.

Mrs. Allen's body was taken to Wyoming Tuesday for burial. Visitation was Monday at the Haire Funeral Home in Arlington Heights. She is survived by her husband, Stowe, and her three daughters, Susan, Janice and Jema.

Teachers at Betsy Ross have set up a memorial fund for Mrs. Allen. The money will go to the American Cancer Society. Anyone interested in contributing can contact Mrs. Pearson at the school.

Citizens Unit To Meet On Saturday

The Concerned Citizens of Buffalo Grove (CCBG) will conduct an organizational meeting at 4 p.m. Saturday at Striker Lanes Bowling Alley, 100 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove.

The CCBG is a non-partisan, non-profit organization founded to foster better government in Buffalo Grove, according to Bernie Friedman, co-chairman of the group, along with Dennis Dorsey.

"Previously, we were just a group of people with the same purpose," Friedman said. "The reason for this meeting is to set up a formal organization."

Anyone wanting to join the CCBG is invited to attend the meeting, Friedman said. Officers will be elected and committees appointed.

Members will discuss the purpose of the organization and formulate an official position on the controversy currently surrounding Village Pres. Gary Armstrong.

Armstrong recently accepted a position as director of marketing for the James Otis Development Co. of Northbrook. The firm received permission in August from the village board to begin construction on a multi-family residential complex in the northwest portion of Buffalo Grove.

Friedman said the CCBG also plans to begin regularly distributing a newsletter to all village residents.

2 Wheeling Grads Join The Marines

Two Wheeling High School graduates have been sworn into the United States Marine Corps.

George Rohloff, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Rohloff, 816 E. Willow Rd., enlisted in the corps for four years. He joined the program on the "delay basis" and will not leave for basic training until January.

He selected aviation as his career program. Rohloff is a 1971 Wheeling graduate and is currently attending Harper Junior College in Palatine.

THE SECOND WHEELING High School graduate, Paul Orlove, is the most decorated cadet to graduate from that high school's Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps (JROTC).

Orlove served three years in the color guard, was Cadet Petty Officer Second Class and was Chief Petty Officer of the Wheeling corps of cadets.

Mrs. Dorothy Atchison, sponsor of the Jack London Junior High School drama club, has announced the names of students who have auditioned and been accepted into that organization.

The club will sponsor its first production of the year, a Christmas play, in December. A major play, "Up the Down Staircase," will be presented in the spring.

Eight graders in the program are Karen Anderson, Vince Azzano, Tom Borchardt, Danny Carpenter, Mike Clancy, Doreen Diemart, Pat Erickson, Sandy Golab, Ellen Hayley, Scott Hendricks, Kathy Jullison, Butch Keating, Mark Kleas, Vicky Mahan, JoAnne Kozimor, Sandee Kleeman, Cathy Lortz, Jean Margalski, Dave Pearlman, Debbie Ranciri, Julie Rieger, Ken Rigby, Cliff Switzer, Jill Spriguel, and Colette Wohl.

"So far I've enjoyed this school district so much because of the geniality and friendship of teachers, and good interaction between teachers and principals."

So said Beth Briggs, an Illinois State University senior who is doing her student teaching in Dist. 21. Miss Briggs is sharing her time between several schools in the district.

SCHOOL DIST. 21 was represented earlier this month at the "Teacher Intern Volunteer Opportunity Fair" at Trinity College in Deerfield.

Representing the district were Paul McKown, Bob White, Katy Samsel, Kay Kacena, Jim Johnson and Jerry Kiffel. Other organization representatives from the northeast part of Illinois also attended.

The objective of the fair was to encourage college students to participate as student aides in the kindergarten to eighth grade classrooms.

THE BOOTH Tarkington School will sponsor a tea Thursday afternoon from 3:30 to 4 p.m. in honor of the new teachers who joined the Tarkington faculty this year.

The new staff members (Vicki Rutland, Penny Mikusch, Faith Otis, Ray Maxwell and Sara Ward) will be greeted by the entire Tarkington staff, central office administrators, curriculum coordinators and the PTA board.

Paul McKown, Tarkington principal, worked closely with the PTA in making arrangements for this informal get-together. McKown said, "I feel it is extremely important that communication be enhanced between the central office personnel and the local building staff as a means to better understanding and closer relationships."

WHO ARE these Louisa May Alcott "Smiley" faces?

They are Mrs. Sharon Thebeau's second graders displaying their good work. For doing good work, a student is given a "Smiley" face to wear.

During the week, one or more stars may be added for doing more good work. Each week the student must earn a new "Smiley" face to wear proudly.

THE DIST. 21 String Quartet made its debut earlier this month. The musical group, which was known as the Jack London German Band before this year, played at the schools that feed into Oliver Wendell Holmes Junior High School.

The four music teachers involved are Debbie Shea, violin; George Galvan, violin; Renee Gladstone, viola and Vicki Fehling, cello.

The one hour concert consisted of one song: "Variations on a French Folk Tune." The folk tune question involved the sparkling of a luminous celestial body. The teachers are touring all the Dist. 21 schools in hopes of encouraging students to study a musical instrument.

Various names for the quartet are being considered and suggestions are welcome. Send them to the teachers, in care of London Junior High School.

HENRY WADSWORTH Longfellow School is in "full" swing with 694 students, 29 fully certified teachers and 15 interns from Northern Illinois University.

The interns are college sophomores who are observing and participating in classrooms with the Longfellow staff. Their goal is to become better acquainted with the growth and development of children.

Many of the interns are staying with Buffalo Grove residents while they are taking part in the nine-week program.

There are also 18 volunteer mothers working in the school's library and learning center on a weekly basis. Six mothers are donating their personal talents for instructing in French, art appreciation, sewing, macrame and other arts.

MISS MARILYN Shrude, the new seventh grade music teacher at London Junior High school has announced the names of those chosen to be in the 7th grade chorus. First Oktoberfest Art Show Plans Being Made Plans are now being made for the first Oktoberfest arts festival in Prospect Heights Oct. 15.

The festival, which will be in the shopping center parking lot at Camp McDonald and Elmhurst roads, is being sponsored by the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA) and the Prospect Heights Beautification Committee. Artists can display their work from 1:30 to 4 p.m.

Besides art and antique exhibits, candidates for the Illinois General Assembly will speak at 2 p.m.

"We'll ask them questions dealing with Prospect Heights, concerning things like incorporation and flooding," said Jack Gilligan, PHIA president.

THE FESTIVAL will follow the Prospect Heights Fire Department's annual parade. The parade, featuring floats and Miss Fire Prevention, will begin at 12:30 p.m. To be eligible for the title of Miss Fire Prevention, a candidate must be in the sixth through eighth grade and live within the Prospect Heights Fire District. The fire department will hold its annual dance Oct. 14.

The Wheeling High School band will march in the parade. Musical entertainment during the show will be provided by the David Olsen Combo. Hot dogs, pop, coffee and cotton candy will be sold throughout the day.

Proceeds from the festival will go to the beautification committee and the PHIA for "community needs," according to Pat Kerwin, of the PHIA. "We want to give local artists an opportunity to display their work and to sponsor an event for community participation," said Mrs. Kerwin. "We're hoping to make the festival an annual event if we get a good response from residents."

Artists and antique dealers can apply for a space at the festival by calling Mrs. Kerwin at 537-0203. Exhibit fee is $2.

Lillie Herrmann Information Sought

The Wheeling Historical Society is looking for persons who have information about Lillie Cathryn Herrmann, who was born in Wheeling on Aug. 24, 1896.

The society received a request about the Herrmann family from a member of the New England Genealogical Society, Suffield, Conn. In response to the request, the society is trying to track down the correct spelling and the parentage of Lillie Herrmann.

THERE HAS been some trouble in finding this information because birth records were not kept at that time. The society has forwarded the request to the Bureau of Vital Statistics.

June Orlovski, curator of the society, said such information about Wheeling residents provides a valuable link with the past. She asked that anyone having information about the Herrmann family or any other aspect of Wheeling's past bring it to the attention of the society.

Team Loses But Sponsor's Winner

Although they lost more games than they won, the Hans Bavarian Lodge adult softball team felt that the sponsor, at least, deserved a trophy.

David Zuckert, assistant manager, said the team paid for a trophy for Hans Ammoulean, owner of the lodge, because of his help "above and beyond the call of duty." Zuckert said he was often at the games with a supply of mosquito repellent.

The team, one of 16 in the Wheeling Park District league, presented the trophy during the Septemberfest at the restaurant last week.

Mill Creek Streets In 'Poor' Shape, Police Say

Buffalo Grove police have filed a report notifying village officials of the "poor condition" of streets in the Mill Creek subdivision.

The report was filed two weeks after Village Mgr. Daniel Larson and Village Pres. Gary Armstrong assured the Mill Creek Homeowner Association that some type of action would be taken to correct the street problems.

Larson said yesterday that street problems discussed at the earlier meeting have been corrected. "I was out there Tuesday morning to inspect the job," he said. He also added he had not seen the police report as of yesterday afternoon.

Police said the condition of the roads in the subdivision could result in problems "not only to the residents of the community but to emergency vehicles as well." According to the report, police and fire vehicles would have a tough time making it down many of the Mill Creek streets.

THE REPORT listed specific areas that were filled with holes that could cause a safety problem. They are:

- 1108 Greenridge Rd.
- The intersection of Mill Creek Drive and Greenridge Road.
- 808 and 831 Thornton Ln.
- Radcliffe Road between Boxwood and Saratoga lanes.
- In front of 800, 792 and 784 Saratoga Ln.
- In front of 859 Lehigh Ln.

Several streets were found by police to be heavily covered with mud as well as having construction equipment poorly parked. Police said emergency equipment would have a hard time passing through many of these areas because of the poor parking.

The areas with the mud and poor parking are:

- The intersection of Crofton and Greenridge Road (mud only).
- Mill Creek Drive south of the proposed school site.
- Old Post Road.
- Stanford Lane.
- Carriage Way Drive.
- Radcliffe Road.

Police sent copies of the report to Buffalo Grove's Chief Building Inspector, Bill Dettmer, and to Larson.

LARSON SAID the earlier problem and this new report are two separate items. "It's like putting oranges and apples in the same bushel. Dettmer would know more about this problem," he said.

Larson added that Miller Builders also has assured the village that the mud problems would be corrected as soon as possible.

Dettmer said all building permits for the Mill Creek area are being held up by the village until Miller Builders corrects the problems.

"I have 29 permits on my desk now and Miller will not get them until the roads and several other items are corrected. We are not trying to close down the project, but we won't let it continue as long as deficiencies are not corrected," said Dettmer.

Larson added late yesterday afternoon that Miller was beginning to clean the Mill Creek streets in question.

Federal Funds Compromise Plan Hits Suburbs In Pocket

by KURT BAER

Northwest suburbs appear to be in for drastic reductions in federal revenue sharing if a compromise House-Senate program is adopted by both houses of Congress.

The compromise measure would result in cuts of 60 to 80 per cent for most suburbs compared with an earlier House-passed measure.

Arlington Heights would be particularly hard hit by the recommended compromise. Under the revenue-sharing bill passed by the House, Arlington Heights could expect to receive $1,007,988 this year. The compromise program would cut the allocation to $248,211, according to figures released yesterday by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

Other Chicago suburbs would experience similar percentage reductions. The state's largest cities, however, notably the City of Chicago, would receive more money under the compromise provision.

COMPARISONS between the House and compromise versions for other Northwest suburbs are: Buffalo Grove $186,566 (House) to $21,490 (compromise);

Des Plaines $909,711 to $327,599; Elk Grove $417,241 to $137,385; Hoffman Estates $379,928 to $73,174; Mount Prospect $529,655 to $144,652; Palatine $416,556 to $89,635; Rolling Meadows $317,101 to $72,411; Schaumburg $314,634 to $61,630; and Wheeling $148,760 to $49,522.

The compromise measure was worked out after a Senate bill, strongly backed by rural interests, was approved, taking money away from affluent suburbs and distributing it to large cities and rural areas.

Chicago's allocation would go from $58,899,411 under the House version to $69,335,285 under the compromise version.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. John Woods called the compromise measure "disappointing indeed." He said if the compromise is ratified by the House and Senate it "would not be very meaningful to Arlington Heights or any of the other suburbs."

Arlington Heights trustees had discussed using revenue sharing money for a number of major capital improvements (Continued on page 3)

by LYNN ASINOFF

Since Iranian student Simon Kamali moved in with his new American family, members of the Don Nelleson household have eaten Persian food, learned Persian songs, and even shared in Simon's celebration of the Jewish High Holy Days.

"It's fascinating to us just to learn about different ways of life," said Mrs. Nelleson, Simon's newly adopted mother. She said that while members of her family are helping Simon with his English, he is helping the rest of the family to learn about Iran.

Simon, who will soon be 17, came to this country to finish high school and go on to college. When he first arrived in the United States, he lived with his sister and brother-in-law, but found that he was not learning English as quickly as he would living with an American family.

AFTER CONTACTING the American Field Service about his problem, Simon soon found himself getting acquainted with the Nellesons at a family outing at Lake Geneva, Wis. They had read about his plight in a church bulletin and in the Herald.

Mrs. Nelleson said the whole family took an immediate liking to Simon.

"He asked us if we liked him, which was a difficult thing for him to ask," she said. "What could we say? We said we loved him!"

Simon is equally enthusiastic about his new family.

The Nellesons have four boys ranging in age from 11 to 16. Simon said he enjoys having brothers to play with because in his own family he is the only boy among three sisters.

Simon and the oldest Nelleson boy, John, have jobs as packers at Jewel Food Store in Buffalo Grove. Simon said that while he enjoys the job, the best part about working is the money.

But Simon said he also is learning to speak better English as a result of his job.

"I pack and I talk with people, and maybe I'll learn to speak better English that way," he said.

While Simon's English has improved a great deal with the Nellesons' help, his new family is also introducing him to

Reason For Heavy Vote Signup Told

Although voter registration throughout Wheeling Township has been heavy this year, clerks say that the large turnout cannot be solely attributed to the newly enfranchised youth vote.

"It's been a fair showing, not a strong showing," Dorothy Hauff, Wheeling Township clerk, said of the young people's turnout.

She said there were several reasons why registration was heavy including the youth vote, the change in state residency requirements, and the upcoming presidential election. "Of course, you have to take into consideration that the area is expanding so rapidly," she said.

Mrs. Hauff said that while registration has been quite heavy all week, she doesn't expect the big rush to come until Saturday. To handle the last-minute crowd, the clerk has extended hours and added evening hours tonight and Monday, the last day for township office registration.

Because of the number of people registering, Mrs. Hauff said her office has not yet had time to tabulate how many people registered through the township office. "We've been so bogged down that we haven't bothered to count," she said.

Based on the number of registration cards the office has used up, Mrs. Hauff said that roughly 2,500 people registered there. "There were six of us working here Saturday as fast as we could, and there were still people waiting in line," she said.

AT VILLAGE OFFICES throughout the township, other clerks also experienced increased registration. In Mount Prospect the village clerk said there was "an incredible rush," with 1,200 people registered between July and Sept. 18, when village registration closed.

Buffalo Grove Village Clerk Verna Clayton said that while a "good number" of young people registered at the village, the largest voter registration increases came from the Mill Creek subdivision and Cambridge-on-the-Lake condominiums.

Mrs. Clayton said she did not know how many Buffalo Grove residents were registered to vote because figures from the township and the county are not yet complete. She estimated, however, that approximately 4,500 were registered voters.

Likewise, in Wheeling, increased voter registration has been attributed to new residents rather than young people. "I would think there were quite a few who were moving into the apartment dwellings," said Mrs. Roberta Krause of the office staff.

"Towards the end we had more young people than at the beginning," Mrs. Krause added. She said many of the young voters registered just before they left for college.

"Some of the young people came in, registered and then asked how they could vote absentee," she said. Applications for absentee voting still are available at the villages or other registration places. They must be returned to the county clerk no later than Nov. 2 by mail, or Nov. 4 in person.

AS OF SEPT. 22, 5,905 Wheeling residents had registered to vote. This tally was also made without figures from the township and the county.

Brimming with confidence that has him musing about the size of his potential mandate, President Nixon took his reelection campaign from New York to California. He spoke at $1,000-a-plate dinners in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

After weeks of hard campaigning on the road, Sen. George S. McGovern will take his case to the people through prime-time television, starting with nationwide broadcast of a half-hour biography Sunday night.

The government's index of leading economic indicators jumped sharply in August after two sluggish months, proving that the economic recovery is not about to run out of steam as some critics charged, the Commerce Department said.

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger flew back to the U.S. to report to President Nixon after completing two days of secret meetings with North Vietnamese delegates to the Vietnam peace talks.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, stumbling in a cornfield near Galesburg, told farmers the Nixon administration has dramatically expanded farm markets but "won't be happy" until farmers' incomes match average nonfarm incomes.

The Senate Armed Services Committee has decided to investigate charges that Navy fliers — as well as Air Force pilots commanded by Lt. Gen. John D. Lavelle — bombed North Vietnam in violation of President Nixon's restrictions.

Yellow tickets blossomed like dandelions on Chicago's streets as the men in blue turned motorists purple with uncommonly strict enforcement of traffic laws. The "ticket blitz" was a campaign by policemen to persuade Supt. James B. Conlisk to negotiate with police organizations on bargaining demands.

More than 130 motorists were jailed for traffic infractions.

Former Black Panther Verline Brewer testified that a black policeman threatened to "blow her head off" during a 1969 police raid in which two Panther leaders were killed.

The World

Three American war prisoners released by North Vietnam more than a week ago arrived in Moscow and said they were willing to meet privately with U.S. diplomats. They were in high spirits and apparently in good health.

The Philippine government announced

the closure of all casinos and enforcement of a broad anticrime code under prevailing martial law.

Bombers struck three times in Northern Ireland, but police foiled the fourth and most dangerous attack. One teenage gunman died in a hail of army bullets in Belfast.

The War

Communist rockets hit the Allied air base at Da Nang for the second time in five days, but the seven Soviet-built heavy missiles fell harmlessly in an open field, the U.S. command said. There were no casualties or damage.

Revenue Sharing Compromise Plan Hits Suburbs Hard

by KURT BAER

Northwest suburbs appear to be in for drastic reductions in federal revenue sharing if a compromise House-Senate program is adopted by both houses of Congress.

Arlington Heights would be particularly hard hit by the recommended compromise. Under the revenue-sharing bill passed by the House, Arlington Heights could expect to receive $1,007,988 this year. The compromise program would cut the allocation to $249,211, according to figures released yesterday by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

Other Chicago suburbs would experience similar percentage reductions. The state's largest cities, however, notably the City of Chicago, would receive more money under the compromise provision.

COMPARISONS between the House and compromise versions for other Northwest suburbs are: Buffalo Grove $198,566 (House) to $23,400 (compromise);

Des Plaines $909,711 to $327,599; Elk Grove $417,241 to $137,385; Hoffman Estates $379,929 to $73,174; Mount Prospect $529,855 to $144,852; Palatine $416,556 to $89,835; Rolling Meadows $317,101 to $72,411; Schaumburg $314,684 to $61,630; and Wheeling $148,760 to $48,522.

The compromise measure was worked out after a Senate bill, strongly backed by rural interests, was approved, taking money away from affluent suburbs and distributing it to large cities and rural areas.

Chicago's allocation would go from $58,899,411 under the House version to $69,335,265 under the compromise version.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. John Woods called the compromise measure "disappointing indeed." He said if the compromise is ratified by the House and Senate it "would not be very meaningful to Arlington Heights or any of the other suburbs."

Arlington Heights trustees had discussed using revenue sharing money for a number of major capital improvements including flood control, landfill site acquisition and transportation improvements.

"While we fully recognize Chicago's needs for funds, this doesn't make our needs any less acute," Woods said.

Woods said he planned to send what he called "a salvo of telegrams" to area Senators and Representatives urging them to reject the compromise. He said he hoped and would urge other suburban mayors to take similar action.

SCHAUMBURG MAYOR Robert Acher also criticized the compromise proposal saying it discriminated against the suburbs.

"I'm sorry the compromise discriminates against suburban municipalities," giving more for big cities and little rural towns. "If you compare the tax picture... the towns close in near Chicago have tremendous problems by comparison. To skip over communities with the problems is unfair," Acher said.

A spokesman in Percy's office said the smaller compromise figures are the result of the formula used to distribute money within each state. This formula takes into account what the spokesman called each town's "taxing effort" and the relative income of its population.

Towns with higher per-capita incomes get less money than those with lower such figures. "This will hurt the suburbs," the spokesman said.

There is a provision in the compromise measure, however, that would allow state legislatures to alter the revenue sharing formula by eliminating the per-capita income factor.

If a state chooses to alter the formula, it must apply the revised program to all municipalities in the state for the full five year duration of the revenue-sharing program, the spokesman said.

THE PERCY spokesman outlined three ways in which the compromise formula could be altered by state legislative action.

One alternate formula is based on multiplying the community's general tax effort times its population. A second means is multiplying population times the per-

RELIEF CAME yesterday to Arlington Hts. Road residents when the Cook County Highway Department began around-the-clock pumping of fields flooded for over a month. Arlington Hts. Road, in northwest Palatine Township, was under water most of that time, and repeated rains brought the water level up to the edges of homes along the lane. Frantic residents called the township, Northwest Mosquito Abatement District and the county before asking The Herald for help. Last week, the county began rodding out drainage systems and vowed yesterday to pump the area until it was dry.

Suit Threatened In Zoning Case

The attorney for a Barrington engineer has threatened to sue the Village of Palatine over the village board's denial of a request to rezone a small piece of property on Northwest Highway.

The lawyer, Julian R. Hansen of Chicago, suggested in a letter that the village board reconsider its refusal to rezone a 4,300-square foot parcel at the northwest corner of Northwest Highway and Warren Avenue.

He requested reconsideration "rather than proceeding immediately to the courts, which would be expensive to both the village and (Dick) Richards (his client)."

The village trustees decided at their meeting Monday night not to respond to Hansen's letter.

MAYOR JACK MOODIE said, "I don't think it deserves an answer," and added, apparently in reference to a possible lawsuit: "It might be dangerous to answer."

Richards, the Barrington engineer, had sought B-1 zoning of the Northwest Highway property to construct a one-story building for his civil engineering practice.

The village board on Aug. 14 upheld with little discussion the recommendation of the plan commission to deny the zoning change.

The plan commission recommendation was based mainly on the size of the proposed building — 16 feet, 9 inches, by 35 feet.

Hansen said in his letter that objection to the size of the building "is not a question of zoning, but of the building code."

He said the property constitutes "a duly platted plot, however irregular in size, and the owner should be entitled to

Litigation To Put Referendum On Ballot To Be Told Today

LWV To Force Township-Vote Issue

Representatives of area League of Women Voters chapters are expected to announce court action this morning against Palatine and Northfield townships to force officials to place a proposed referendum to abolish township government on the Nov. 7 ballot.

An LWV press conference is scheduled for 11:15 a.m. today at the Chicago Civic Center, when the group's attorney, Richard J. Troy, says a court order will be requested to force township officials to allow the issue.

The Palatine Township Board of Auditors Monday unanimously refused to put the issue to a vote in the November election. Palatine officials were the first of the four townships involved in the LWV drive to make a final decision.

In August, the Palatine LWV chapter presented more than 2,000 signatures on petitions to force the auditors to put the referendum on the ballot. Other chapters in Maine, Niles and Northfield townships have taken the same action.

ATTORNEYS for all four townships prepared opinions about the legality of the issue, and their conclusions were similar, attorney Roger Bjorvik told the Palatine board Monday.

"The attorneys are unanimous in the opinion that the primary block (to the referendum) is the transitional process," Bjorvik said.

For the first time in Illinois, the 1970 revision of the state constitution allows voters to abolish township government. But another section of the constitution also stipulates that "The General Assembly shall provide by law for the transfer of assets, powers and functions, and for the payments of outstanding debts" in connection with such a change in local government units.

Whether such a law must be passed before or after the referendum is allowed is the central issue in the township-LWV dispute.

The law that would remedy the argument, H.B. 2508, is in committee in the Legislature awaiting a third reading. It states that functions of dissolved townships would be transferred to the county.

But until the bill is approved, township attorneys say the provision allowing township governments to be dissolved is unconstitutional.

TROY, CALLS the boards' arguments a "smoke screen."

"They're very much afraid that there'll be chaos if the referendum passes," Troy said. But the LWV doesn't think that is a good enough argument to keep the issue off the ballot.

"We're very confident that the legislators will do their duty and pass the necessary legislation if the referendums pass," Troy said. The townships can't legally keep the referendum off the ballot, since the required numbers of voters in each township have demanded it, Troy said. So today the LWV begins court action to force the issue that has been rejected in Palatine and is about to be refused in Northfield.

Troy said additional petitions for mandamus may be entered next week against Maine and Niles townships if those officials choose to follow the Palatine precedent.

Palatine Township officials will have five days to respond to the court order, and proceedings will probably begin sometime next week.

BJORVIK, contacted by The Herald late yesterday, said he and township officials were not informed of the impending LWV action.

Since there appears to be a serious question in the mind of both parties about the issue, the courts should settle the matter, Bjorvik said. But with the election date less than five weeks away, time is short for extensive judicial processes.

The legal deadline for adding an item to the election ballot is ten days before the election, but 30 days is considered a minimum for the actual procedures to be completed.

"I know that the courts can act expeditiously," Troy said, noting the special July 4 consideration by the U.S. Supreme Court for the Democratic Convention controversy.

Rail Mechanic, 61, Dies At Mishap Site

A 61-year-old Palatine man died of an apparent heart attack early yesterday while working at the scene of a train derailment in Chicago.

John J. Costello, 270 N. Linden Ave., was pronounced dead on arrival at Franklin Boulevard Hospital in Chicago.

Mr. Costello, a mechanic for the Chicago and North Western Ry. for 42 years, was working at the scene of a derailment of six cars at Sacramento Avenue and Kinzie Street when he was stricken.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by John A. Rago Sons Funeral Home, Chicago.

TOMORROW'S STARS are getting an early start on the imaginary conference game. Passing, kicking and punting gets tricky around all that padding.

Student Leader Raps Protest Acts

A member of the Schaumburg High School Student Council deplored what he called the "irrational tactics" some of his fellow students used recently during a student protest to gain support of an open campus.

"They did not even bother to get their facts straight before rushing into an action that brings unhappy consequences on the whole student body," said John Kalkwarf, chairman of the open lunch committee of the student council.

Kalkwarf said a list of demands formulated by the protesting students showed they were not familiar with policy.

Kalkwarf said a student walkout last week set back the council's efforts to establish an open lunch period that would have allowed students to leave the building during the lunch hour.

UNDER THE OPEN lunch agreement students were to be provided with an outdoor eating area on the school's grounds. Following the walkout it was discovered by The Herald however, that any student whose parents send a note of permission must be allowed to go off campus during their lunch hour. Protesting students were demanding an open campus, meaning the right to leave the school grounds.

"I worked with school administrators since last summer on this issue and the open lunch was to start this week," said Kalkwarf. Since the walkout, action on open lunch has been postponed by school authorities.

The youth criticized the protesters for not attending council meetings. "If they had they would have known that members to student council are not selected because of their scholastic records," he said.

The only grade requirements for student council representatives are that they have passing grades in at least three subjects and sign a pledge of duty.

"I don't think that's too much to ask. If a student is mature enough to be in council and represent others he should be mature enough to achieve passing grades," said Kalkwarf.

"I think it's also important to note that the students themselves wrote in this stipulation, not the school authorities," he added.

The student protesters' demands were for an open campus, that representation to student council not be dependent on grades, lower priced lunches, soft drinks in the cafeteria, a more lax attendance policy, amnesty for protesters and a shorter school day.

"I hope those students that were involved will show up at committee meetings in the future to find out what's really going on in their school," he added.

THE CHAIRMAN said demands for a cheaper lunch were unrealistic since it is a break even program and the price pays for the food and service.

"As far as a shorter school day goes, we now have that privilege for students who work or take early classes," he said.

The majority of students in this school are willing to go through legitimate channels when we have a gripe and we resent being represented by a small group that has ruined some very hard work by members of student council," said Kalkwarf.

He urged any students who are interested to attend student council meetings and "find out the true story."

May Raise Left Bank Of Salt Creek

Seek Way To End Flooding

The Palatine village engineer has been directed to study the possibility of raising the left bank of Salt Creek as it passes through the Pleasant Hills subdivision.

The instruction was given this week by the Palatine Village Board in response to a request by Lawrence D. Wray, president of the subdivision's homeowners association.

Wray, who has appeared before the trustees on numerous other occasions, said the recent heavy storms have noticeably washed away part of the left bank of the creek, causing flooding in his home at 203 W. Glade Ave., and six other nearby houses.

Erosion of the creek's banks has occurred between Glade and Pleasant Hill Blvd., according to Wray.

"The water just comes over the creek and sits there," he said. "It has no place to go."

He asked the trustees for temporary relief, while a permanent solution is worked out.

The trustees rejected Wray's suggestion that sandbags be placed along the west bank of the creek because they said that would merely raise the level of the creek and cause additional flooding upstream.

They did agree, however, to consider whether sandbags could be used as a temporary measure.

Mayor Jack Moodie pointed out that much of the Pleasant Hills subdivision is in a flood plain, and "the whole area should come up about three feet."

"If you are prepared to raise your house three feet," he told Wray, "we will raise the streets to where they should be."

Moodie also said that even abiding by the recommendations of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Plan, an area-wide project of the U.S. Soil and Water Conservation Service to minimize flooding of the creek, would not eliminate flooding in Pleasant Hills because of the low elevation of the subdivision.

Two Apartment Complexes Receive Final Approval

Final approval has been given to two apartment complexes west of downtown Palatine, one geared toward "prestige rental" and the other toward lower priced facilities.

The Palatine Village Board this week annexed as a planned unit development five acres of property east of Elm Street, between Palatine Road and Wilson Street for construction of 116 one and two-bedroom units.

Developers of the site, known as the Cornell apartments, are Harold Sherman, Louis F. Draper and Joseph Bergman.

The complex, consisting of two five-story buildings, will include underground parking for 102 cars, plus 75 outdoor spaces, a swimming pool, sundeck and snack lounge. Rents for one-bedroom apartments will be about $300.

THE OTHER project, Wynngate apartments being developed by builder Ralph Marotte, will be on 4 1/2 acres at the southwest corner of Wilson and Cedar streets. Final plans were recently approved by the village board.

Wynngate will consist of four three-story buildings containing a total of 92 one-bedroom and efficiency units.

Both projects had been pending before the village board for annexation and rezoning for more than a year, because of delays incurred in the study of downtown Palatine.

Developers of the two projects have agreed to make extensive street improvements in the Wilson-Elm-Cedar vicinity, which was taken into consideration by village trustees when they allowed the higher-than-usual density in the projects.

Compromise Cools Park Controversy

Compromise has cooled a controversy surrounding undeveloped Doug Lindberg Park in Winston Park subdivision and the Palatine North Little League's search for baseball fields.

An original proposal by a league spokesman to the park district board included plans for three diamonds on the 7.5-acre park. Following reports of the plan, residents of the park area appeared at the next board meeting to oppose the suggested concentration of fields.

In a meeting last week with league representatives, Park District Director Fred P. Hall assured the parents that a solution could be found.

"I was confident that the park district could find one or two ball diamonds in the district, possibly in Lindberg or Sycamore park," Hall said.

Area residents had not objected to little league diamonds in the park, but were worried that the original use might be abandoned, Hall said.

It's What's Inside Store That Counts

A third hardware store will soon be opening in Palatine, but there's some dispute over what will be in it.

Ace Hardware has announced plans to take over the S. S. Kregge Co. store in the Palatine Plaza on Jan. 15.

The Kregge store is being moved to the nearby Palatine Mall, which is scheduled to open Oct. 19.

Richard H. Weis, president of Palatine Ace Hardware Corp., indicated the store hopes to carry small amounts of lumber, plywood, paneling and other materials for the "weekend do-it-yourselfer."

Building materials, however, can only be accommodated in B-2 zones. The Palatine Plaza is classified as a B-1 zone.

The matter was referred to the trustees' building and zoning committee for consideration.

The other hardware stores in Palatine are the Hansen True Value Hardware, 105 W. Palatine Rd., and Zimmer Hardware, 16 N. Brockway St.

An Important Seminar/Lecture on Mind Control & ESP

for everyone interested in developing mental powers

Recently, many national publications such as LIFE, GLAMOUR, and THE WALL STREET JOURNAL, featured articles on "BRAIN WAVES" and "BRAIN TRAINING." These articles discussed a fantastic breakthrough, a new science dealing with the conscious control of brain waves.

This new science is called AlphaGenics and concerns itself with the Alpha rhythms of brain. Noted researchers discussed how any person can learn to control brain waves and revealed some of the phenomenal capabilities of men with self-control of his brain waves. Exploration of this almost unknown continent—the human brain—has been pioneered by a soft-spoken para-psychologist, Jose Silva, of the Institute of Psychoresearch in Terebo, Texas. This sincere, dedicated scientist has been training people to enhance Alpha Brain Wave production for many years.

ALPHA BRAIN WAVE FUNCTION—Twenty-six years ago Silva and his associates began their research in Mind Control to see if it was possible to increase a person's IQ factor. Amazingly, Silva discovered that not only could IQ be increased but a person trained in this technique could even control certain areas of the Autonomic System—heart beat, respiration, blood pressure, etc. The implications of this breakthrough with regard to health and disease were staggering. With Mind Control, students have reported that they have been able to control pain, accelerate healing, eliminate insomnia, migraine headaches, as well as untold psychosomatic problems. In-depth studies also revealed that anyone with a normal brain and sufficient training could develop so called ESP and clairvoyance.

60,000 GRADUATES—COAST TO COAST—Three years ago the Institute decided to release their findings to the general public. Techniques had been refined to where only a few hours of class time were all that was required to become a truly effective person.

Pilfering Drains Liquor Dealers

by DAVID MAHSMAN
Perhaps the most costly item for liquor dealers is not rent or employee wages, but pilfering — shoplifting, theft by employees and merchandise taken by delivery and repair servicemen.

Pilferage was one topic discussed this week in workshops at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel sponsored by the Illinois Liquor Stores Association. The large turnout for the pilferage workshop indicates this is a major problem on the minds of liquor dealers.

George Berry, owner of four liquor stores in Quincy, told the workshop the amount of pilferage can mean the difference between profit and loss. He cited one liquor dealer who was forced out of business in two years because of customer and employee pilferage.

The actual amount of money lost is an elusive figure, however. Berry said weekly and monthly sales, specials and closeouts make it almost impossible to keep accurate inventory records. An elaborate inventory system could cost more than pilferage, he said.

Shoplifters are devious. Their techniques vary, keeping retailers on their toes. A group of people may come into a store and scatter, making it difficult for employees to watch all of them. Others will buy an item, then "browse" around the store, picking up other items as they go.

THEN THERE WAS the man and woman who came into one of Berry's stores and wandered into the seldom-watched food section. An employee detected sardines on their breath when they returned, and he later found three empty tins. The man was told to pay up, and he not only paid for the three empty tins, but for another half dozen in his pockets.

The dealers disagreed as to the best method of thwarting shoplifters. Some called monitoring devices "a joke, a fake." Others admitted many closed-circuit cameras are dummies, but insisted that the psychological effect is what counts.

Keeping the least tempting items near the door, small items behind the counter and employees on the floor were other suggestions. If shoplifters are caught, they should be prosecuted, not let go, others said.

All agreed that shoplifting cannot be eliminated. It can only be slowed by taking many careful measures, some of them costly.

Still, shoplifting is not the greatest pilferage threat in liquor stores. More liquor can be lost through the back door than the front, one dealer said.

"In general, store personnel and representatives are honest, but the fact still exists that pilferage has and will continue to exist within your store," Eddy Phillips, a suburban liquor dealer, told the workshop.

BERRY SAID it isn't unusual to find empty bottles in warehouses. He said an average of two employees are arrested annually for stealing, or for failure to ring up the proper amount on the cash register, then pocketing the difference. And delivery men have been known to tote off liquor as well as deliver it, he said.

There may even be collusion between the warehouse man and the clerk checking in the delivery, Berry said. He said he discovered one example of this only because an employee was jealous because another employee had more liquor in his home than he did.

And there are honest mistakes as well as dishonest ones, Berry said. He estimated that 75 per cent of all sales are lost through mistakes at the cash register.

Phillips suggested a system of controls to stop employee pilferage. These included rotating employees who check in deliveries, keeping back doors locked, lighted and wired with an alarm and making it profitable for employees to be honest.

The consensus was that retailers must be tough. When even strict controls fail to stop all pilferage, don't hesitate to prosecute someone caught with the goods to the fullest extent of the law.

The Old Cars Were 'Special'

Henry Had A Better Idea

by NANCY COWGER
When other drivers in Hoffman Estates are bogged down in winter snow, Harold Newby of 138 Bradley Ln. puts right on past them with a cheery wave from inside his black sedan.

And while Newby is forced to stack grocery bags along his auto's running board, Robert Gerth of 177 Maricopa Ln. can reach into his trunk from the front seat, and find an apple for a mid-day snack.

Newby and Gerth are among that special class of men who understand cars and love them, and glean more pleasure from the old products life has to offer than the new.

No flashy red 1973 Ferrari could steal the places in their hearts that now belong to a 1929 Model A Ford, a 1947 Mercury "woody," a 1940 Plymouth business coupe and a 1949 Chrysler Saratoga.

Newby bought the Model A back in '57 for a mere $125. He couldn't touch it for that now. His joy in its presence led him to build a porch on the back of his home, with one end hinged to permit him to bring it in out of the cold. The Mercury station wagon is a more recent possession, the family's "new arrival" in 1967.

GERTH BOUGHT the Plymouth for $10 in 1958, from three unmarried sisters who drove it once a year — to the service station for a checkup. The Chrysler joined the family last July.

The sisters lived across the street from Gerth's mother in Tomah, Wis., and he had been asking them about the car for a couple years. They were reluctant to sell it — it had belonged to their mother — but chose Gerth to give it a new home because they knew he would treat it with the respect they felt for it.

While Gerth's cars have not required much in the way of restoration, Newby has spent around $800 in the 15 years he has been restoring the Ford. He and his family have personally removed every screw and bolt in the car and returned them in finer condition to their original places.

Newby was disappointed in the paint he was able to buy for the car. He wanted to finish it in Washington Blue, the original color. But when he tried a sample on the car, it dried "about 15 shades lighter" than it should have.

Told by his dealer the variation was because of the primer coat he had first applied, he covered it with a different colored primer and tried again. When the color still didn't satisfy, he "chose Henry's favorite color," and painted the auto a spotless clear black, the color most associated with early Ford products.

While the number of Mercuries like Newby's still around is unknown, the auto connoisseur notes with pride "there are more than 300,000 Model A's still functioning and running in this country."

And Newby's car functions. As Mrs. Newby said, "We need it for transportation." It takes her to the grocery store, delivers the Newby teenagers to school and carries the whole family on a winter day when newer models have troubles just getting around.

THE MODEL A won a third place ribbon in July in an antique auto show in Green Bay, Wis. About 80 of the 367 entries won firsts. They were of the vintage and fragility that never are driven, he said. They are taken to meets across the country in trailers, protected, but never put to use.

"I want to enjoy using it," said Newby, who on occasion dresses to suit the auto's own era. Once his son dressed as a Keystone Cop to drive the car, and Newby donned a gorilla suit, ferociously attacking the "police" the length of a parade. Generally more conservative garb is his choice, and he now is eyeing a red striped blazer he thinks will complement the car.

Gerth's cars cover a lot of pavement too. He frequently drives the Plymouth to work, and over the past few weeks has been using the Chrysler, to become acquainted with its mechanical condition.

While he likes older cars also, and would like to own one someday, they are expensive. And Gerth has a special fondness for autos of the 1932-41 vintage.

"I like these cars because you can drive them. You get into the older ones, that would strictly be a show car. I really don't think I would enjoy it as much," said Gerth.

Perhaps Gerth's attachment for the 1940 variety auto stems from his youth, when he worked in a gas station. Cars from that approximate time taught him mechanics. The first car he owned was a 1941 Plymouth, only a year younger than his current car.

Both men also own modern cars, and use them as well. Gerth is amused to note the 1973 models have bumpers just like the oldsters did.

They also have strong ideas on how much time and how much money a man should devote to his old car interest. It is just a hobby, they emphasize. A family must be first, and the love of a car must not interfere with family activities, or family finances.

But in both men's homes, the hobby appears to contribute much to a mutual interest among family members, and to family pride and fun.

Newby would like to share his hobby with other antique auto buffs in the area, by forming a club. Persons interested in the sleek old beauties, whether they own any or not, are invited to contact him.

Mental Health Outpost Relocated

The Schaumburg Township mental health counseling outpost will be relocated from its present office at The Buttery, 105 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg, to new quarters in the old Hoffman Estates Village Hall, 161 Illinois Blvd.

Schaumburg Township Mental Health Board members Tuesday approved relocation of the outpost and will recommend the action to the township board. They also accepted the transitional process agreed upon between the Northwest Mental Health Clinic (NMHC) and Elk Grove Village Community Services.

NMHC is no longer responsible for providing service to Schaumburg Township, since Elk Grove Community Services received a state grant and now accepts that responsibility.

Elk Grove services now staffs the outpost and the NMHC social worker who worked within the township has been re-assigned to the Arlington Heights office of NMHC.

THE CURRENT NMHC case load of approximately 100 Schaumburg Township residents is still being served by NMHC through its Arlington Heights office, but future cases are being referred to Elk Grove.

The mental health board members are satisfied NMHC will continue to serve those patients that it presently is handling, while Elk Grove Services becomes established in the township.

Member Mark Knutson said the Hoffman Estates Woman's Club, which is handling leasing of the old village hall, was very receptive to the mental health board's request for space.

Elk Grove community services also approved the location. Although arrangements are tentative, present plans call for a private office and perhaps use of another room for group counseling.

REPRESENTATIVES of the mental health board report after attending an Elk Grove community counseling committee meeting that Elk Grove is working closely with NMHC for a smooth transition of services.

Mrs. Connie Schoeld, chairman of the mental health board, Knutson and Hoffman Estates resident Ed Gutman, a social worker, will serve as members of the Elk Grove committee. However, those appointments must come from the Elk Grove Village Board president.

Mrs. Carol Johnson will serve as an alternate member of the committee.

Member Les Arnold will represent the mental health board at Schaumburg Township meetings.

Members of the mental health board appeared satisfied channels of communication have been established between both agencies serving the township and their group.

Revenue Sharing Compromise Plan Hits Suburbs Hard

by KURT BAER

Northwest suburbs appear to be in for drastic reductions in federal revenue sharing if a compromise House-Senate program is adopted by both houses of Congress.

The compromise measure would result in cuts of 60 to 80 per cent for most suburbs compared with an earlier House-passed measure.

Arlington Heights would be particularly hard hit by the recommended compromise. Under the revenue-sharing bill passed by the House, Arlington Heights could expect to receive $1,007,968 this year. The compromise program would cut the allocation to $245,211, according to figures released yesterday by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

Other Chicago suburbs would experience similar percentage reductions. The state's largest cities, however, notably the City of Chicago, would receive more money under the compromise provision.

COMPARISONS between the House and compromise versions for other Northwest suburbs are: Buffalo Grove $185,566 (House) to $23,490 (compromise);

Des Plaines $909,711 to $327,599; Elk Grove $417,241 to $137,385; Hoffman Estates $379,929 to $73,174; Mount Prospect $529,635 to $144,632; Palatine $416,556 to $89,635; Rolling Meadows $317,101 to $72,411; Schaumburg $314,684 to $61,630; and Wheeling $148,760 to $48,522.

The compromise measure was worked out after a Senate bill, strongly backed by rural interests, was approved, taking money away from affluent suburbs and distributing it to large cities and rural areas.

Chicago's allocation would go from $38,899,411 under the House version to $69,335,285 under the compromise version.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. John Woods called the compromise measure "disappointing indeed." He said if the compromise is ratified by the House and Senate it "would not be very meaningful to Arlington Heights or any of the other suburbs."

Arlington Heights trustees had discussed using revenue sharing money for a number of major capital improvements including flood control, landfill site acquisition and transportation improvements.

"While we fully recognize Chicago's needs for funds, this doesn't make our needs any less acute," Woods said.

Woods said he planned to send what he called "a salvo of telegrams" to area Senators and Representatives urging them to reject the compromise. He said he hoped and would urge other suburban mayors to take similar action.

SCHAUMBURG MAYOR Robert Atcher also criticized the compromise proposal saying it discriminated against the suburbs.

"I'm sorry the compromise discriminates against suburban municipalities," giving more for big cities and little rural towns. "If you compare the tax picture... the towns close in near Chicago have tremendous problems by comparison. To skip over communities with the problems is unfair," Atcher said.

A spokesman in Percy's office said the smaller compromise figures are the result of the formula used to distribute money within each state. This formula takes into account what the spokesman called each town's "taxing effort" and the relative income of its population.

Towns with higher per-capita incomes get less money than those with lower such figures. "This will hurt the suburbs," the spokesman said.

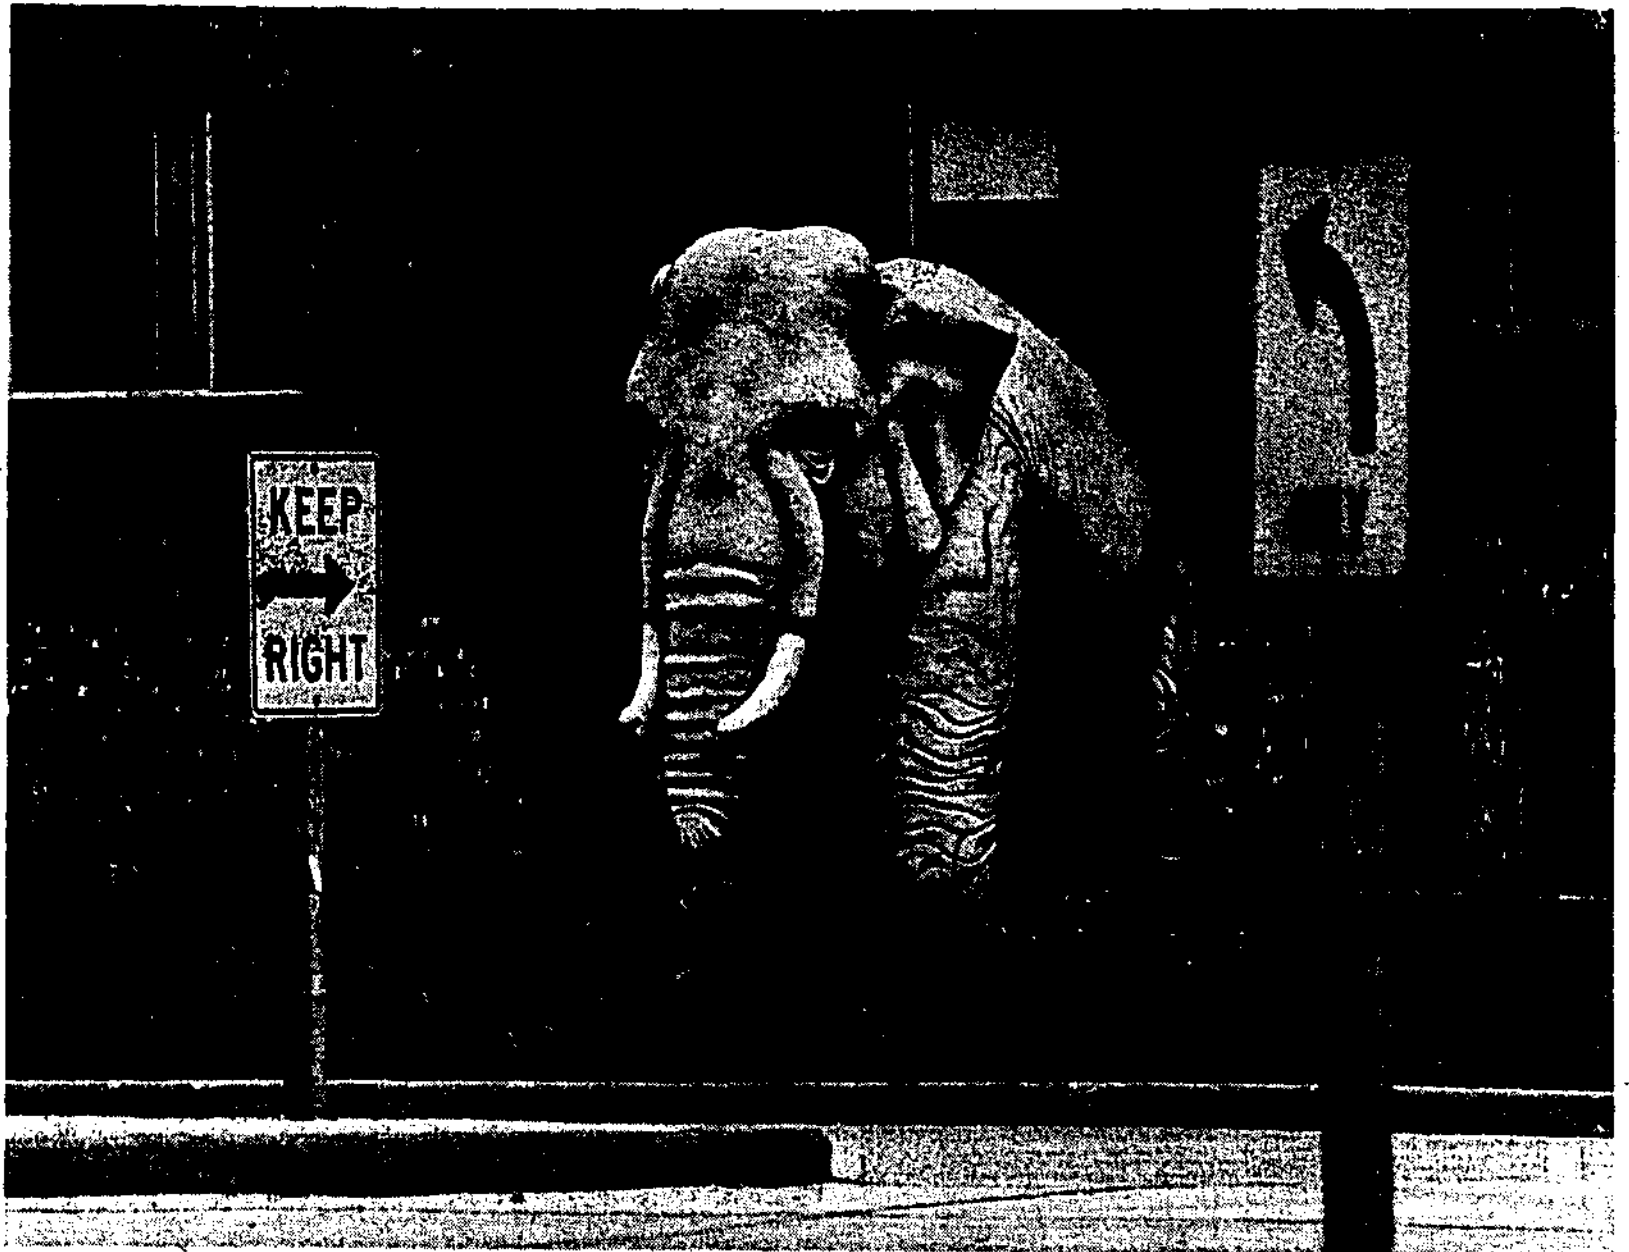

There is a provision in the compromise measure, however, that would allow state legislatures to alter the revenue sharing formula by eliminating the per-capita income factor.

If a state chooses to alter the formula, it must apply the revised program to all municipalities in the state for the full five year duration of the revenue-sharing program, the spokesman said.

THE PERCY spokesman outlined three ways in which the compromise formula could be altered by state legislative action.

One alternate formula is based on multiplying the community's general tax effort times its population. A second means is multiplying population times the per-

What! City Not On Map Yet?!

Despite a letter-writing campaign by residents, the Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce and State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-3rd, the city may be destined for another year of non-existence on the official State of Illinois road map.

That, at least, was the indication yesterday from Harry Hanley, a spokesman for the Division of Highways in Springfield.

"The 1973 map has not been prepared yet," Hanley said, "and no determination has been made about putting Rolling Meadows on."

Hanley said Rolling Meadows isn't the only town looking for a spot on the map and hinted that there simply might not be enough room on the map for the 19,200 neighbors of Arlington Heights, Palatine and Mount Prospect.

"It's supposed to be a highway map, not a municipality map," Hanley said.

Hanley acknowledged that the department has received letters from Rolling Meadows residents complaining about the lack of recognition. He said the letters were answered with explanations of the problem involved in fitting city names on the map.

Hanley said the map proofs are usually prepared in February or March, and at that time the department will consider the possibility of including Rolling Meadows on the map of the state.

Currently, the city is only located on the reverse side of the state map as part of "Chicago and vicinity."

Rolling Meadows isn't the only city in the area that has been ignored on the map in recent years. Palatine was left off last year, but a letter-writing campaign to Springfield convinced state officials that the village merited a spot on the map.

Litigation To Put Referendum On Ballot To Be Told Today

LWV To Force Township-Vote Issue

Representatives of area League of Women Voters chapters are expected to announce court action this morning against Palatine and Northfield townships to force officials to place a proposed referendum to abolish township government on the Nov. 7 ballot.

An LWV press conference is scheduled for 11:15 a.m. today at the Chicago Civic Center, when the group's attorney, Richard J. Troy, says a court order will be requested to force township officials to allow the issue.

The Palatine Township Board of Auditors Monday unanimously refused to put the issue to a vote in the November election. Palatine officials were the first of the four townships involved in the LWV drive to make a final decision.

In August, the Palatine LWV chapter presented more than 2,000 signatures on petitions to force the auditors to put the referendum on the ballot. Other chapters in Maine, Niles and Northfield townships have taken the same action.

ATTORNEYS for all four townships prepared opinions about the legality of the issue, and their conclusions were similar, attorney Roger Bjorvik told the Palatine board Monday.

"The attorneys are unanimous in the opinion that the primary block (to the referendum) is the transitional process," Bjorvik said.

For the first time in Illinois, the 1970 revision of the state constitution allows voters to abolish township government. But another section of the constitution also stipulates that "The General Assembly shall provide by law for the transfer of assets, powers and functions, and for the payments of outstanding debts" in connection with such a change in local government units.

Whether such a law must be passed before or after the referendum is allowed is the central issue in the township-LWV dispute.

The law that would remedy the argument, H.B. 2508, is in committee in the Legislature awaiting a third reading. It states that functions of dissolved townships would be transferred to the county. But until the bill is approved, township attorneys say the provision allowing township governments to be dissolved is unconstitutional.

TROY, CALLS the boards' arguments a "smoke screen."

"They're very much afraid that there'll be chaos if the referendum passes," Troy said. But the LWV doesn't think that is a good enough argument to keep the issue off the ballot.

"We're very confident that the legislators will do their duty and pass the necessary legislation if the referendums pass," Troy said. The townships can't legally keep the referendum off the ballot, since the required numbers of voters in each township have demanded it, Troy said. So today the LWV begins court action to force the issue that has been rejected in Palatine and is about to be rejected in Northfield.

Troy said additional petitions for mandamus may be entered next week against Maine and Niles townships if those officials choose to follow the Palatine precedent.

Palatine Township officials will have five days to respond to the court order, and proceedings will probably begin sometime next week.

BJORVIK, contacted by The Herald late yesterday, said he and township officials were not informed of the impending LWV action.

Since there appears to be a serious question in the mind of both parties about the issue, the courts should settle the matter, Bjorvik said. But with the election date less than five weeks away, time is short for extensive judicial processes.

The legal deadline for adding an item to the election ballot is ten days before the election, but 30 days is considered a minimum for the actual procedures to be completed.

"I know that the courts can act expeditiously," Troy said, noting the special July 4 consideration by the U.S. Supreme Court for the Democratic Convention controversy.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Brimming with confidence that has him musing about the size of his potential mandate, President Nixon took his reelection campaign from New York to California. He spoke at $1,000-a-plate dinners in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

After weeks of hard campaigning on the road, Sen. George S. McGovern will take his case to the people through prime-time television, starting with nationwide broadcast of a half-hour biography Sunday night.

The government's index of leading economic indicators jumped sharply in August after two sluggish months, proving that the economic recovery is not about to run out of steam as some critics charged, the Commerce Department said.

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger flew back to the U.S. to report to President Nixon after completing two days of secret meetings with North Vietnamese delegates to the Vietnam peace talks.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, stumping in a cornfield near Galesburg, told farmers the Nixon administration has dramatically expanded farm markets but "won't be happy" until farmers' incomes match average nonfarm incomes.

The Senate Armed Services Committee has decided to investigate charges that Navy fliers — as well as Air Force pilots commanded by Lt. Gen. John D. Lavelle — bombed North Vietnam in violation of President Nixon's restrictions.

The State

Yellow tickets blossomed like dandelions on Chicago's streets as the men in blue turned motorists purple with uncommonly strict enforcement of traffic laws. The "ticket blitz" was a campaign by policemen to persuade Supt. James B. Conlisk to negotiate with police organizations on bargaining demands.

More than 130 motorists were jailed for traffic infractions.

Former Black Panther Verline Brown testified that a black policeman threatened to "blow her head off" during a 1969 police raid in which two Panther leaders were killed.

The World

Three American war prisoners released by North Vietnam more than a week ago arrived in Moscow and said they were willing to meet privately with U.S. diplomats. They were in high spirits and apparently in good health.

RELIEF CAME yesterday to Arlington Hts. Road residents when the Cook County Highway Department began around-the-clock pumping of fields flooded for over a month. Arlington Hts. Road, in northwest Palatine Township, was under water most of that time, and repeated rains brought the water level up to the edges of homes along the lane. Frantic residents called the township, Northwest Mosquito Abatement District and the county before asking The Herald for help. Last week, the county began rodding out drainage systems and vowed yesterday to pump the area until it was dry.

City Urges Master Flood Control Plan Be Devised

To cope with the serious flooding conditions that have victimized the city this year, Rolling Meadows officials have proposed that a master plan for flood control be devised.

At a city council meeting Tuesday, Mayor Roland Meyer asked aldermen to consider channeling any federal money the city might receive from the proposed revenue sharing program into a fund to pay for the preparation of such a plan. He estimated such a fund could accumulate $360,000 over a five-year period.

Meyer said he had already discussed the feasibility of a master plan with city engineers Edgar N. Fletcher and James Muldowney. Fletcher said yesterday general goals of such a plan are currently being considered.

"The Busse Woods retention basin (near Elk Grove Village) now being constructed will give much relief to the problem," Fletcher said. He said a plan is being considered to connect several of the city's sewers running across Wilke Road to a line that would empty into the basin.

"Our sewer outlets are not satisfactory at the present time," Fletcher said. He added that sewers serving an estimated 270 acres of Rolling Meadows are being planned to drain into the Busse Woods basin.

THE PLAN is also expected to provide for the construction of additional sewers on School Drive and a new sewer line from Grouse Lane that will cross the city, he said.

Construction is expected to begin within two weeks on another sewer improvement project, this one for Holly Lane, Muldowney said Tuesday at the council meeting. The $38,500 project is expected to be completed next spring.

Fletcher also said the city is including plans for retention basins in several parts of the city as another long-range goal.

"We're anxious for the state to get going on the four basins they're planning for Salt Creek, too," he said. "With the creek bottled up the way it is now, we're just pushing the water from one place to another."

Fletcher said the master plan would probably consist for the most part of a combination of sewers and construction of additional sewers and retention basins.

"With all these plans, we should be in pretty good shape," he added.

Six witnesses for the state and six witnesses for the defense concluded testimony yesterday in the battery trial of John D. Fender, former teacher at Miner Junior High, Arlington Heights.

Fender, who was recently fired by the School Dist. 25 board of education, is accused of striking Linda Calvert, a student, several times about the face and the head.

On the stand, Miss Calvert testified that Fender hit her several times, leaving cuts on the inside of her mouth and blurry vision in her right eye. She said the action was prompted when she asked the girl sitting next to her for a pencil.

"He (Fender) came over to my desk, slammed my head down on the desk, picked my head up then started to slap me, about four or five times. Then he talked to me about how I was always talking. Then he put his hand in a fist and hit me one time, which caught me under the right eye," Miss Calvert testified. "Everything went black after that, but he kept slapping me and the inside of my mouth was cut on my braces."

FENDER testified that he had never hit anyone with a closed fist or backhanded anyone in his life. He said that he did, however, hit Linda as a disciplinary measure after several other methods of discipline did not work.

"I walked over to Linda's desk after I observed her talking after telling her not to and she laid her head down in her arms. I hit her twice, with an open hand. I talked to her, then hit her twice more," Fender testified.

While Linda testified that Fender hit her 10 to 15 times, four of her female classmates testified that they observed Fender hitting her seven to 10 times. Two of the girls also said that they didn't like Fender.

"I used to like him, but I dislike him now because I don't think it's right for teachers to strike students," said Adele Booth, one of Miss Calvert's classmates.

City To Rule On Single-Family Plan

A plan to construct single-family homes on a 2½-acre site north of the Plum Grove Country subdivision will be ruled on next month by the Rolling Meadows City Council.

The plan, presented to the council in a public hearing Tuesday, calls for annexation and rezoning to allow building seven single-family, bi-level units. The homes are expected to sell for $45,000 to $50,000.

In a presentation before the council, George Downs, who represented developer Alexander Henry of Rolling Meadows, said Henry was seeking an R-4 classification for the property, which would permit single-family construction on lots of 7,800 square feet.

Downs said an R-3 classification had originally been sought, but the city's plan commission told Henry that the R-4 zoning would be required because two lots on the property would not meet the requirements of R-3.

THE R-3 CLASSIFICATION requires a minimum of 8,400 square feet per lot.

Ald. Thomas Scanlan (2nd) said he thought the property could qualify for the R-3 zoning because the smallest lots still met the required specifications. When City Atty. Donald Rose agreed, Downs indicated he would consult with Henry on the classification they will seek.

Ald. Thomas Scanlan (1st) questioned whether the project adequately accounted for proper drainage.

"There is a water problem not only in the summer time but in the winter time in the area of this property," Scanlan said. "I would like to see this plan come about for single-family homes, but I'm concerned about causing more flooding problems and more sanitary sewer problems," he added.

City Engineer James Muldowney told the council that "on the surface, the storm sewer system looks adequate," but added he would review the drainage facilities for the project along with other details submitted on the topographical outline.

IN OTHER business at the council meeting, the expenditure of $3,000 in motor fuel tax funds was approved to pay for the inventory of the city streets requested by the state.

Ald. Daniel Weber, (4th), chairman of the council's streets, alleys and utilities committee, said there were two reasons for the inventory. He said it would provide "a central inventory control that we don't have now," as well as a "central source for future maintenance plans."

A resolution was also approved calling for the expenditure of $2,500 to replace 92 trees throughout the city. The trees will be purchased from the Klehm Nursery, Arlington Heights.

Weber said Klehm, rather than the city's public works department, was contracted to plant the trees to insure their lifetime guarantee.

City's Propane Fuel Plan Wins Award

A program designed to reduce maintenance costs of police cars in Rolling Meadows has been awarded the Management Innovation Award from the International City Management Association.

The award was presented to City Mgr. James Watson and the city last week at the association's annual conference held in Minneapolis, Minn.

The association, whose membership extends throughout the U.S., Canada and England, cited Watson's recognition of a program he helped initiate to convert the city's squad cars from gasoline to propane fuel.

Propane emits no pollutants, cuts down on maintenance costs and increases the reliability of the vehicles.

"I was quite surprised and pleased," Watson said of receiving the award. "I didn't expect that this (program) would be selected."

WATSON SAID the idea of converting the vehicles "had been tossed around for about two years." He said he submitted a resume and brief description of the program to the association's executive board, which reviewed the proposals and selected the award recipient.

Watson estimated that about 100 ideas were submitted to the board in the innovation category, one of ten different awards classifications.

According to Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case, the conversion program has been in operation for almost a year. Initial cost of converting each vehicle was $100.

Case said the devices used on each vehicle are rented at a cost of $10 per month. A 1,000 gallon tank used to store the fuel is also rented.

Conversion of other city vehicles to propane is being planned as an extension of the current program. Jack Poellen, public works foreman, said that although it is difficult to convert old vehicles, new trucks being ordered will be equipped to run on propane.

Cost of the fuel to the city is 24 cents per gallon, Poellen said. High-test ethyl gasoline, which is needed in the non-converted vehicles, costs 26 cents per gallon, he said.

School Repair Review Slated

Repair work — or the lack of it — on the storm ravaged Forest View High School in southern Arlington Heights will receive a special administrative review this week.

That decision came from the High School Dist. 214 board Monday night, after about 40 parents of Forest View students loudly assailed the board and the district's administration for failing to get the damage repaired as soon as possible.

Under the shadow of frequently shouted interruptions and occasional booing from the audience, the board agreed to resume the discussion at a meeting held at 8 p.m. Monday.

THE AUDIENCE'S anger was directed towards the condition of the gymnasium and adjacent areas. On July 14, tornado-like winds ripped off a portion of the roof and caused considerable rain damage to the gymnasium floor.

The group of parents, who had as their spokesman Sig Haaland of the Forest View Boosters Club, charged the uncompleted repair work creates a "health hazard" for students in the high school.

The members of the group asked repeatedly about the district's inability to complete construction work. Assistant Supt. Robert Weber described the procedures involved in seeking insurance backing for repairs and explained that at least 25 days need to be spent in seeking and considering bids under the law.

"In spite of all these delays, somebody's screwed up," someone shouted from the audience.

Contracts for the roofing repair — which must precede repair of the gym floor — have been let, but Lawrence Jenness, Forest View principal, reported the roofing contractor, Town and Country Plumbing of Chicago, had "not performed satisfactorily."

He added that, when a double crew had been requested over the weekend, only half of the normal crew showed up for work.

THE LOCKER ROOMS in the high school are unusable, Jenness said, but use of the freshman locker room is difficult — especially since the roof ripped off the remaining roofing, allowing water to pour in when it rains, said Jenness.

Board chairman Ray Erickson, after hearing the audience members assail the board and administration for inaction on the repair work, said the board would "ask the administration to formulate a realistic schedule" for repair work. And Supt. Edward Gilbert said that, "as of tonight," the expectation was for the roof to be completed by Jan. 1, 1973.

Jenness said before the meeting that the administration is already doing some sports rescheduling because home basketball games scheduled for December cannot be played in the gym.

Minor Fire At Sunoco

Rolling Meadows firemen responded to a small electrical panel fire at a Sunoco gasoline station at Kirschhoff Road and Flicker Lane in Rolling Meadows yesterday afternoon.

Minor damage was reported in the incident. Firemen were at the scene for less than half an hour.

An Important Seminar/Lecture on Mind Control & ESP
for everyone interested in developing mental powers

Recently, many national publications such as LIFE, GLAMOUR, and THE WALL STREET JOURNAL, featured articles on "BRAIN WAVES" and "BRAIN TRAINING." These articles discussed a fantastic breakthrough, a new science dealing with the conscious control of brain waves.

This new science is called AlphaGenics and concerns itself with the Alpha rhythms of brain. Noted researchers discussed how any person can learn to control brain waves and revealed some of the phenomenal capabilities of man with self-control of his brain waves. Exploration of this almost unknown continent — the human brain — has been pioneered by a soft-spoken para-psychologist, Jose Silva, of the Institute of Psychobiology in Laredo, Texas. This sincere, dedicated scientist has been training people to enhance Alpha Brain Wave production for many years.

ALPHA BRAIN WAVE FUNCTION — Twenty-six years ago Silva and his associates began their research in Mind Control to see if it was possible to increase a person's IQ factor. Amazingly, Silva discovered that not only could IQ be increased but a person trained in this technique could even control certain areas of the Autonomic System — heart beat, respiration, blood pressure, etc. The implications of this breakthrough with regard to health and disease were staggering. With Mind Control, students have reported that they have been able to control pain, accelerate healing, eliminate insomnia, migraine headaches, as well as untold psychosomatic problems. In-depth studies also revealed that anyone with a normal brain and sufficient training could develop so called ESP and clairvoyance.

60,000 GRADUATES — COAST TO COAST — Three years ago the Institute decided to release their findings to the general public. Techniques had been refined to where only a few hours of class time were all that was required to become a truly effective person.

Pilfering Drains Liquor Dealers

by DAVID MAHSMAN

Perhaps the most costly item for liquor dealers is not rent or employee wages, but pilfering — shoplifting, theft by employees and merchandise taken by delivery and repair servicemen.

Pilferage was one topic discussed this week in workshops at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel sponsored by the Illinois Liquor Stores Association. The large turnout for the pilferage workshop indicates this is a major problem on the minds of liquor dealers.

George Berry, owner of four liquor stores in Quincy, told the workshop the amount of pilferage can mean the difference between profit and loss. He cited one liquor dealer who was forced out of business in two years because of customer and employee pilferage.

The actual amount of money lost is an elusive figure, however. Berry said weekly and monthly sales, specials and discounts make it almost impossible to keep accurate inventory records. An elaborate inventory system could cost more than pilferage, he said.

Shoplifters are devious. Their techniques vary, keeping retailers on their toes. A group of people may come into a store and scatter, making it difficult for employees to watch all of them. Others will buy an item, then "browse" around the store, picking up other items as they go.

THEN THERE WAS the man and woman who came into one of Berry's stores and wandered into the seldom-watched food section. An employee detected sardines on their breath when they returned, and he later found three empty tins. The man was told to pay up, and he not only paid for the three empty tins, but for another half dozen in his pockets.

The dealers disagreed as to the best method of thwarting shoplifters. Some called monitoring devices "a joke, a fake." Others admitted many closed-circuit cameras are dummies, but insisted that the psychological effect is what counts.

Keeping the least tempting items near the door, small items behind the counter and employees on the floor were other suggestions. If shoplifters are caught, they should be prosecuted, not let go, others said.

All agreed that shoplifting cannot be eliminated. It can only be slowed by taking many careful measures, some of them costly.

Still, shoplifting is not the greatest pilferage threat in liquor stores. More liquor can be lost through the back door than the front, one dealer said.

"In general, store personnel and representatives are honest, but the fact still exists that pilferage has and will continue to exist within your store," Eddy Phillips, a suburban liquor dealer, told the workshop.

BERRY SAID it isn't unusual to find empty bottles in warehouses. He said an average of two employees are arrested annually for stealing, or for failure to ring up the proper amount on the cash register, then pocketing the difference. And delivery men have been known to tote off liquor as well as deliver it, he said.

There may even be collusion between the warehouse man and the clerk checking in the delivery, Berry said. He said he discovered one example of this only because an employee was jealous because another employee had more liquor in his home than he did.

And there are honest mistakes as well as dishonest ones, Berry said. He estimated that 75 per cent of all sales are lost through mistakes at the cash register.

Phillips suggested a system of controls to stop employee pilferage. These included rotating employees who check in deliveries, keeping back doors locked, lighted and wired with an alarm and making it profitable for employees to be honest.

The consensus was that retailers must be tough. When even strict controls fail to stop all pilferage, don't hesitate to prosecute someone caught with the goods to the fullest extent of the law.

The Old Cars Were 'Special'

Henry Had A Better Idea

by NANCY COWGER

When other drivers in Hoffman Estates are bogged down in winter snow, Harold Newby of 138 Bradley Ln. puts right on past them with a cheery wave from inside his black sedan.

And while Newby is forced to stack grocery bags along his auto's running board, Robert Gerth of 177 Maricopa Ln. can reach into his trunk from the front seat, and find an apple for a mid-day snack.

Newby and Gerth are among that special class of men who understand cars and love them, and glean more pleasure from the old products life has to offer than the new.

No flashy red 1973 Ferrari could steal the places in their hearts that now belong to a 1928 Model A Ford, a 1947 Mercury "woody," a 1940 Plymouth business coupe and a 1949 Chrysler Saratoga.

Newby bought the Model A back in '57 for a mere $125. He couldn't touch it for that now. His joy in its presence led him to build a porch on the back of his home, with one end hinged to permit him to bring it in out of the cold. The Mercury station wagon is a more recent possession, the family's "new arrival" in 1967.

GERTH BOUGHT the Plymouth for $10 in 1968, from three unmarried sisters who drove it once a year — to the service station for a checkup. The Chrysler joined the family last July.

The sisters lived across the street from Gerth's mother in Tomah, Wis., and he had been asking them about the car for a couple years. They were reluctant to sell it — it had belonged to their mother — but chose Gerth to give it a new home because they knew he would treat it with the respect they felt for it.

While Gerth's cars have not required much in the way of restoration, Newby has spent around $800 in the 15 years he has been restoring the Ford. He and his family have personally removed every screw and bolt in the car and returned them in finer condition to their original places.

Newby was disappointed in the paint he was able to buy for the car. He wanted to finish it in Washington Blue, the original color. But when he tried a sample on the car, it dried "about 15 shades lighter" than it should have.

Told by his dealer the variation was because of the primer coat he had first applied, he covered it with a different colored primer and tried again. When the color still didn't satisfy, he "chose Henry's favorite color," and painted the auto a spotless clear black, the color most associated with early Ford products.

While the number of Mercurys like Newby's still around is unknown, the auto connoisseur notes with pride "there are more than 300,000 Model A's still functioning and running in this country."

And Newby's car functions. As Mrs. Newby said, "We need it for transportation." It takes her to the grocery store, delivers the Newby teenagers to school and carries the whole family on a winter day when newer models have troubles just getting around.

THE MODEL A won a third place ribbon in July in an antique auto show in Green Bay, Wis. About 80 of the 367 entries won firsts. They were of the vintage and fragility that never are driven, he said. They are taken to meets across the country in trailers, protected, but never put to use.

"I want to enjoy using it," said Newby, who on occasion dresses to suit the auto's own era. Once his son dressed as a Keystone Cop to drive the car, and Newby donned a gorilla suit, ferociously attacking the "police" the length of a parade. Generally more conservative garb is his choice, and he now is eyeing a red striped blazer he thinks will complement the car.

Gerth's cars cover a lot of pavement too. He frequently drives the Plymouth to work, and over the past few weeks has been using the Chrysler, to become acquainted with its mechanical condition.

While he likes older cars also, and would like to own one someday, they are expensive. And Gerth has a special fondness for autos of the 1932-41 vintage.

"I like these cars because you can drive them. You get into the older ones, that would strictly be a show car. I really don't think I would enjoy it as much," said Gerth.

Perhaps Gerth's attachment for the 1940 variety auto stems from his youth, when he worked in a gas station. Cars from that approximate time taught him mechanics. The first car he owned was a 1941 Plymouth, only a year younger than his current car.

Both men also own modern cars, and use them as well. Gerth is amused to note the 1973 models have bumpers just like the oldsters did.

They also have strong ideas on how much time and how much money a man should devote to his old car interest. It is just a hobby, they emphasize. A family must be first, and the love of a car must not interfere with family activities, or family finances.

But in both men's homes, the hobby appears to contribute much to a mutual interest among family members, and to family pride and fun.

Newby would like to share his hobby with other antique auto buffs in the area, by forming a club. Persons interested in the sleek old beauties, whether they own any or not, are invited to contact him.

Mental Health Outpost Relocated

The Schaumburg Township mental health counseling outpost will be relocated from its present office at The Buttery, 105 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg, to new quarters in the old Hoffman Estates Village Hall, 161 Illinois Blvd.

Schaumburg Township Mental Health Board members Tuesday approved relocation of the outpost and will recommend the action to the township board. They also accepted the transitional process agreed upon between the Northwest Mental Health Clinic (NMHC) and Elk Grove Village Community Services.

NMHC is no longer responsible for providing service to Schaumburg Township, since Elk Grove Community Services received a state grant and now accepts that responsibility.

Elk Grove services now staffs the outpost and the NMHC social worker who worked within the township has been reassigned to the Arlington Heights office of NMHC.

THE CURRENT NMHC case load of approximately 100 Schaumburg Township residents is still being served by NMHC through its Arlington Heights office, but future cases are being referred to Elk Grove.

The mental health board members are satisfied NMHC will continue to serve those patients that it presently is handling, while Elk Grove Services becomes established in the township.

Member Mark Knutson said the Hoffman Estates Woman's Club, which is handling leasing of the old village hall, was very receptive to the mental health board's request for space.

Elk Grove community services also approved the location. Although arrangements are tentative, present plans call for a private office and perhaps use of another room for group counseling.

REPRESENTATIVES of the mental health board report after attending an Elk Grove community counseling committee meeting that Elk Grove is working closely with NMHC for a smooth transition of services.

Mrs. Connie Schoeld, chairman of the mental health board, Knutson and Hoffman Estates resident Ed Gutman, a social worker, will serve as members of the Elk Grove committee. However, those appointments must come from the Elk Grove Village Board president.

Mrs. Carol Johnson will serve as an alternate member of the committee.

Member Les Arnold will represent the mental health board at Schaumburg Township meetings.

Members of the mental health board appeared satisfied channels of communication have been established between both agencies serving the township and their group.

60 To 80 Per Cent Cuts

New Revenue Plan Hits Suburbs Hard

by KURT BAER

Northwest suburbs appear to be in for drastic reductions in federal revenue sharing if a compromise House-Senate program is adopted by both houses of Congress.

The compromise measure would result in cuts of 60 to 80 per cent for most suburbs compared with an earlier House-passed measure.

Arlington Heights would be particularly hard hit by the recommended compromise. Under the revenue-sharing bill passed by the House, Arlington Heights could expect to receive $1,007,968 this year. The compromise program would cut the allocation to $248,211, according to figures released yesterday by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

Other Chicago suburbs would experience similar percentage reductions. The state's largest cities, however, notably the City of Chicago, would receive more money under the compromise provision.

COMPARISONS between the House and compromise versions for other Northwest suburbs are: Buffalo Grove

$186,566 (House) to $23,490 (compromise); Des Plaines $909,711 to $327,599; Elk Grove $417,241 to $137,385; Hoffman Estates $379,929 to $73,174; Mount Prospect $329,635 to $144,652; Palatine $416,556 to $89,835; Rolling Meadows $317,101 to $72,411; Schaumburg $314,684 to $61,630; and Wheeling $148,760 to $48,522.

The compromise measure was worked out after a Senate bill, strongly backed by rural interests, was approved, taking money away from affluent suburbs and distributing it to large cities and rural areas.

Chicago's allocation would go from $58,899,411 under the House version to $69,335,285 under the compromise version.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. John Woods called the compromise measure "disappointing indeed." He said if the compromise is ratified by the House and Senate it "would not be very meaningful to Arlington Heights or any of the other suburbs."

Arlington Heights trustees had discussed using revenue sharing money for a number of major capital improvements including flood control, landfill site acquisition and transportation improvements.

"While we fully recognize Chicago's needs for funds, this doesn't make our needs any less acute," Woods said.

Woods said he planned to send what he called "a salvo of telegrams" to area Senators and Representatives urging them to reject the compromise. He said he hoped and would urge other suburban mayors to take similar action.

SCHAUMBURG MAYOR Robert Atcher also criticized the compromise proposal saying it discriminated against the suburbs.

"I'm sorry the compromise discriminates against suburban municipalities," giving more for big cities and little rural towns. "If you compare the tax picture . . . the towns close in near Chicago have tremendous problems by comparison. To skip over communities with the problems is unfair," Atcher said.

A spokesman in Percy's office said the smaller compromise figures are the result of the formula used to distribute money within each state. This formula takes into account what the spokesman called each town's "taxing effort" and the relative income of its population.

Towns with higher per-capita incomes get less money than those with lower such figures. "This will hurt the suburbs," the spokesman said.

There is a provision in the compromise measure, however, that would allow state legislatures to alter the revenue sharing formula by eliminating the per-capita income factor.

If a state chooses to alter the formula, it must apply the revised program to all municipalities in the state for the full five year duration of the revenue-sharing program, the spokesman said.

THE PERCY spokesman outlined three ways in which the compromise formula could be altered by state legislative action.

One alternate formula is based on multiplying the community's general tax effort times its population. A second means is multiplying population times the per-

Flood Damage Surveys Out Monday?

Flood damage surveys, similar to those used in 1967, could be sent out as early as Monday, Mount Prospect officials said yesterday.

The survey, estimated to cost $2,000 was part of a "crash" flood control program approved Tuesday by the Mount Prospect Village Board. Other aspects of the program approved include a three-month moratorium on building within the village and the expenditure of up to $30,000 for an engineering study of flooding and the need for retention basins throughout the village.

The surveys, adapted from the 1967 forms, will be mailed to all persons billed by the village for water and hand-distributed to persons who are served by Citizens Utilities Co. Mayor Robert D. Telchert said the forms were ordered prior to the board meeting as all the trustees agreed it would be needed.

The building moratorium approved by the board is not an absolute one. Several exemptions were written into the resolution. The board is not an absolute one. Several exemptions were written into the resolution and the option of appeal to the village board was left open in all cases.

BASICALLY, THE moratorium means that no new building permits will be issued unless they are for a development already approved by the village board or for internal alterations to an existing structure. An amendment was added to the resolution which also permits "improvements of an accessory use to single-family structures." The latter includes improvements such as fences, garage additions or room additions.

The moratorium was approved by the board in a 4-2 vote with trustees Patrick J. Link and Daniel J. Ahern voting against the resolution. Ahern voted against it because he said he felt developers had as much right to do what they wanted with their land as he did. Link said he favored the main motion but could not accept the amendment.

Several builders and developers were present among the 60 or so who attended the meeting. At least two asked whether the moratorium would affect their specific projects, namely Huntington Commons and the Old Orchard Development. In each case, Telchert told the men their developments would not be affected because they have already been approved by the board.

THE ENGINEERING study, for which funds were approved, will take the results of the flood damage survey and use them to determine whether and where additional retention basins are needed.

Ahern was the only trustee voting against hiring a consulting engineer. He said he felt it would be foolish to spend $20,000 to have someone come back and say the village will have to spend several millions of dollars. "If we can't get the millions of dollars," Ahern asked the board to explain where such money would come from first.

Telchert said he estimated from $1.5 to $2-million will be needed for retention basins. He mentioned the following potential sources for the funds: "Whatever form of taxation as necessary," higher property taxes, a utility tax, federal and state grants and the promised federal revenue sharing funds.

A 5 per cent utility tax in Mount Prospect, Telchert said, would bring in at least $500,000. "We cannot continue to side step what I still consider the most onerous problem facing the community."

Voter Signup Heavy (Not All Youth)

Although voter registration throughout Wheeling Township has been heavy this year, clerks say that the large turnout cannot be solely attributed to the newly enfranchised youth vote.

"It's been a fair showing, not a strong showing," Dorothy Haufl, Wheeling Township clerk, said of the young people's turnout.

She said there were several reasons why registration was heavy including the youth vote, the change in state residency requirements, and the upcoming presidential election. "Of course, you have to take into consideration that the area is expanding so rapidly," she said.

Mrs. Haufl said that while registration has been quite heavy all week, she doesn't expect the big rush to come until Saturday. To handle the last-minute crowd, the clerk has extended hours and added evening hours tonight and Monday, the last day for township office registration.

Because of the number of people registering, Mrs. Haufl said her office has not yet had time to tabulate how many people registered through the township office. "We've been so bogged down that we haven't bothered to count," she said.

Based on the number of registration cards the office has used up, Mrs. Haufl said that roughly 2,500 people registered there. "There were six of us working here Saturday as fast as we could, and there were still people waiting in line," she said.

AT VILLAGE OFFICES throughout the township, other clerks also experienced increased registration. In Mount Prospect the village clerk said there was "an incredible rush," with 1,200 people registered between July and Sept. 18, when village registration closed.

Buffalo Grove Village Clerk Verna Clayton said that while a "good number" of young people registered at the village, the largest voter registration increases came from the Mill Creek subdivision and a Cambridge-on-the-Lake condominium.

Mrs. Clayton said she did not know how many Buffalo Grove residents were registered to vote because figures from the township and the county are not yet complete. She estimated, however, that approximately 4,500 were registered voters.

Likewise, in Wheeling, increased voter registration has been attributed to new residents rather than young people. "I would think there were quite a few who were moving into the apartment dwellings," said Mrs. Roberta Krause of the office staff.

"Towards the end we had more young people than at the beginning," Mrs. Krause added. She said many of the young voters registered just before they left for college.

"Some of the young people came in, registered and then asked how they could vote absentee," she said. Applications for absentee voting still are available at the villages or other registration places. They must be returned to the county clerk no later than Nov. 2 by mail, or Nov. 4 in person.

AS OF SEPT. 22, 5,905 Wheeling residents had registered to vote. This tally was also made without figures from the township and the county.

Since May, 447 persons have registered at the Wheeling village office. This figure compares to the 321 persons who registered at the village between May and April last year.

In Arlington Heights, 5,339 persons have registered to vote. Of this number who registered either in the village, township or county, 2,149 were persons who registered for the first time.

For those people who have not yet registered, the township clerk's office will accept registration through Monday night. One final registration session will be Oct. 10, when all of the precincts will accept registration from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Plan Drive For Cardiac Unit

The Mount Prospect Jaycees are now soliciting help from several service organizations within the Mount Prospect area for help in a new project called "Operation Cardiac Unit."

"Operation Cardiac Unit" is a program initiated by the Jaycees to help pay for cardiac treatment units installed in two Mount Prospect fire department ambulances. The units are tied by radio to the Northwest Community Hospital. The unit transmits the vital signs of a cardiac patient to a doctor at the hospital and the doctor in turn relays information back to the ambulance crews about emergency treatment.

The Mount Prospect program is part of an area-wide program operating through the Northwest Community Hospital. The hospital is responsible for raising funds for the receiving unit, but each suburb must pay for its own transmitting devices.

THE VILLAGE purchased the two units at the end of the summer for $11,394. The Jaycees started "Operation Cardiac Unit" because "we are concerned that if we don't have the money donated, the village may have to cut back on service programs or else increase taxes," Kurt Carlisle, chairman of Operation Cardiac, explained.

According to Mount Prospect Fire Chief Lawrence A. Pairitz, there were 73 individual cases where the new ambulance equipment could have been in use in 1971. "The ambulance calls have increased significantly since then so it would follow that the number of cases that need this treatment would have increased significantly also," Pairitz said.

Any organizations interested in developing a fund raising program or just donating money to "Operation Cardiac Unit" are asked to call Carlisle at 392-7625.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Brimming with confidence that has him musing about the size of his potential mandate, President Nixon took his reelection campaign from New York to California. He spoke at $1,000-a-plate dinners in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

After weeks of hard campaigning on the road, Sen. George S. McGovern will take his case to the people through prime-time television, starting with a nationwide broadcast of a half-hour biography Sunday night.

The government's index of leading economic indicators jumped sharply in August after two sluggish months, proving that the economic recovery is not about to run out of steam as some critics charged, the Commerce Department said.

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger flew back to the U.S. to report to President Nixon after completing two days of secret meetings with North Vietnamese delegates to the Vietnam peace talks.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, stumping in a cornfield near Galesburg, told farmers the Nixon administration has dramatically expanded farm markets but "won't be happy" until farmers' incomes match average nonfarm incomes.

The Senate Armed Services Committee has decided to investigate charges that Navy fliers — as well as Air Force pilots commanded by Lt. Gen. John D. LaVelle — bombed North Vietnam in violation of President Nixon's restrictions.

The State

Yellow tickets blossomed like dandelions on Chicago's streets as the men in blue turned motorists purple with uncommonly strict enforcement of traffic laws. The "ticket blitz" was a campaign by policemen to persuade Supt. James B. Conlisk to negotiate with police organizations on bargaining demands.

More than 130 motorists were jailed for traffic infractions.

Former Black Panther Verilna Brewer testified that a black policeman threatened to "blow her head off" during a 1969 police raid in which two Panther leaders were killed.

The World

Three American war prisoners released by North Vietnam more than a week ago arrived in Moscow and said they were willing to meet privately with U.S. diplomats. They were in high spirits and apparently in good health.

Board Starts Move To Block Trailer Park

Mount Prospect's formal objection to a proposed rezoning for a mobile home park in the Oasis Drive-In Theater in unincorporated Elk Grove Township began Tuesday with a resolution passed by the village board.

The objection will be filed by Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann with the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

Oscar Brotman, owner of the site, wants to expand the Oasis Mobile Home Park on Elmhurst Road near Higgins Road, onto his neighboring drive-in theater property. He has estimated that the expansion will provide space for 232 additional trailers.

Mount Prospect is objecting because village officials believe that expansion of the mobile home park would create problems for the village's fire department, which is under contract to service the area.

Zimmermann said the fire department already has to bring its own water to the park when fighting a fire. The department, he said, feels fire hydrants are needed, but under Brotman's plans only fire stations with extinguishers installed every 200 feet will be provided.

New Recreation Center Schedule

A new schedule has been announced for the Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple, in Mount Prospect. The Center gym will be open, starting Oct. 9, on Monday; Wednesday, Friday and Saturday from 8 to 10 p.m. and on Sunday from 1 to 7 p.m. The schedule in the gym during these days is as follows: 3:30 to 6 p.m. for grades one through six; 6 to 8:30 p.m. for grades seven through 10 and 8:30 to 10 p.m. for adults.

To offset gym expenses and provide for better control of facilities, gym fees will be charged for the first time. A yearly pass for park district residents will be $5; for nonresidents, $10. The daily fee for residents is 50 cents and $1 for nonresidents.

Passes go on sale Oct. 9 during open gym hours. At that time, a gym schedule for recreation time during Tuesday and Thursday will also be posted.

Equipment Stolen From High School

Some $620 worth of tools and lighting equipment were reported stolen from Prospect High School this week.

Mount Prospect police said that it is believed the theft took place during the summer while school was closed. The tools were delivered and stored at the school Aug. 18. The two spotlights and stands were being kept in the art room.

Band Classes To Start Here

The Mount Prospect Music Boosters, a voluntary parents group from School Dist. 57, will begin classes next week for beginning band students.

The boosters have registered approximately 140 fifth and sixth grade students for the program. "This group will be broken down into small groups of five to eight students for lessons in the various schools," Dave Metzler, director of the program said. The jazz band, consisting of about 35 students, will also begin classes next week.

The $8 fee paid by each student includes one lesson and one band rehearsal. Band rehearsals are not scheduled to start until January, however.

Metzler said he is very happy about the large turnout for the new program. "We had more kids starting on a fee basis this year than last year on a free basis," Metzler said. The school board voted to cut the number of band teachers from two to one last year after a tax hike referendum was defeated.

Police Seek Man Who Offered Girl A Ride

Mount Prospect police are looking for a man in a dark blue car who allegedly tried to get a 16-year-old girl to take a ride with him Monday. The girl was on her way home from Prospect High School when the incident occurred.

According to the description of the man given by the girl, the man, who used lewd language, is a white male about 30 with short dark brown hair. He was wearing a sport shirt.

The girl told police she was walking near Oak Avenue and Gregory Street when he first asked her to get in the car. She said she ignored him and he went around the block. However, he stopped her again, she said, at Oak Avenue and Isabella Street.

The girl then ran to a friend's house. Police said the girl was unable to give them a license plate number because the plates were bent.

Slate Review Of School Repair Issue

by TOM WELLMAN.

Repair work — or the lack of it — on the storm ravaged Forest View High School in southern Arlington Heights will receive a special administrative review this week.

That decision came from the High School Dist. 214 board Monday night, after about 40 parents of Forest View students loudly assailed the board and the district's administration for failing to get the damage repaired as soon as possible. Under the shadow of frequently shouted interruptions and occasional booing from the audience, the board agreed to resume the discussion at a meeting held at 8 p.m. Monday.

THE AUDIENCE'S anger was directed towards the condition of the gymnasium and adjacent areas. On July 14, tornado-like winds ripped off a portion of the roof and caused considerable rain damage to the gymnasium floor.

The group of parents, who had as their spokesman Sig Haaland of the Forest View Boosters Club, charged the uncompleted repair work creates a "health hazard" for students in the high school.

The members of the group asked repeatedly about the district's inability to complete construction work. Assistant Supt. Robert Weber described the procedures involved in seeking insurance backing for repairs and explained that at least 25 days need to be spent in seeking and considering bids under the law.

"In spite of all these delays, somebody's screwed up," someone shouted from the audience.

Contracts for the roofing repair — which must precede repair of the gym floor — have been let, but Lawrence Jenness, Forest View principal, reported the roofing contractor, Town and Country Plumbing of Chicago, had "not performed satisfactorily."

He added that, when a double crew had been requested over the weekend, only half of the normal crew showed up for work.

THE LOCKER ROOMS in the high school are unusable, Jenness said, but use of the freshman locker room is difficult — especially since the roofer ripped off the remaining roofing, allowing water to pour in when it rains, said Jenness.

Board chairman Ray Erickson, after hearing the audience members assail the board and administration for inaction on the repair work, said the board would "ask the administration to formulate a realistic schedule" for repair work. And Supt. Edward Gilbert said that, "as of tonight," the expectation was for the roof to be completed by Jan. 1, 1973.

Jenness said before the meeting that the administration is already doing some sports rescheduling because home basketball games scheduled for December cannot be played in the gym.

Recommend Original School Boundary Changes

Section 1 Thursday, September 28, 1972 THE HERALD

The special committee on attendance boundaries for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 has finished its work. At a meeting Tuesday night, the committee completed discussion and made a recommendation on the last problem area, the Cook School attendance boundary in Elk Grove Village. The committee held to its original recommendation for the boundary change, but gave the school administration and board the responsibility for determining when the change would be made.

The committee called for the Cook attendance area to be split by a line down the center of the lake northwest of the school and continuing south on Wellington Avenue. Students living west of the line would be bused to Salt Creek School, students living east of the line would remain at Cook. The original recommendation called for this change to be implemented for the school year starting September, 1973.

The committee modified the original recommendation by stating that the change would not take effect until, "a review is made in June, 1973 and/or June, 1974 by the administration and a potential overcrowding is found to exist. All or a portion of the recommended boundary change should be implemented."

FRED SCHUSTER, a resident of the Elk Grove Estates subdivision, one of the areas from which children would be bused to Salt Creek under the recommendation, said he was satisfied with the committee's action.

"They are recommending that when the school becomes overcrowded, the boundaries should be changed. That's reasonable," said Schuster.

Schuster was the spokesman for Elk Grove Estate area parents, who were strongly opposed to the boundary change. He had previously presented a report to the committee which disagreed with their expectations for student population at Cook. The Schuster report forced the committee to state there were too many variables expected in construction and population for a definite date to be set to implement the boundary change.

After making the recommendation for Cook School, the committee gave final approval to the wording and content of its report to the school board.

The report will be submitted to the board on Oct. 2, the next regularly scheduled board meeting.

From The Library

No one can say the Mount Prospect library is as much as a week behind the times. If a new book worth reading has been published, the Mount Prospect library will have it. Such is the case with several new books I am going to mention this week.

The correlation between poor health and school failure is examined in the new book "Disadvantaged Children: Health, Nutrition, and School Failure." The author explains this problem as a chain reaction difficult, but possible, to prevent.

Earl C. Ravenal is the editor of a collection of writings on the political and military aspects of our relations with Asia, as analyzed by former members of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, from their eras in office. In his book "Peace with China? U.S. Decisions for Asia," Ravenal describes the character and logic of Nixon's new doctrine. Ravenal's experience as director of the Asian division in the Office of the Secretary of Defense — working under Secre-tares McNamara, Clifford and Laird — should qualify him to discuss and present opinions on foreign policy.

SINCE NEARLY everyone drives a car, and wants it insured the cheapest and most effective way, the book "No-Fault: What You Can Save, Gain and Lose with the New Auto Insurance" no doubt will become very popular.

Not a proponent of no-fault, the author gives favorable alternatives to the plan and explains what he feels is valuable under the old system.

The following are some other new books recently acquired at the Mount Prospect library: "I Have Changed" by Jesse Owens; "Pippa's Challenge" by Joy Adamson; "Acupuncture," "The Best of Bicycling!" and "Peking," a new book by the travel expert Eugene Fodor.

Beginning Guitar Class Is Offered

A beginning guitar class, for boys and girls 8 through 14, has been added to the fall schedule of programs at the Mount Prospect Park District.

The class will be held at 7 p.m. on Mondays, beginning Oct. 2 for 12 weeks. The fee, including lessons and an instruction book, is $14. Those without a guitar of their own may make arrangements for rental by calling the park district office at CL 5-5390. Interested persons may register for the new program any time up until the class begins.

Arlington Youth Gets One Year Probation

An Arlington Heights youth was placed on a year's probation Friday after he was found guilty in Mount Prospect court of possession of marijuana.

Michael F. Moser, 19, of 810 N. Dunton St., was arrested last summer after he and a friend were discovered playing miniature golf about midnight at a closed course in Mount Prospect.

According to police, a pipe with marijuana residue and a small plastic bag of marijuana were found in a car Moser was driving. The friend was not charged.

A charge of possession of a controlled substance against Moser was dropped. This charge originated from the same incident.

Nov. 2 Hearing Date For Carbona Trial

More pretrial motions were heard yesterday in the Carbona homicide case. Judge Arthur L. Dunne set Nov. 2 as the next hearing date.

A long series of pretrial motions have taken several months and delayed the start of the trial of Ruth Carbona, 1206 Euclid Ave., Mount Prospect, who has been indicted by a Cook County Grand Jury in connection with the Dec. 22, 1971 shooting death of her husband, Lt. Joseph Carbona of the Cook County Sheriff's Police.

In the interim, Mrs. Carbona remains free on bail.

Youth Hurt In Bike Accident

A 14-year-old Mount Prospect youth suffered serious lacerations when he struck a saw with his shoulder and neck while riding his bike Thursday.

Larry Cox, of 1505 W. Golf Rd., was treated at Northwest Community Hospital after the 8:30 a.m. accident. Cox was riding his bike in the Golf Shopping Plaza parking lot, Golf and Busse roads, when he struck the saw, which was protruding from a parked truck.

Fails To Appear; Warrant Issued

Richard Strauss, 28, of 1723 Wilshire, Arlington Heights, failed to show up Friday in Mount Prospect court to answer theft charges. The judge declared his $5,000 bond forfeited and issued a warrant for his arrest.

Strauss is accused of stealing five chairs Aug. 23 from the Matz Funeral Home, 410 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect. Strauss was caught by Clarence C. Matz and his wife, the owners, while he was allegedly removing the chairs.

According to police, Strauss fled in a truck but was stopped by Des Plaines police after a radio message was sent out. Strauss was later identified by Mrs. Matz as the thief, police said.

Nov. 3 has been set as Strauss' new court date.

60 To 80 Per Cent Cuts

New Revenue Plan Hits Suburbs Hard

by KURT BAER

Northwest suburbs appear to be in for drastic reductions in federal revenue sharing if a compromise House-Senate program is adopted by both houses of Congress.

The compromise measure would result in cuts of 60 to 80 per cent for most suburbs compared with an earlier House-passed measure.

Arlington Heights would be particularly hard hit by the recommended compromise. Under the revenue-sharing bill passed by the House, Arlington Heights could expect to receive $1,007,983 this year. The compromise program would cut the allocation to $248,211, according to figures released yesterday by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

Other Chicago suburbs would experience similar percentage reductions. The state's largest cities, however, notably the City of Chicago, would receive more money under the compromise provision.

COMPARISONS between the House and compromise versions for other Northwest suburbs are: Buffalo Grove

$186,566 (House) to $22,490 (compromise); Des Plaines $909,711 to $327,599; Elk Grove $417,241 to $137,383; Hoffman Estates $379,929 to $73,174; Mount Prospect $529,635 to $144,552; Palatine $416,556 to $89,835; Rolling Meadows $317,101 to $72,411; Schaumburg $314,584 to $61,630; and Wheeling $148,760 to $48,522.

The compromise measure was worked out after a Senate bill, strongly backed by rural interests, was approved, taking money away from affluent suburbs and distributing it to large cities and rural areas.

Chicago's allocation would go from $58,899,411 under the House version to $69,335,235 under the compromise version.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. John Woods called the compromise measure "disappointing indeed." He said if the compromise is ratified by the House and Senate it "would not be very meaningful to Arlington Heights or any of the other suburbs."

Arlington Heights trustees had discussed using revenue sharing money for a number of major capital improvements including flood control, landfill site acquisition and transportation improvements.

"While we fully recognize Chicago's needs for funds, this doesn't make our needs any less acute," Woods said.

Woods said he planned to send what he called "a salvo of telegrams" to area Senators and Representatives urging them to reject the compromise. He said he hoped and would urge other suburban mayors to take similar action.

SCHAUMBURG MAYOR Robert Atcher also criticized the compromise proposal saying it discriminated against the suburbs.

"I'm sorry the compromise discriminates against suburban municipalities," giving more for big cities and little rural towns. "If you compare the tax picture... the towns close in near Chicago have tremendous problems by comparison. To skip over communities with the problems is unfair," Atcher said.

A spokesman in Percy's office said the smaller compromise figures are the result of the formula used to distribute money within each state. This formula takes into account what the spokesman called each town's "taxing effort" and the relative income of its population.

Towns with higher per-capita incomes get less money than those with lower such figures. "This will hurt the suburbs," the spokesman said.

There is a provision in the compromise measure, however, that would allow state legislatures to alter the revenue sharing formula by eliminating the per-capita income factor.

If a state chooses to alter the formula, it must apply the revised program to all municipalities in the state for the full five year duration of the revenue-sharing program, the spokesman said.

THE PERCY spokesman outlined three ways in which the compromise formula could be altered by state legislative action.

One alternate formula is based on multiplying the community's general tax effort times its population. A second means is multiplying population times the per-

Fender 'Left Cuts,' Ex-Student Says

Six witnesses for the state and six witnesses for the defense concluded testimony yesterday in the battery trial of John D. Fender, former teacher at Miner Junior High, Arlington Heights.

Fender, who was recently fired by the School Dist. 25 board of education, is accused of striking Linda Calvert, a student, several times about the face and the head.

On the stand, Miss Calvert testified that Fender hit her several times, leaving cuts on the inside of her mouth and blurry vision in her right eye. She said the action was prompted when she asked the girl sitting next to her for a pencil.

"He (Fender) came over to my desk, slammed my head down on the desk, picked my head up then started to slap me, about four or five times. Then he talked to me about how I was always talking. Then he put his hand in a fist and hit me one time, which caught me under the right eye," Miss Calvert testified. "Everything went black after that, but he kept slapping me and the inside of my mouth was cut on my braces."

FENDER testified that he had never hit anyone with a closed fist or back-handed anyone in his life. He said that he did, however, hit Linda as a disciplinary measure after several other methods of discipline did not work.

"I walked over to Linda's desk after I observed her talking after telling her not to and she laid her head down in her arms. I hit her twice, with an open hand. I talked to her, then hit her twice more," Fender testified.

While Linda testified that Fender hit her 10 to 13 times, four of her female classmates testified that they observed Fender hitting her seven to 10 times. Two of the girls also said that they didn't like Fender.

"I used to like him, but I dislike him now because I don't think it's right for teachers to strike students," said Adele

Booth, one of Miss Calvert's classmates.

Witnesses for the defense included three male classmates of Miss Calvert, who testified that Fender had struck her five or six times.

THE INCIDENT occurred on June 1, the day after a substitute teacher had left a bad report for Fender on the discipline of his class, which included the names of seven students who were particularly disruptive. The list included Miss Calvert's name.

Fender said he chastised the class for misbehaving in front of the substitute and singled out the seven students whose names appeared on the substitute's list to tell them if they misbehaved during the rest of the year they would be in serious trouble.

"In my 14 years of teaching, a substitute teacher had never left a note telling me of a discipline problem," said Fender who said his classes were "better behaved than most classes... I'm known as a disciplinarian."

Fender also said that Miss Calvert was a class leader and had been singled out by him as the worst girl in the class several times during the year.

"She spent most of her time talking, which kept other students from doing their work," said Fender. "I talked to her about her conduct several times during the year and moved her seat several times."

FENDER said he administered corporal punishment only after the other methods of discipline had not worked. Corporal discipline (striking students) is allowed in Dist. 25.

Though Miss Calvert was never asked if her seat had been moved, she testified that before the day she was struck, she could not recall Fender verbally disciplining her.

Fender, a language arts teacher at Miner for 10 years, was the chief negotiator for the Arlington Teachers Association during recent contract talks with the board of education and is currently serving as the president of the ATA.

LWV To Force Township-Vote Issue

Representatives of area League of Women Voters chapters are expected to announce court action this morning against Palatine and Northfield townships to force officials to place a proposed referendum to abolish township government on the Nov. 7 ballot.

An LWV press conference is scheduled for 11:15 a.m. today at the Chicago Civic Center, when the group's attorney, Richard J. Troy, says a court order will be requested to force township officials to allow the issue.

The Palatine Township Board of Auditors Monday unanimously refused to put the issue to a vote in the November election. Palatine officials were the first of the four townships involved in the LWV drive to make a final decision.

In August, the Palatine LWV chapter presented more than 2,000 signatures on petitions to force the auditors to put the referendum on the ballot. Other chapters in Maine, Niles and Northfield townships have taken the same action.

ATTORNEYS for all four townships prepared opinions about the legality of the issue, and their conclusions were similar, attorney Roger Bjorvik told the Palatine board Monday.

"The attorneys are unanimous in the opinion that the primary block (to the referendum) is the transitional process," Bjorvik said.

For the first time in Illinois, the 1970 revision of the state constitution allows voters to abolish township government. But another section of the constitution also stipulates that "The General Assembly shall provide by law for the transfer of assets, powers and functions, and for the payments of outstanding debts" in connection with such a change in local government units.

Whether such a law must be passed before or after the referendum is allowed is the central issue in the township-LWV dispute.

The law that would remedy the argument, H.B. 2508, is in committee in the Legislature awaiting a third reading. It states that functions of dissolved townships would be transferred to the county. But until the bill is approved, township attorneys say the provision allowing township governments to be dissolved is unconstitutional.

TROY, CALLS the boards' arguments a "smoke screen."

"They're very much afraid that there'll be chaos if the referendum passes," Troy said. But the LWV doesn't think that is a good enough argument to keep the issue off the ballot.

"We're very confident that the legislators will do their duty and pass the necessary legislation if the referendums pass," Troy said. The townships can't legally keep the referendum off the ballot, since the required numbers of voters in each township have demanded it, Troy said. So today the LWV begins court action to force the issue that has been rejected in Palatine and is about to be refused in Northfield.

Troy said additional petitions for mandamus may be entered next week against Maine and Niles townships if those officials choose to follow the Palatine precedent.

Palatine Township officials will have five days to respond to the court order, and proceedings will probably begin sometime next week.

BJORVIK, contacted by The Herald late yesterday, said he and township officials were not informed of the impending LWV action.

Since there appears to be a serious question in the mind of both parties about the issue, the courts should settle the matter, Bjorvik said. But with the election date less than five weeks away, time is short for extensive judicial processes.

Urge Original Boundaries

The special committee on attendance boundaries for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 has finished its work.

At a meeting Tuesday night, the committee completed discussion and made a recommendation on the last problem area, the Cook School attendance boundary in Elk Grove Village. The committee held to its original recommendation for the boundary change, but gave the school administration and board the responsibility for determining when the change would be made.

The committee called for the Cook attendance area to be split by a line down the center of the lake northwest of the school and continuing south on Wellington Avenue. Students living west of the line would be bused to Salt Creek School, students living east of the line would remain at Cook. The original recommendation called for this change to be implemented for the school year starting September, 1973.

The Nation

Brimming with confidence that has him musing about the size of his potential mandate, President Nixon took his reelection campaign from New York to California. He spoke at $1,000-a-plate dinners in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

After weeks of hard campaigning on the road, Sen. George S. McGovern will take his case to the people through prime-time television, starting with nationwide broadcast of a half-hour biography Sunday night.

The government's index of leading economic indicators jumped sharply in August after two sluggish months, proving that the economic recovery is not about to run out of steam as some critics charged, the Commerce Department said.

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger flew back to the U.S. to report to President Nixon after completing two days of secret meetings with North Vietnamese delegates to the Vietnam peace talks.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, stumping in a cornfield near Galesburg, told farmers the Nixon administration has dramatically expanded farm markets but "won't be happy" until farmers' incomes match average nonfarm incomes.

The Senate Armed Services Committee has decided to investigate charges that Navy fliers — as well as Air Force pilots commanded by Lt. Gen. John D. Lavelle — bombed North Vietnam in violation of President Nixon's restrictions.

The State

Yellow tickets blossomed like dandelions on Chicago's streets as the men in blue turned motorists purple with uncommonly strict enforcement of traffic laws. The "ticket blitz" was a campaign by policemen to persuade Supt. James B. Conlisk to negotiate with police organizations on bargaining demands.

More than 130 motorists were jailed for traffic infractions.

Former Black Panther Verline Brewer testified that a black policeman threatened to "blow her head off" during a 1969 police raid in which two Panther leaders were killed.

The World

Three American war prisoners released by North Vietnam more than a week ago arrived in Moscow and said they were willing to meet privately with U.S. diplomats. They were in high spirits and apparently in good health.

Elk Grove Estates subdivision, one of the areas from which children would be bused to Salt Creek under the recommendation, said he was satisfied with the committee's action.

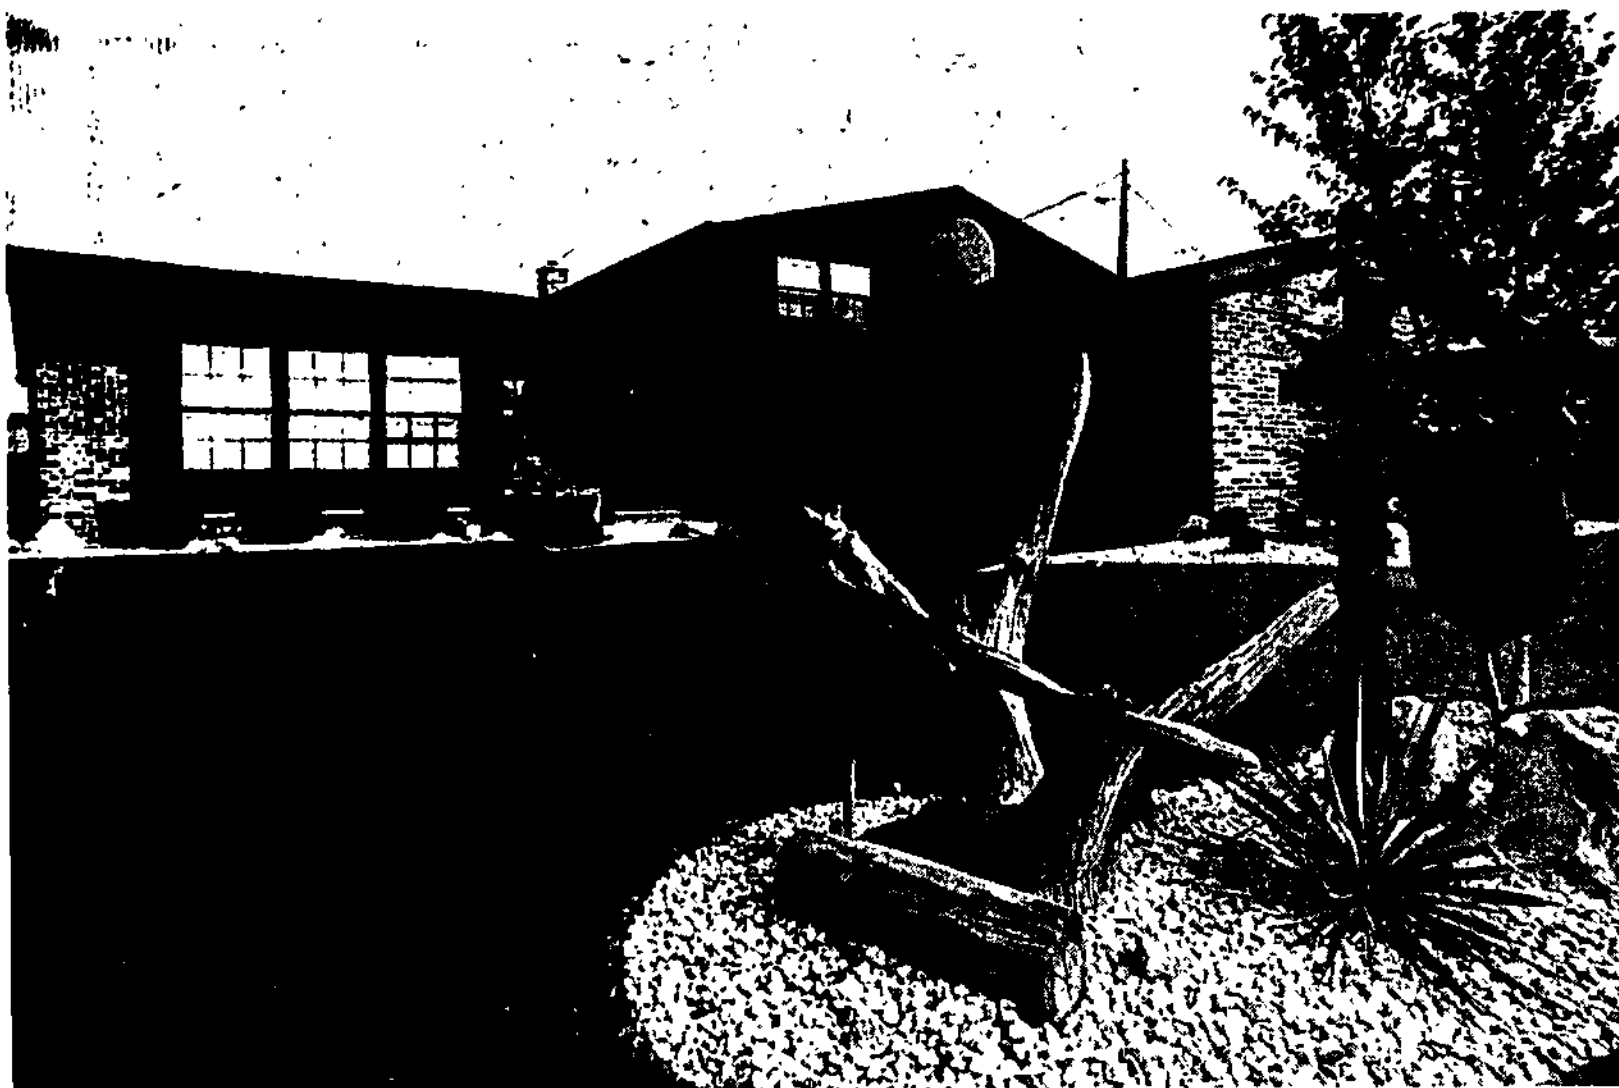

"They are recommending that when the school becomes overcrowded, the boundaries should be changed. That's reasonable," said Schuster.

Schuster was the spokesman for Elk Grove Estate area parents, who were strongly opposed to the boundary change. He had previously presented a report to the committee which disagreed with their expectations for student population at Cook. The Schuster report forced the committee to state there were too many variables expected in construction and population for a definite date to be set to implement the boundary change.

After making the recommendation for Cook School, the committee gave final approval to the wording and content of its report to the school board.

The report will be submitted to the board on Oct. 2, the next regularly scheduled board meeting.

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL landscaping job in the 781-home Barkley Square subdivision in Arlington Heights is the home of the Al Eichens, 206 N. Walnut, according to judges, Don Schmitt of Schmitt's Nursery in Prospect Heights, and James Vesely, managing editor of Paddock Publications.

Each lot was judged on the color and texture of the lawn and the landscaping visible to the front of the home. Paul Warkentin's home, 2537 Walnut Ct. won the second place plaque and Thomas Kay's home, 119 E. Barkley Dr. was the third place winner. Honorable mentions in the 4th annual lawn and landscape contest went to Elliot Bernstein, Leo Cwiak, Glenn Crisler, John Omori, Allen Bierlein, Joseph Boyko, Mario Bartolotti, John Fletcher, Patrick Fiorito, Alf Dahl and the cul-de-sac on Walnut Court.

Review Of School Repair Scheduled

by TOM WELLMAN.

Repair work — or the lack of it — on the storm ravaged Forest View High School in southern Arlington Heights will receive a special administrative review this week.

That decision came from the High School Dist. 214 board Monday night, after about 40 parents of Forest View students loudly assailed the board and the district's administration for failing to get the damage repaired as soon as possible.

Under the shadow of frequently shouted interruptions and occasional booing from the audience, the board agreed to resume the discussion at a meeting held at 8 p.m. Monday.

THE AUDIENCE'S anger was directed towards the condition of the gymnasium and adjacent areas. On July 14, tornado-like winds ripped off a portion of the roof and caused considerable rain damage to the gymnasium floor.

The group of parents, who had as their spokesman Sig Haaland of the Forest View Boosters Club, charged the uncompleted repair work creates a "health hazard" for students in the high school.

The members of the group asked repeatedly about the district's inability to complete construction work. Assistant Supt. Robert Weber described the procedures involved in seeking insurance backing for repairs and explained that at least 25 days need to be spent in seeking and considering bids under the law.

"In spite of all these delays, somebody's screwed up," someone shouted from the audience.

Contracts for the roofing repair — which must precede repair of the gym floor — have been let, but Lawrence Jenness, Forest View principal, reported the roofing contractor, Town and Country Plumbing of Chicago, had "not performed satisfactorily."

He added that, when a double crew had been requested over the weekend, only half of the normal crew showed up for work.

THE LOCKER ROOMS in the high school are unusable, Jenness said, but use of the freshmen locker room is difficult — especially since the roofer ripped off the remaining roofing, allowing water to pour in when it rains, said Jenness.

Board chairman Ray Erickson, after hearing the audience members assail the board and administration for inaction on the repair work, said the board would "ask the administration to formulate a realistic schedule" for repair work. And Supt. Edward Gilbert said that, "as of tonight," the expectation was for the roof to be completed by Jan. 1, 1973.

Jenness said before the meeting that the administration is already doing some sports rescheduling because home basketball games scheduled for December cannot be played in the gym.

Pilfering Can Drain Liquor Dealers

by DAVID MAJESMAN

Perhaps the most costly item for liquor dealers is not rent or employee wages, but pilfering — shoplifting, theft by employees and merchandise taken by delivery and repair servicemen.

Pilferage was one topic discussed this week in workshops at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel sponsored by the Illinois Liquor Stores Association. The large turnout for the pilferage workshop indicates this is a major problem on the minds of liquor dealers.

George Berry, owner of four liquor stores in Quincy, told the workshop the amount of pilferage can mean the difference between profit and loss. He cited one liquor dealer who was forced out of business in two years because of customer and employee pilferage.

The actual amount of money lost is an elusive figure, however, Berry said weekly and monthly sales, specials and closeouts make it almost impossible to keep accurate inventory records. An elaborate inventory system could cost more than pilferage, he said.

Shoplifters are devious. Their techniques vary, keeping retailers on their toes. A group of people may come into a store and scatter, making it difficult for employees to watch all of them. Others will buy an item, then "browse" around the store, picking up other items as they go.

THEN THERE WAS the man and woman who came into one of Berry's stores and wandered into the seldom-watched food section. An employee detected sardines on their breath when they returned, and he later found three empty tins. The man was told to pay up, and he not only paid for the three empty tins, but for another half dozen in his pockets.

The dealers disagreed as to the best method of thwarting shoplifters. Some called monitoring devices "a joke, a fake." Others admitted many closed-circuit cameras are dummies, but insisted that the psychological effect is what counts.

Keeping the least tempting items near the door, small items behind the counter and employees on the floor were other suggestions. If shoplifters are caught, they should be prosecuted, not let go, others said.

All agreed that shoplifting cannot be eliminated. It can only be slowed by taking many careful measures, some of them costly.

Still, shoplifting is not the greatest pilferage threat in liquor stores. More liquor can be lost through the back door than the front, one dealer said.

"In general, store personnel and representatives are honest, but the fact still exists that pilferage has and will continue to exist within your store," Eddy Phillips, a suburban liquor dealer, told the workshop.

BERRY SAID it isn't unusual to find empty bottles in warehouses. He said an average of two employees are arrested annually for stealing, or for failure to ring up the proper amount on the cash register, then pocketing the difference. And delivery men have been known to tote off liquor as well as deliver it, he said.

There may even be collusion between the warehouse man and the clerk checking in the delivery, Berry said. He said he discovered one example of this only because another employee had more liquor in his home than he did.

And there are honest mistakes as well as dishonest ones, Berry said. He estimated that .75 per cent of all sales are lost through mistakes at the cash register.

Phillips suggested a system of controls to stop employee pilferage. These included rotating employees who check in deliveries, keeping back doors locked, lighted and wired with an alarm and making it profitable for employees to be honest.

Consultant Presents Plans For Proposed Cultural Center

If every man, woman and child in Arlington Heights contributed about $3, a cultural center could be built to the scale envisioned by a theater consultant who presented a plan to the cultural commission last night.

The two-phased plan includes a 530-seat theater in phase one and a 1,846-seat concert hall as phase two. The total cost of the project was estimated by Theater Consultant George C. Izenour at $1,982,000.

The entire building would have one stage area. The concert hall phase would be accomplished by removing the back wall and adding a riser system to the structure.

Izenour was commissioned to design the interior of the center in April, and plans to have his report completed in six to eight weeks. The finalized report will include refined cost figures and a written argument to support his scheme. The finished study will cost the village $6,000 plus expenses.

"THIS CENTER IS a different kind of animal than I've ever designed before," said Izenour who has designed 120 theaters and concert hall-type buildings. "With a community this size more diversity is needed so that different groups can be doing different things simultaneously."

To accomplish this diversity, Izenour has provided for sound-proofing between the stage and the rehearsal room which flanks it on one side, and the scene shop which flanks the stage on the other side. A massive room divider which would partition off the 530-seat theater would also be soundproof so that a multi-purpose room would be created in the rear of the building.

When the entire 1,846-seat concert hall is in use, Izenour estimated it would be 128 feet from the stage to the last row of seats.

The air-conditioned center would also provide eight rest rooms, two checking rooms, two box offices an orchestra pit and storage space. A hallway, completely surrounding the theater would have massive walls which could be used for visual art, Izenour said.

THE SEATING WOULD be continental-style which would provide access from the halls only, and would eliminate aisles in the theater.

"The riser system would also have fully upholstered theater seating, different only in that they would fold up," Izenour said.

Members of the cultural commission said they were favorably impressed with Izenour's work, and said it incorporated all the needs of the community.

The scheme is a far cry from the $4-5 million Taj Mahal-like structure under consideration by the commission in 1970. The commission has been trying to design a center since 1969.

The Village Theater, Inc., has been waiting since 1962 for a theater in Arlington Heights and has recently asked the park district to include $350,000 in their up-coming referendum to build a small theater on park district property.

IN A LETTER TO Park Board Pres. Charles Cronin Tuesday, commission Chm. Sidney Rosenfeld asked that the theater project not be included in the referendum.

"Basic to a cultural center would be a theater and auditorium facilities and we feel the building of another theater would obviate the need of a cultural center," Rosenfeld said. "It is also our feeling after having rather extensively studied the subject that the construction of a theater should not be financed by the taxpayers, and any building program we commence will be mainly financed by other sources of revenue."

After Izenour submits his final report, the commission is expected to begin planning means of financing the center.

Revenue Sharing To Be Discussed

Ten discussion topics, including retention basins and revenue sharing, are on the agenda for a proposed meeting between the Arlington Heights Park District and the village board.

Although no date has been set for the meeting, park board officials hope it can be held during October as some of the matters should be resolved before the park district holds a referendum, now planned for the last week of November.

The discussion topics will be:

—The effect of building a small theater on park district property at the proposed village cultural center.

—THE DEVELOPMENT and maintenance of the McDonald Creek flood plain.

—The boundaries of the village and the park district, which have been kept coterminous. Recent annexations by the village however, have resulted in the boundaries being considerably different;

—Revenue sharing by the village, which will receive more than $1 million over the next five years in federal tax money;

—The status of detention and retention basins on park land;

—The role of the police department in policing the parks;

—The park district, which now pays about $3,000 annually in utility tax, will probably ask for a reduction or exemption from this tax;

—Sidewalk and street paving near parks;

—The sanitary landfill in northern Arlington Heights and whether or not the land is still intended as a recreation area when filled;

—The village policy on the use of money given to it by land developers in lieu of land dedication.

The last joint village board-park district meeting was held over a year and a half ago.

Country Fair At Race Track?

Arlington Park Race Track officials are scheduled to come before the Arlington Heights Plan Commission next month to discuss their plans for a country fair at the track in the fall of 1973.

Track officials have requested a special-use permit to hold the fair sometime after the close of the 1973 racing season.

Tom Rivera, public relations director for Chicago Thoroughbred Enterprises, which owns and operates Arlington Park, said yesterday he was not prepared to comment on the details of the fair.

Dan Hyland, nationally ranked contract bridge player from Arlington Heights, will be instructing the beginners bridge classes Monday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at Recreation Park for eight weeks.

An afternoon class in beginning bridge will also be held for eight Mondays from 2:30 to 4 p.m. at Recreation Park. Mrs. Alice Gonzales of Elk Grove Village will be the instructor.

Both bridge classes will cost $8.

MSD Candidate Meets Residents

Joanne Alter, Democratic candidate for trustee of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, was introduced to residents of Arlington Heights this week at a coffee hosted by State Rep. Eugenia Chapman at her Arlington Heights home.

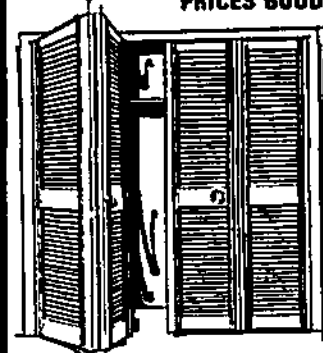

"I intend to be the voice on the board for environmental needs, and the person through whom a citizen can get some action if his basement is flooded or if he opposes a proposal of the sanitary district," said Mrs. Alter.

As a major part of her campaign, Mrs. Alter is scheduling meetings throughout Cook County to explain her stand on the issues confronting the Metropolitan Sanitary District, especially its importance in flood control.

Behrel Predicts 'Great Things' In City's Future

Mayor Herbert Behrel reminisced yesterday about his 24 political years in Des Plaines and predicted "great things in the future for the city."

Speaking to about 18 persons at a League of Women Voters meeting in city hall, Behrel, who has prompted recent speculation about his desire for a fifth term as mayor, said "this is not a campaign speech. I'll make no comments about political aspirations."

The mayor said "things are beginning to look like they're developing again and listed current city projects during the 40-minute speech:

—Redevelopment. "It's a big, big project. It doesn't show sometimes." A sluggish real estate market delayed "putting the first shovel in the ground. The trend has reversed itself."

—PARKING. The city will resurface downtown lots this fall. Behrel is considering plans for local merchants to finance patron parking on a non-meter monitored basis. Residents parking in downtown lots would receive stamped parking tickets from stores where they shop. The city would total each store's tickets monthly and bill the merchant for the patron's parking.

—Revenue sharing. "I'm not angry, but a little bit unhappy with the current idea." The proposal will cut Des Plaines' share of the federal program from $909,000 to between $350,000 and $400,000. "I'm glad to get the $400,000. It's better than nothing."

—City Hall. "I, as mayor, don't want to have to go to the people and ask for general obligation bonds to pay for a city hall, which we need, and then put it on the tax bills. There are other ways to do it. We'll get the job done."

Behrel said, "It takes two things to continue city development — money and city council cooperation. You're always short, but the City of Des Plaines has never had to sell tax anticipation warrants."

FEDERAL REVENUE funds may lead to formation of a special city council committee to plan expenditures, he said. The program requires publication of a proposed expense program by January of 1973. The money could be used for flood control or purchase of the United Motor Coach bus line, Behrel said.

Behrel again plugged for construction of the proposed Metropolitan Sanitary District sewage plant. "We need that plant so bad." Sewage from neighboring towns, including Mount Prospect and Elk Grove Village, will be eliminated from

Learn To Swim Begins

The Des Plaines Park District's fall learn to swim classes will start at 9 a.m. this Saturday at the Maine West High School indoor pools. The eight-week classes will be held at 9 a.m., 10 a.m., and 11 a.m. and instruction will be offered for all levels of ability. For further information on registration contact the park district office, 748 Pearson St. or call 296-6106.

Des Plaines sewers "and provide some relief" when the plant is built, he said.

Des Plaines "had all the growing pains you are hearing about in other towns" in the 1950s the mayor said. The population increased 26,000 in ten years and the city police force grew from 14 to 90 current employees. "This is growth," Behrel said.

The mayor, who was elected 3rd ward alderman in 1948 with no opposition, said he "was drafted to run" for part-time, $2,000 a year head of the city government in 1957. "The first thing that happened to me, July 12 and 13, was the largest flood we have ever had in the city. Cumberland Terrace was a lake, two miles square. Water, all water."

Driver Hurt As Train Hits Auto

A west suburban Westchester man was seriously injured yesterday when the auto he was driving was struck by a Soo Line freight train at Touhy Avenue in Des Plaines.

William S. Peters, 60, of 10357 Wight St., Westchester, was reported in serious condition in the intensive care unit of Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge with a back injury, broken ribs and possible internal injuries, according to a hospital spokesman.

Police said Peters' car was hit broadside by the south-bound train at 8:33 a.m. after Peters allegedly tried to cross the tracks while the traffic light was red. Police said the flashing red warning lights at the crossing were also operating when Peters tried to cross the tracks.

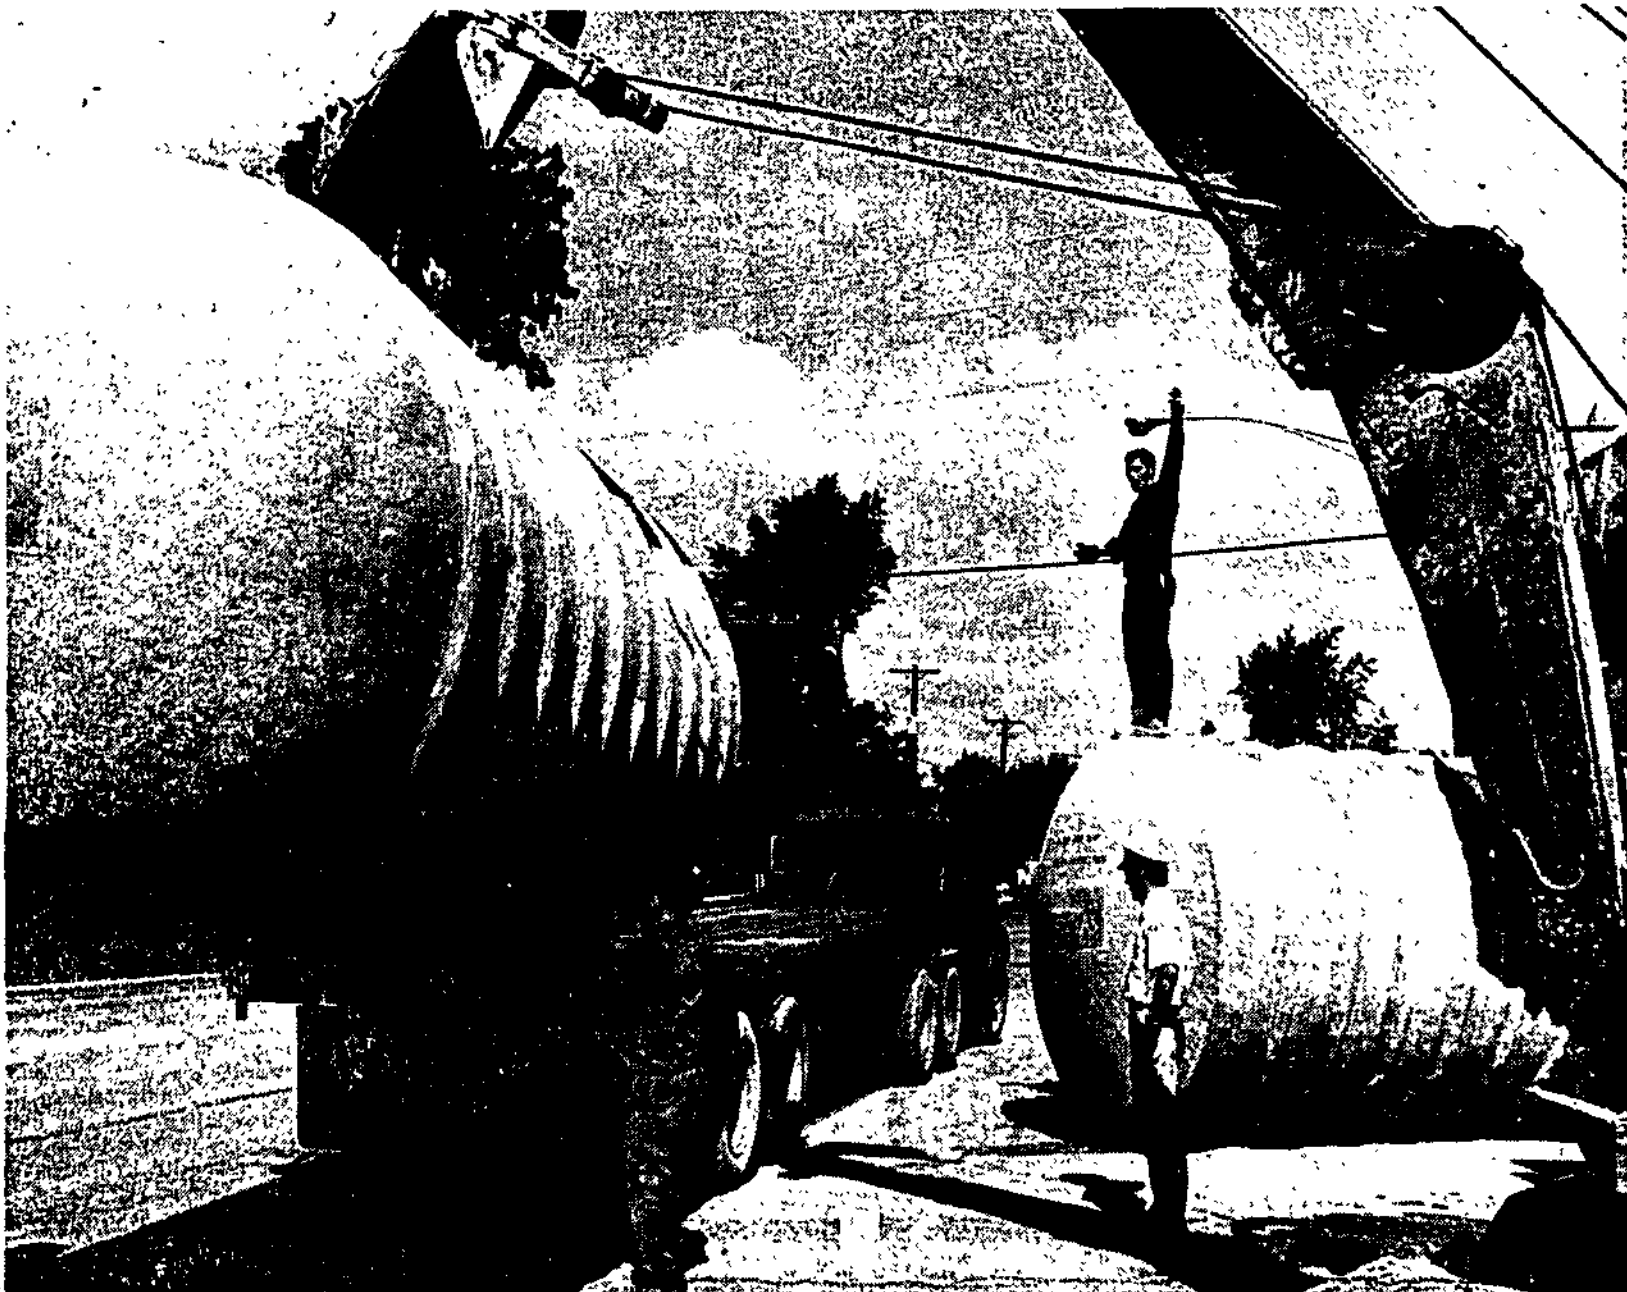

According to reports, Peters was driving southbound on Mannheim Road and was trying to turn left to go eastbound on Touhy Avenue when his auto was hit. Police said the train was traveling 20 miles per hour at the time of the accident.

THE CITY OF Des Plaines in the past has been trying to get crossing gates at Touhy Avenue and the Soo Line tracks because of the hazardous conditions that exist there.

City officials say that the Soo Line tracks run parallel with Mannheim Road and motorists often don't see trains coming when they attempt to make a right or left turn off Mannheim road.

The Illinois Commerce Commission (ICC) had the crossing gates removed from the intersection in 1964 because the Soo Line began using only one track. According to the ICC, crossing gates are only required where there are two or more tracks.

Mayor Herbert Behrel said yesterday the city will continue its efforts to get crossing gates at Touhy Avenue and Mannheim Road. He said the city will have to petition the ICC then have a public hearing before any decision is made by the agency.

GASOLINE STORAGE TANK was loaded on flat bed truck yesterday after being unearthed from Ross Automotive, 697 River Rd., Des Plaines. Gasoline was found floating underneath two 6,000 gallon storage tanks below the service station bed truck yesterday after being unearthed from Ross Automotive, 697 River Rd., Des Plaines. Gasoline was found floating underneath two 6,000 business solely as a garage. The service station has been the subject of a gas leak controversy for almost a year.

Controversy Widens

'Leaky' Gasoline Tanks Removed

by JACK PENCHOFF

The gasoline tanks are gone but the controversy continues to flow at a downtown service station plagued by underground gasoline leaks.

The two storage tanks at the station, 697 River Rd., were unearthed yesterday by Cities Service Oil Co. (Citgo) after they had been tested last week and determined by company and fire department officials to be leak-free.

What officials found yesterday when the two 6,000-gallon tanks were pulled out was a large amount of gasoline floating on top of the ground water in the holes where the tanks had been.

Heavy gasoline fumes prevailed the area around the service station after the tanks were pulled up, exposing the gasoline and water-soaked ground and gravel underneath.

Des Plaines Fire Department officials, however, continued to deny yesterday that the obviously heavy concentration of gasoline had come from leaks in the tanks. Lt. Richard Arthur, head of the fire prevention bureau, said the gasoline beneath the tanks had been trapped three July 3 after a spill that occurred when the tanks were being filled.

BURTON KOSMEN, 709 River, yesterday renewed his charge that gasoline leaking from the tanks has seeped in the basement of his home, located next door to the station.

He has accused the city of "dragging their feet" on leak problems at the station, which began last year when city officials allowed a damaged and illegally patched tank to be installed there, according to Kosmen.

He disputed Arthur's claim that the gasoline beneath the unearthed tanks was from the July 3 spill and maintained the tanks have been leaking all along.

Arthur said the July 3 spill took place when an undetermined amount of gasoline seeped into the ground after a Citgo truck driver failed to remove the filler hose in time from his pumper truck. A smaller spill also reportedly occurred again last week.

Arthur said the ground water level below the station is deeper than the level beneath surrounding properties. The gasoline, which rides on top of the ground water, was thus trapped when it could not flow uphill and off the service station property, he said.

This is also the reason, Arthur claimed, why none of the gasoline from the station can be seeping into the basement of Kosmen's house next door.

HE SAID A TEST hole dug between the two properties and equipped with a special pump and gasoline separator device, has failed to show any evidence that gasoline is flowing on top of the ground water from the station to Kosmen's property.

Kosmen said the separator is not working and charged that gasoline continues to leak into the sump pump in his basement. He said he has detected gasoline in the sump continuously since last fall when two earlier tanks at the station were dug up and replaced.

The new tanks were removed and replaced this March after Kosmen said he pulled 15 gallons of raw gasoline from he sump hole in his basement.

In July, after complaints from Kosmen, the city hired a private chemical laboratory to test the material in Kos-men's basement. According to the lab report, only methane gas could be found there. It had probably resulted from decomposed vegetation rather than gasoline, the report said.

Those findings were rejected by Kosmen who said the methane had resulted from the decomposition of gasoline, not vegetable matter.

He was backed up by the Citizens for a Better Environment (CBE), a Chicago based group that investigated the leakages and then filed an informal complaint against Citgo and station operator Ron Ross with the Illinois Pollution Control Board.

THE CBE AND KOSMEN are waiting for the results of an investigation by the Illinois attorney general's office. Kosmen said yesterday he will ask the federal state doesn't act.

Ross, who has sued Citgo for his losses while the station has been closed during the tests and tank excavations, yesterday told the Herald that the tanks are out for good.

He will now operate his business solely as a repair garage, Ross said.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Brimming with confidence that has him musing about the size of his potential mandate, President Nixon took his reelection campaign from New York to California. He spoke at $1,000-a-plate dinners in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

After weeks of hard campaigning on the road, Sen. George S. McGovern will take his case to the people through prime-time television, starting with nationwide broadcast of a half-hour biography Sunday night.

The government's index of leading economic indicators jumped sharply in August after two sluggish months, proving that the economic recovery is not about to run out of steam as some critics charged, the Commerce Department said.

Dr. Henry A. Kissinger flew back to the U.S. to report to President Nixon after completing two days of secret meetings with North Vietnamese delegates to the Vietnam peace talks.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, stumbling in a cornfield near Galesburg, told farmers the Nixon administration has dramatically expanded farm markets but "won't be happy" until farmers' incomes match average nonfarm incomes.

The Senate Armed Services Committee has decided to investigate charges that Navy fliers — as well as Air Force pilots commanded by Lt. Gen. John D. LaVelle — bombed North Vietnam in violation of President Nixon's restrictions.

The State

Yellow tickets blossomed like dandelions on Chicago's streets as the men in blue turned motorists purple with uncommonly strict enforcement of traffic laws. The "ticket blitz" was a campaign by policemen to persuade Supt. James B. Conlisk to negotiate with police organizations on bargaining demands.

More than 130 motorists were jailed for traffic infractions.

Former Black Panther Verline Brewer testified that a black policeman threatened to "blow her head off" during a 1969 police raid in which two Panther leaders were killed.

The World

Three American war prisoners released by North Vietnam more than a week ago arrived in Moscow and said they were willing to meet privately with U.S. diplomats. They were in high spirits and apparently in good health.

Revenue Sharing Compromise Plan Hits Suburbs Hard

by KURT BAER

Northwest suburbs appear to be in for drastic reductions in federal revenue sharing if a compromise House-Senate program is adopted by both houses of Congress.

The compromise measure would result in cuts of 60 to 80 per cent for most suburbs compared with an earlier House-passed measure.

Arlington Heights would be particularly hard hit by the recommended compromise. Under the revenue-sharing bill passed by the House, Arlington Heights could expect to receive $1,007,988 this year. The compromise program would cut the allocation to $248,211, according to figures released yesterday by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill.

Other Chicago suburbs would experience similar percentage reductions. The state's largest cities, however, notably the City of Chicago, would receive more money under the compromise provision.

COMPARISONS between the House and compromise versions for other

Northwest suburbs are: Buffalo Grove $186,566 (House) to $23,490 (compromise); Des Plaines $909,711 to $327,599; Elk Grove $417,241 to $137,385; Hoffman Estates $379,929 to $73,174; Mount Prospect $529,655 to $144,652; Palatine $416,556 to $89,835; Rolling Meadows $317,101 to $72,411; Schaumburg $314,684 to $61,630; and Wheeling $149,760 to $48,522.

The compromise measure was worked out after a Senate bill, strongly backed by rural interests, was approved, taking money away from affluent suburbs and distributing it to large cities and rural areas.

Chicago's allocation would go from $58,899,411 under the House version to $69,335,285 under the compromise version.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. John Woods called the compromise measure "disappointing indeed." He said if the compromise is ratified by the House and Senate it "would not be very meaningful to Arlington Heights or any of the other suburbs."

Arlington Heights trustees had discussed using revenue sharing money for a number of major capital improvements including flood control, landfill site acquisition and transportation improvements.

"While we fully recognize Chicago's needs for funds, this doesn't make our needs any less acute," Woods said.

Woods said he planned to send what he called "a salvo of telegrams" to area Senators and Representatives urging them to reject the compromise. He said he hoped and would urge other suburban mayors to take similar action.

SCHAUMBURG MAYOR Robert Atcher also criticized the compromise proposal saying it discriminated against the suburbs.

"I'm sorry the compromise discriminate against suburban municipalities," giving more for big cities and little rural towns. "If you compare the tax picture . . . the towns close in near Chicago have tremendous problems by comparison. To skip over communities with the problems is unfair," Atcher said.

A spokesman in Percy's office said the smaller compromise figures are the result of the formula used to distribute money within each state. This formula takes into account what the spokesman called each town's "taxing effort" and the relative income of its population.

Towns with higher per-capita incomes get less money than those with lower such figures. "This will hurt the suburbs," the spokesman said.

There is a provision in the compromise measure, however, that would allow state legislatures to alter the revenue sharing formula by eliminating the per-capita income factor.

If a state chooses to alter the formula, it must apply the revised program to all municipalities in the state for the full five year duration of the revenue-sharing program, the spokesman said.

THE PERCY spokesman outlined three ways in which the compromise formula could be altered by state legislative action.

One alternate formula is based on multiplying the community's general tax effort times its population. A second means is multiplying population times the per-

Review Of School Repair Scheduled

by TOM WELLMAN

Repair work — or the lack of it — on the storm ravaged Forest View High School in southern Arlington Heights will receive a special administrative review this week.

That decision came from the High School Dist. 214 board Monday night, after about 40 parents of Forest View students loudly assailed the board and the district's administration for failing to get the damage repaired as soon as possible.

Under the shadow of frequently shouted interruptions and occasional booing from the audience, the board agreed to resume the discussion at a meeting held at 8 p.m. Monday.

THE AUDIENCE'S anger was directed towards the condition of the gymnasium and adjacent areas. On July 14, tornado-like winds ripped off a portion of the roof and caused considerable rain damage to the gymnasium floor.

The group of parents, who had as their spokesman Sig Haaland of the Forest View Boosters Club, charged the uncompleted repair work creates a "health hazard" for students in the high school.

The members of the group asked repeatedly about the district's inability to complete construction work. Assistant Supt. Robert Weber described the procedures involved in seeking insurance backing for repairs and explained that at least 25 days need to be spent in seeking and considering bids under the law.

"In spite of all these delays, somebody's screwed up," someone shouted from the audience.

Contracts for the roofing repair — which must precede repair of the gym floor — have been let, but Lawrence Jenness, Forest View principal, reported the roofing contractor, Town and Country Plumbing of Chicago, had "not performed satisfactorily."

He added that, when a double crew had been requested over the weekend, only half of the normal crew showed up for work.

THE LOCKER ROOMS in the high school are unusable, Jenness said, but use of the freshman locker room is difficult — especially since the roofer ripped off the remaining roofing, allowing water to pour in when it rains, said Jenness.

Board chairman Ray Erickson, after hearing the audience members assail the board and administration for inaction on the repair work, said the board would "ask the administration to formulate a realistic schedule" for repair work. And Supt. Edward Gilbert said that, "as of tonight," the expectation was for the roof to be completed by Jan. 1, 1973.

Jenness said before the meeting that the administration is already doing some sports rescheduling because home basketball games scheduled for December cannot be played in the gym.

Christ Church Eyes 80th Anniversary

Christ Church, Cora and Henry streets, Des Plaines, will celebrate its 80th anniversary next month.

The celebration will include a Communion Sunday Oct. 1, Homecoming Day Oct. 8, and church organization week beginning Oct. 15. Events at the church the week of Oct. 22 will take the theme, "The Church and the Community" and new members will be received into the church Oct. 29 to highlight the program, "The Future of Christ Church."

Christ Church of the United Church of Christ was founded in 1892 as the Christ German Evangelical Church of Des Plaines. Until World War I, German was the only language spoken at church services, Sunday school and confirmation classes. After the war, English services were used occasionally but German was still spoken during church festivals until the 1930s.

EARLY CHURCH meetings were held in a hall at Lee and Ellinwood streets in Des Plaines until the church was completed in December 1892 at Cora and Henry streets. The church cost $3,600.

A number of pastors served the church after it was formed but in 1919 Rev. George Goebel was elected pastor and served in that position for 25 years. In 1945 Rev. R. K. Wobbe became pastor, a position he still holds at the church. Rev. Wobbe was assisted by Rev. F. H. Krohne from 1958 to 1968 when he retired and was replaced by Rev. James Jackson as associate pastor.

The church originally belonged to the Evangelical Synod of North America until it merged with another group in 1940 to become Christ Evangelical and Reformed Church. In 1957 a second merger took place with the Congregational Christian Churches and since 1971 the church has been recognized as Christ Church of the United Church of Christ.

A parish building was erected in 1954 and a new church was built on the site at Cora and Henry streets in 1963. The bell from the original steeple was transferred to the new church where it is still in use.

From an original membership of 20 in 1892, Christ Church has grown to a present membership of about 1,300.

5 Notre Dame Students Cited

Five Notre Dame High School seniors have earned recognition for scholastic achievement by the National Merit Corp.

Dorothy Oliver

Whenever someone proclaims fall as his favorite season of the year — citing the changing leaves, the glorious sunsets, the soft breezes, the mild temperatures — I grab for my box of Puffs. The mere mention of autumn results in bloodshot eyes and filled sinuses.

Being allergic to an entire season is a definite drag. One quarter of each year is spent wiping, blowing and sniffing. Just yesterday my neighbor asked me who hit me when she saw the puffiness that was once my eyes. When I sang a chorus of "Autumn Leaves" she left muttering about rain-soaked brains, etc.

While the rest of the world is bounding around in crunchy piles of leaves I walk around in a daze under the influence of antihistamines.

WHILE OTHERS trek through the forest preserves glorying in the wonders of nature I hole up in my bedroom with a box of throat lozenges trying to persuade my son to do the raking.

While families are biking and driving around the countryside we are scurrying to the drug store for a refill of the prescription eyedrops.

The best part about fall is that it eventually ends. The worst is that being confined to the house during nonworking hours brings on that mystical urge of having to fix all of the interior ills I've been ignoring all summer.

If you've been reading this column long enough you'll notice that the Oliver fall syndrome is as predictable as the birds flying south or caterpillars spinning cocoons.

IN PAST YEARS I've suddenly found myself burlapping walls, painting, finishing furniture and redecorating in general. This year — Tuesday morning to be exact — I woke up and found that the night before I'd removed all the cabinet doors from my kitchen, taken them into the basement and removed seven of the eleven coats of paint and varnish they have accumulated.

It was a dumbfounding experience. I vaguely remember buying paint and varnish remover and searching for a screwdriver the day before. The antihistamines, I presume, fogged my brain to the point that all else remains a blank.

Then yesterday a major department store called and asked when they could come out to measure my kitchen counter.

"Counter?" I questioned.

"Yes," came the voice, "the one you ordered last weekend."

"I DID?" I said, my voice filled with wonder.

"According to this order you did," it replied.

I guess I'm redecorating the kitchen but I wish I remembered making that monumental decision. This is simply another example of the Oliver fall syndrome. One of the symptoms is starting a huge project so that there is no turning back. Once you've taken off seven coats of paint and varnish there is no other choice but to complete the job.

My work is now cut out for me. I have set a deadline of having the kitchen done by Christmas and to get things really rolling I've invited a few of my friends over for a cabinet scraping party this weekend.

Until it is finished I'll probably be over-tired, crabby, impossible to live with and sore from all the physical labor it takes. But maybe I won't notice my allergies as much. Without a doubt I'll be confined to the kitchen until winter begins.

Schools Continue No-Smoking Policy

Officials at Maine Township High School Dist. 207 have vowed to continue their no-smoking policy for students this year, emphasizing the hazards of smoking in health classes and continuing to suspend students who smoke on school grounds.

The school board last summer turned down requests from student councils at both Maine West and Maine East high schools for student smoking lounges at those schools.

In a statement released last week, Supt. Richard Short said "in view of the vast amount of evidence to support the relationship between smoking and fatal diseases, I would be derelict in the fulfillment of my responsibilities as a school superintendent to advocate the establishment of smoking facilities for students."

"The present policy at all four high schools does not permit students to smoke on campus, anywhere in a school building, or at any supervised school functions."

STUDENTS VIOLATING the policy are suspended for a minimum of three days, with an unexcused absence for the time missed. It is also against school regulations for students to carry any smoking materials while on campus, in the school building or at any supervised school functions.

The attempt to control smoking by students, presents a difficult problem for school authorities. More students were suspended last year for smoking, a total of 937, than for any other infraction of school regulations, Dist. 207 officials said.

A cultural values survey conducted at Maine East last year showed that parents were even more against student smoking than teachers and agree that student smoking is unsafe, a fire hazard, unhealthy and morally corrupting.

While the hazards of smoking has always been a part of the health curriculum, it will receive greater emphasis this year through the use of films, the latest research material, and medical demonstrations of diseased respiratory organs, said school officials.

WHO SAYS MONEY DOESN'T GROW ON TREES?

2 Masked Men Steal $160 From Food Store

Two masked men apparently the same pair wanted for a series of holdups in the area, took $160 from a northwest Des Plaines food store Monday night.

Police said two men in their late teens or early twenties and wearing ski masks, entered White Hen Pantry, 20 W. Golf Rd., shortly after 8 p.m.

Store owner William Stinger said one of the men told him to put all the cash register money into a brown paper bag. Stinger told police the holdup man never displayed a weapon but held his hand in his jacket pocket indicating he had a weapon.

Stinger told police as he put $80 from the cash register into the bag the second man stood behind him.

After placing the money in a bag, one of the robbers demanded the money from the safe. When Stinger said he didn't know the combination the bandit reportedly told him: "Don't kid me, you're the owner."

STINGER TOLD police he put the $80 from the safe in the bag and handed it to the robbers who fled on foot.

Stinger, who was alone in the store with his brother, Joseph, at the time of the robbery, told police one of the bandits was five-foot-ten inches tall, of thin build weighing 160 pounds.

The second holdup man was described as short and stocky and wearing a green checkered jacket and blue jeans. The first bandit wore a green shirt-jacket and blue jeans.

Monday night's robbery was the fourth food store holdup in the last three weeks in Des Plaines. In all four cases the robbers wore masks and worked in pairs. The physical descriptions have been similar.

Det. Lt. Lee Alfano said yesterday the robberies appear to be the work of the same men. He said similar stickups have occurred in the last few weeks in Palatine, Skokie and Mount Prospect.

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

My husband has not the slightest devotion to what is quaintly called husbandry.

"If you are going to have any grass at all out here," he observed, standing over me as I weeded on hand and knee, "let's have it in our lifetime."

There's one in every family — a member of management married to a member of the labor force. And this time of year the lawn boss has a slight edge over the lawn keeper. It's now that all the sins of the growing season show up. In spring, the lawnkeeper can blame die-back, snowmold or winter kill for any thin spots, but what's his excuse after a full growing season? One look tells everybody if a lawn has not been kept up. A patch of crabgrass crawling here, a family of dandelion rosettes blooming there, a spurge of spurge and quackgrass fairly shouts, "neglect."

THERE WAS A time when I used to be quite psychotic about my yard. I'd spend eight hours or more weeding, feeding and otherwise diddling.

For a while, it looked like my undone ironing would develop cocoons. I didn't put a decent meal on the table from April to November. I was so far gone that when my husband mentioned "separate maintenance," I thought he was finally going to give me a hand with the yardwork.

Finally, I realized — it just happened to be after the last killing frost — that it's easy to spend one's whole life in the garden, but basic maintenance really takes a Saturday afternoon or couple hours after supper a week.

The question I'm most often asked about organic lawn care is "how do you get rid of dandelions and crabgrass without using weed killers?"

START OFF BY crowding them out! You never see weeds thriving in a thick, healthy lawn because there is no vacancy.

Remember that nature is a very modest lady. She never goes nude. Only in a desert is the earth bare. In the woods, nature blankets the forest floor with leaves, ferns, mushrooms and moss. In your lawn, she fills in the bare spots with whatever happens to be in abundance — usually weed seed sprouts that just happen to blow your way.

Crabgrass seeds can't get the sun they need to grow if you keep the grass trimmed extra long (two to three inches). Crewcuts are passe anyway, aren't they? If you have it now, forget about it. It will die out in another month or two. But come spring, adjust your mower to cut high. It won't return.

BY WATERING ONE inch a week, if there's no natural rainfall, and feeding heavy, the lawn will come back. Don't fertilize now any more until spring. It's too late. But do seed it if the lawn is in really poor shape. A lawn seeded now, with fall's ideal growing conditions, will sprout fast and strong.

Results will start cropping up in a month with merion blue grass, and it's the results that keep the cynics away.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: There was a faint odor of mildew in one of the rooms and, in switching things around to trace it down, we found it was coming from the rug. Is there any way I can remove the odor? — Mildred K.

This is a big job and you really ought to have it done professionally. However, if you have someone to help you, there is a routine to take care of a mildewed rug.

If possible, take the rug outdoors. Brush off the loose mold with a broom (when it's done outdoors you don't run the risk of scattering the mold spores through the house). Then run the vacuum over the rug to draw out more of the mold. While sun and air often take care of a mild mildew, it is best to sponge with a thick suds or rug shampoo. Remove the suds by wiping with a cloth dampened in clear water. Dry in the sun, if possible, then use a fungicide spray.

Suggestions have started to come on how to treat galvanized gutters so that paint will stick to them. William Bunch says galvanized gutters must first be primed with a zinc-based primer — one containing at least 10 per cent zinc. When the primer is dry, he says any type of house paint can be used. Mrs. Ruby Weilbaker says new galvanized gutters should be washed with vinegar and then painted when dry.

Dear Dorothy: The name of the artist who painted the picture, "The French Chess Game," is T. Bida. We have one. — Florence Allyn.

Thank you — and bravo. As readers should know, even the major chess clubs and museums were stymied on this one. Like so many others, I've been entranced by the astonishing interest generated by the Fischer-Spassky match. Hearing our 8-year-old granddaughter tell of a game she had just played with a playmate drove home the point that this is a game that youngsters go for swiftly, and not just something for graybeards.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

The Consumer

by Monica Wilch

The 3M Company is currently selling a new Scotch Gard formula to carpet mills for treating kitchen carpeting so that it will resist spills and stains. The company's consumer education specialist, Mary Lou Rooney, was in Chicago recently to explain the advantages both of the Scotch Gard treatment and of kitchen carpeting.

While carpeting in the kitchen has been considered a decorative luxury — and an impractical one — it actually offers very practical advantages over linoleum, and the Scotch Gard treatment enhances its usefulness.

With noise pollution a growing issue, the sound-muffling effects of carpeting in such a noisy environment as a kitchen has to be given its due recognition. According to Mrs. Rooney, carpeting absorbs 10 times as much noise as a hard-surfaced floor, including direct impact sound when something is dropped and echoes of clattering pans or whirring appliances.

OTHER POSITIVE points that really can't be denied are comfort and safety. Any woman, whether she's a homemaker or a career gal, is bound to spend a number of hours a week standing in the kitchen, and the padding of carpeting underfoot can be a blessing for tired legs and feet. Moreover, an unnoticed spill on carpeting will not result in a fall, as it might on slippery linoleum.

As for the Scotch Gard, a demonstration by Mrs. Rooney illustrated how wet spills soak into untreated carpeting, but stand on top of the Scotch Gard carpeting, where they can easily be soaked up by a sponge or cloth. Mrs. Rooney said that while spot treatment may completely remove a stain from untreated carpeting, tests have shown that the fibers in the area of the spill will still attract dirt particles, eventually resulting in a dark spot.

She candidly admitted that the Scotch Gard isn't an ironclad guarantee against dirt, but said such carpeting will stay clean two to three times longer than untreated carpeting. (Routine cleaning of kitchen carpeting is another selling point — an easy vacuuming job rather than mopping and waxing.)

SCOTCH GARD, at this time, can only be applied by carpet mills, not by either consumers or commercial carpet cleaners. Barwick Industries currently is making kitchen carpeting with Scotch Gard, which is indicated on the underside. The treatment so far has not added to the cost of the carpeting, although this aspect will depend on the particular mill using Scotch Gard.

About the only apparent drawback to the treatment is that home carpet shampooing processes may tend to reduce the effectiveness of Scotch Gard. This is because detergent residues, which inevitable result from do-it-yourself carpet cleaning, will coat the Scotch Gard. The 3M company recommends a commercial deep-steam cleaning process, which removes 95 per cent of the detergent and enables the Scotch Gard to remain effective through many more cleanings.

The need for such a treatment arises out of the susceptibility of the synthetic fibers in modern carpeting to stains, in contrast to wool carpeting which is naturally stain-resistant. Wool also is non-flammable, while some of the synthetics are quite flammable and have necessitated special standards under the federal Flammable Fabrics Act.

Sewing Lecture At Hersey High

Nationally-known consultant and designer Ruth Oblander will present the modern methods of "Sewing and Fitting for Feminine Figures." Sewing enthusiasts are invited to attend Mrs. Oblander's sewing lecture and demonstration next Wednesday, at John Hersey High School. The program will take place in Room 124A 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Mrs. Oblander, a resident of La Grange Park, has been teaching sewing for 22 years, and since early 1970 she has been president of her own company, the SewFit Company.

Those who sew are invited to end the frustrations of old time-consuming sewing and fitting methods. Mrs. Oblander's demonstration includes learning how to cut-to-fit by sliding and pivoting the pattern; she will also show how to set in sleeves without pinning or basting. Tickets are $1 either at the Adult Education Office in District 214 — 799 W. Kensington Road, Mount Prospect, or at the door, if seats are still available.

Next On The Agenda

GARDEN CLUB
The Des Plaines Garden Club will meet Thursday, Oct. 5, at Rand Park Field House at 12:30 p.m. for dessert and coffee with Mrs. Wilbur Giese in charge of refreshments.

Mrs. Robert E. Clark, Evanston, will present "Tools Can Make You Clever." Mrs. Clark, an artist and designer, has served as staging chairman for the Garden Club of Illinois state flower show for several years.

Horticulture chairman Mrs. Richard Wisniewski will explain proper planting methods of bulbs and Mrs. Raymond Larson, ways and means chairman, will have a variety of small bulbs, narcissus and tulips for sale.

SAINTPAULIA SOCIETY
Mrs. Clarence Paeglow, 2703 Meadow Drive, Rolling Meadows, will be hostess for next Tuesday's meeting of the Suburban Saintpaulia Society. A demonstration on flower making with unusual materials will be given by Miss Alice Johnson of the First African Violet Society. The meeting is scheduled for 11 a.m.

Not Our Plan To Defeat Oakton Trustees Convention Says

Officers of the newly formed Oakton Community College Convention reaffirmed Tuesday night that the convention was not formed to unseat trustees now serving on the college board.

Trustees at Oakton Community College expressed some misgivings last week about the formation of the convention, which is composed of local school board caucuses. The convention will nominate a slate of candidates for the Oakton board of trustees for the elections in April.

At the meeting Tuesday night, caucus members discussed the organization of the convention, the bylaws, and representation. Mrs. Margaret Wagner, Des Plaines, secretary of the convention, told the Herald yesterday caucus members wanted to "straighten out any wrong assumptions" held by board members about the convention.

"The purpose of the convention is to find qualified people to run for the board," she said. She denied that the formation of the convention had any political implications.

TRUSTEE RAYMOND Hartstein said last week, "The important thing is the criteria for selection of the caucus members. It must have qualified people." He said the effectiveness of the convention depends on "how they select candidates" and added, "I don't think they should be selected geographically."

Paul Gilson, Oakton trustee, told the Herald, "I run as a representative from the total college community" and added that if each caucus represents "only its own community" then "I would object."

Mrs. Wagner said the "representation couldn't be any fairer because every school in the college district will be represented."

The convention will consist of 50 delegates, 25 from Maine Township and 25 from Niles Township. Of the 50, eight will be appointed by each of the respective caucuses of Elementary School Districts 62, 63 and 64 in Maine Township and one delegate will be an Oakton student from Maine Township. Niles Township will be represented by two delegates from each of the nine elementary school districts and two from each of the three high schools in Niles Township Dist. 219 plus an Oakton student from Niles Township.

Trustee Robert Gutschick, an Oakton student, told the Herald last week, student representation on the convention is "not generous" and the lack of any faculty representation is "unfair."

MRS. WAGNER said yesterday that any Oakton faculty member or student may become a delegate through their local school board caucus.

Hartstein and college president William Koehnline both emphasized last week that the role of the college board of trustees is quite different from the role of the local school board member. Koehnline said that a community college is not a "single purpose institution" mainly concerned with one particular philosophy of education insuring one geographic area. The college board member plays a much more active role in policy-making than the school board member, he said.

"It is not true that being on the board of trustees is any different from being on the local school board," said Mrs. Wagner. "They are both policy-making bodies. Policy-making is what all school boards deal with. I can't see where it would make any difference," she said.

A convention with equal representation from both Maine and Niles townships would tend to balance the number of trustees elected from each township.

Trustees from Niles Township have accumulated a total of 19 years on the college board in the four years of the board's existence, while trustees from Maine Township have accumulated only 10 years.

TRUSTEES FROM Niles Township are present board members Paul Gilson, Skokie; Robert Gutschick, Morton Grove; Meyer Kamin, Skokie; Raymond Hartstein, Skokie; and former board members Doris Sopkin, Skokie; and Milton Falkoff, Lincolnwood. Maine Township trustees are present board members Stephen Loska, Des Plaines; LeRoy Wauck, Park Ridge; and Griffith MacDonald, Park Ridge; Wauck, Gilson, and Hartstein are up for reelection in April.

The convention would also tend to balance liberals and conservatives on the board since Maine Township trustees have tended to be conservative in the past and Niles Township trustees have tended to be more liberal.

The convention was formulated by five members of the Dist. 62, 63, and 64 school boards in Maine township, said Mrs. Wagner. Members of the Niles township caucus were later invited to join the group.

The convention will meet again on Nov. 16 on the temporary campus at 7900 N. Nagle Ave., Morton Grove. The November meeting will be an organizational meeting, said Mrs. Wagner, and officers and committees will be chosen. Mrs. Wagner will serve as secretary until the November meeting and Mrs. Lorraine Makela, wife of Dist. 207 board member Roy O. Makela, will serve temporarily as chairman.

'Permanent Campus' Unit Plans 1st Meet Tonight

A citizens' committee formed to select a permanent campus site for Oakton Community College will hold its first meeting tonight at 8 p.m. at the temporary college campus, 7900 N. Nagle Ave., Morton Grove.

The committee will review possible permanent campus sites and recommend one to the Oakton college board of trustees in January, said Paul Gilson, chairman of the college's site committee.

The 14-member committee will be composed of representatives selected by the municipal boards of Des Plaines, Niles, Morton Grove, Glenview, Skokie, Lincolnwood, and Park Ridge, a representative from unincorporated East Maine School Dist. 63, a representative from each of the two high school districts and four representatives to be named by the college board of trustees.

According to college officials only one representative had been appointed to the committee as of yesterday. Maine Township High School Dist. 207 named John Means, 1061 Allini Dr., Des Plaines, as its representative. Means ended his second term on the Dist. 207 Board of Education last April. He is a former Dist. 207 board chairman and former chairman of the finance committee.

Urge Original Boundaries

The special committee on attendance boundaries for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 has finished its work.

At a meeting Tuesday night, the committee completed discussion and made a recommendation on the last problem area, the Cook School attendance boundary in Elk Grove Village. The committee held to its original recommendation for the boundary change, but gave the school administration and board the responsibility for determining when the change would be made.

The committee called for the Cook attendance area to be split by a line down the center of the lake northwest of the school and continuing south on Wellington Avenue. Students living west of the line would be bused to Salt Creek School, students living east of the line would remain at Cook. The original recommendation called for this change to be implemented for the school year starting September, 1973.

The committee modified the original recommendation by stating that the change would not take effect until, "a review is made in June, 1973 and/or June, 1974 by the administration and a potential overcrowding is found to exist. All or a portion of the recommended boundary change should be implemented."

FRED SCHUSTER, a resident of the Elk Grove Estates subdivision, one of the areas from which children would be bused to Salt Creek under the recommendation, said he was satisfied with the committee's action.

"They are recommending that when the school becomes overcrowded, the boundaries should be changed. That's reasonable," said Schuster.

Schuster was the spokesman for Elk Grove Estate area parents, who were strongly opposed to the boundary change. He had previously presented a report to the committee which disagreed with their expectations for student population at Cook. The Schuster report forced the committee to state there were too many variables expected in construction and population for a definite date to be set to implement the boundary change.

After making the recommendation for Cook School, the committee gave final approval to the wording and content of its report to the school board.

The report will be submitted to the board on Oct. 2, the next regularly scheduled board meeting.
